Red Chinese Cancel Talks In Warsaw

By STANLEY KARNOW
The Washington Post

HONG KONG — Peking has cancelled the Sino-American talks due to open Thursday in Warsaw on the grounds that Washington incited a senior Chinese diplomat in The Netherlands to "betray his country" and defect to the United States.

A Chinese foreign ministry statement, transmitted here this morning by the official New China News Agency, blamed the U.S. government for having "solely" created the "current anti-China atmosphere" that made it "obviously most unsuitable" to hold the meeting as scheduled.

The statement did not propose an alternative date for resumption of the "ambassadorial talks," which were supposed to reopen Thursday after a break of 13 months.

A Peking protest issued two weeks ago demanded that Liao Ho-shu, the Chinese charge d'affaires in The Hague who fled his post on Jan. 24, be handed back to the Communist authorities or else the U.S. and Dutch governments "must be held responsible for the consequences arising therefrom."

Referring to that complaint, today's statement assailed the U.S. for "ignoring" Peking's "strong protest" and rebuffing its "just demand" as well as continuing to "slander China and make shameless denials."

The statement charged, moreover, that Washington is "plotting" to send Liao to Taiwan, the island redoubt of the Chinese Nationalists, "with a view to creating further anti-China incidents."

It added: "All this once again enables the people of China and the rest of the world to see clearly the vicious features of the Nixon administration . . . which has inherited the mantle of the preceding U.S. government in flagrantly making itself the enemy of 700 million Chinese people."

U.S. 'Engineered' Defection

Repeating allegations contained in Peking's earlier protest, the statement accused the United States of having "deliberately engineered" Liao's defection and charged that he was "carried off" to Washington on Feb. 4 by the Central Intelligence Agency.

"This undeniable crime against China committed by the U.S. government," the statement went on, "has aroused the boundless indignation of the entire Chinese people."

Specialists here were surprised by Peking's sudden decision to cancel the Warsaw meeting, since the Chinese had refrained from publicizing the Liao case in both their domestic and foreign propaganda since their initial protest Feb. 6.

The cancellation of the talks was also surprising, in the estimation of these specialists, as it came amid increasing hints that the Communists have been seeking to adopt a flexible approach to world affairs.

Signs of this potential flexibility have been seen in Chinese commentaries underlining the value of negotiations and, among other indications, in a more ambiguous Peking position on the Taiwan question, the main issue dividing the United States and the Communists.

In part, it is believed, the Chinese originally complained against an alleged U.S. role in Liao's defection as a way of reacting to a state department announcement that the former diplomat's request for political asylum in the United States was "under consideration."

That was the first time since the Korean war armistice talks, when they argued for the return of their prisoners of war, that the Chinese had issued a public protest against the defection of one of their officials.

More Than Sensitivities at Stake

In recent years, Washington has avoided giving immediate prominence to Chinese defectors who have chosen asylum in the United States and Peking has accordingly kept silent rather than risk "losing face."

Their decision today to cancel the Warsaw session as a result of the Liao defection suggests, however, that more than official Chinese sensitivities are at stake.

One line of conjecture is that Peking is emphasizing the case strongly in order to impress its own diplomatic corps. According to recent reports, the Chinese ambassadors brought back to China for indoctrination during Mao Tse-tung's cultural revolution have been preparing to return to their posts abroad.

Another possible reason for Peking's cancellations of the talks is that a dogmatic faction within the Chinese leadership group has managed to use the Liao incident as a pretext to impose its opposition to the Sino-American meeting.

Still other speculation holds that the Chinese are striving, in their fashion, to test U.S. interest and willingness to come to terms with them. For underlying Peking's attitude towards the United States are nearly two decades of doubt, mistrust and deep hostility.

The Warsaw meeting scheduled to be held Thursday was the 135th session since the talks began on Aug. 1, 1955. During the first two years of the talks, Chinese attempts at conciliation were rejected by the late secretary of state John Foster Dulles.

In the years since then, Peking has consistently rebuffed American overtures, arguing that no settlement with the United States was possible until the Taiwan issue was resolved.

In contrast to reports describing him as a high-ranking Chinese intelligence operative in Europe, the 46-year-old Liao was a middle-grade diplomat who had spent four years in The Hague without returning home.

As a consequence, it is doubted that he can provide his CIA interrogators with much inside information on events that have been taking place in China.

Since 1962, only four Chinese officials have defected to the west. In addition to Liao, they were Chao Fu, a security officer at the Chinese embassy in Stockholm who fled in 1962; Tung Chih-ping, cultural attache in Burundi, who defected in [illegible]: and Miao Chen-pai, head of the Chinese commercial mission in Damascus, who rejected the Communists in 1966.

Peking Decision Seen As Last-Minute Move

WASHINGTON (WP) — Secretary of State William Rogers expressed "regret" Tuesday over Communist China's cancellation of its first diplomatic meeting on Thursday with the Nixon administration.

The administration said it stands ready "to meet with the Chinese Communists at any time," despite the door that suddenly closed in its face. U.S. sources said the available evidence indicates Peking's move was a last-minute decision.

Rogers said the United States had planned "constructive suggestions" in Warsaw. The interval since the last encounter—13 months— already has been the longest since these talks began in 1955 to give the two nations a limited meeting ground in the absence of diplomatic relations.

At the intended Warsaw meeting, said Rogers, the United States' representative was instructed to suggest "consideration of an agreement on peaceful coexistence, consistent with our treaty obligations in the area . . ."

In addition, said Rogers, the U.S. envoy, who would have been the American ambassador to Poland, Walter J. Stoessel Jr., was to have proposed "the subjects of exchange of reporters, scholars, scientists and scientific information, and the regularization of postal and telecommunications problems."

Peking's sidestepping of the meeting, on grounds it would be "most unsuitable" because of "the current anti-China atmosphere" in the United States, was the first major international surprise experienced by the Nixon administration.

CHINESE CALL NIXON 'CLUMSY BRAGGART'

HONG KONG (Reuters) — China today continued its almost daily verbal attack on the United States with a personal tirade against President Nixon—only hours after it called off scheduled Sino-American talks in Warsaw.

An article in the People's Daily was reported by the New China news agency as describing Nixon as a clumsy braggart and hyprocrite.

Israel Threatens Reprisals Against Airliner Attacks

Moral Right To End Terror

TEL AVIV (AP)—Israel warned Arab nations and airlines today they must "take immediate measures to prevent further attacks on Israel's air routes." It claimed the moral right and ability to break up guerrilla raids at any place.

Transport Minister Moshe Carmel outlined the government's position before the Knesset, Israel's Parliament, in Jerusalem in the wake of the Arab attack on an El Al jetliner in Switzerland Tuesday.

He called on the United Nations to act swiftly and effectively to halt escalation in the disruption of international air routes.

"It is the duty of the United Nations to act swiftly and effectively, without bias," he said.

He complained of what he said was the light manner in which world public opinion took earlier attacks by Arab terrorists on Israeli airliners.

The UN Security Council had failed to condemn in a single word the December attack at Athens Airport on an El Al airliner but censured Israel for its retaliatory raid on Beirut Airport.

That raid had been intended as a warning against further attacks on civilian aircraft.

Warns of Chaos Among Airways

"Israel's air routes are of the highest security priority," he said. "Israel has the full moral right and operational ability to take all necessary defensive measures at any place to break up the ring of terrorism on the airways and assure that Israel has completely free air traffic."

He singled out neighboring Lebanon and declared the government in Beirut had the duty to "uproot any nest of piracy from its territory."

Carmel said the hijack of an El Al plane to Algeria last July and the attacks in Athens and Zurich all originated, in Israel's view, from Lebanon. He pointed out the Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine took full credit for the Swiss incident in a statement published in Beirut Tuesday.

"The responsibility for such acts is not only with the perpetrators, but with the Arab states in which these acts are being planned and where the terrorists are being equipped," Carmel said.

He warned of "complete chaos among the airways of the Middle East unless" the attacks are halted and added:

"Safeguarding air safety is important not only to Israel but the Arabs and all the Arab airlines who want to keep their routes open. They should take immediate action."

Carmel had hinted earlier that there might be retaliation for the machine-gunning of El Al's Boeing 720 at Zurich's airport. Six persons aboard the plane were wounded. Of the four raiders, one was shot dead and the others, including a woman, were arrested.

The transport minister told the Tel Aviv newspaper Maariv: "The Arab governments who are concerned with preserving the international air links of their countries would do well to hold back the sabateurs, and thus avoid the deterioration and destruction of the airways of the Middle East."

The U.S. state department and UN Secretary-General U Thant condemned the Arab attack in Zurich, and Thant expressed hope there would be no reprisal. But leading Israeli newspapers promised retaliation.

Sabotage Cannot Be One-Sided

The semi-official newspaper Lemerhav declared: "The sabotage of airways cannot be one-sided. The Israeli security authorities must reach the proper conclusions with regard to this extension of Arab terror."

Hayom, published by the right-wing Gahal party, said Israel "must react because her neighbors understand no other language."

The guerrillas, three men and a woman, opened up on the El Al Boeing 720 from behind a snowbank Tuesday night as it taxied down a runway at Zurich's Kloten airport to take off for Tel Aviv.

Zurich police said an Israeli security agent jumped from the plane through an emergency hatch after the first bursts of fire and killed one of the attackers with a shot through the head from his automatic pistol.

Swiss firemen raced to the scene and arrested the other three Arabs. They said they had to overpower the Israeli agent "otherwise he would have killed the others as well."

The Israeli and the three Arabs were in custody today and were to appear before an examing magistrate. It was assumed the Israeli agent would plead self-defence.

Sources at Bern, where the Swiss cabinet met to discuss the incident, said Israel was expected to file an early request for the extradition of the three Arabs. But legal experts there said Switzerland is virtually

Berlin Tension Mounts With New Road Blocks

BERLIN (UPI) — East Germany disrupted traffic on West Berlin's main highway to the west for the second consecutive day today, and it said the flight here Thursday of West German President Heinrich Luebke aboard a U.S. Air Force transport would be a "provocation."

An official statement by the East German foreign ministry said the U.S. Air Force flight would be "misuse of the air routes of the East German Democratic Republic."

U.S., British and French planes have air corridors to Berlin under the war time occupation agreements. West German planes are not allowed to use the 20-mile-wide air corridor and the East Germans have threatened to halt German officials' road trips to the city.

Another disturbing note in the growing Berlin crisis came from Moscow where Soviet Marshal Kirill Moskalenko, deputy defence expert and missile warfare expert, said Russia was strengthening its armed forces because of the "very tense" international situation brought by events in Vietnam, the Middle East and Berlin.

The delay of the highway to West Berlin occurred at the western end of the 110-mile road today.

Border officials said the delay, supposedly to check identification papers, began at midnight and ended about 2 a.m. It backed up traffic, mostly trucks, more than two miles.

In a second incident that illustrated East Germany's ability to tie up West Berlin's access routes, West Berlin police today delayed all outbound traffic over the main departure highway for 15 minutes in the belief that East German engineers were doing demolition blasting along the road.

Bonn Deals Blow To British Hopes

By HAROLD MORRISON

LONDON (CP) — In a quick reversal of its position, West Germany has delivered what British officials suggest may be a blow to their hopes of using the seven-country Western European Union as a stepping-stone towards European unity.

After rejecting the French argument that a Feb. 14 WEU council meeting here on the Middle East was illegal, the German government issued a fresh statement in Bonn late Tuesday saying the meeting, which France boycotted, was an exception and that the future special council meetings can be held only with the approval of all seven countries.

The WEU is made up of Britain and the six Common Market partners — France, Germany, Italy, The Netherlands, Belgium and Luxembourg. France has accused Britain of trying to use the WEU in a back-door attempt to get into the Common Market despite President de Gaulle's veto.

A spokesman for the West German embassy here, asked to explain the sudden change in the German position, said he interpreted the latest Bonn statement as indicating West Germany will join her WEU associates in routine council meetings, such as the one held here Tuesday and another to be held here Feb. 26, but will stay away from any special meetings called, say, by Britain, if France refuses to attend.

WATCH BATTLE FIRST

The spokesman also said that while the situation may be confusing, German policy would become evident as the future of the WEU unfolds. While he did not say so, what apparently Chancellor Kurt Georg Kiesinger intends to do is watch how the battle between Britain and France develops and then take a decision in the light of West Germany's best interests.

Students Granted Bail

MONTREAL (CP) — Municipal Judge Emmett McManamy began hearing bail applications today for 90 persons charged in connectin with $2,000,000 worth of damage caused last week to Sir George Williams Universty.

Before doing so he postponed until Thursday the continuation at the preliminary hearing for Kennedy J. Fredericks, 29, of Grenada, West Indies.

Twelve students were granted bail in municipal and spuerior courts, ranging from $3,000 to $1,000. Those granted bail included seven girls all under 21.

The 60 men and 30 women facing charges in municipal court include 41 Negroes. Of seven juveniles — all under 18 — due for preliminary hearing in social welfare court today one is a Negro.

Judge McManamy's decision to postpone the Fredericks hearing took the prosecution by surprise and 40 witnesses waiting to testify had to be told to go home and return Thursday.

WARNS PRESS

Before today's hearing started the judge advised members of the press to be "factual" in their reporting and not to indulge in editorial comment in accounts of the proceedings.

This came after he read a report of Tuesday's proceedings carried by a French-language daily newsppaper.

Commonwealth Trust Blow-Up If Shares Not Impounded—MLA

By JOHN MIKA
Legislative Reporter

The B.C. government was warned Tuesday it is sitting on "the edge of a volcano" which could blow up the Commonwealth Trust situation "into the worst mess since the Atlantic Acceptance scandal."

Gordon Dowding (NDP—Burnaby-Edmonds) said the only solution is an immedaite "special act of legislature to impound for all time the controlling shares" in the key company of the group, Commonwealth Investors' Syndicate.

He said this was the only method by which some other financial company can be induced to make a takeover bid which could "save this vast (Commonwealth group) empire."

Mr. Dowding said Commonwealth Trust's government-appointed receiver A. D. Stanley already has said that it is vital "to look around for some group to take over the Commonwealth empire before it falls in tatters.

"If that is not done, the government will have to face the wrath of thousands of shareholders and investors and complete breakdown of confidence on the part of the investing public."

Mr. Dowding said Vancouver lawyer A. Duncan Crux, now living in Seattle, held 49 per cent of the voting stock in CIS which in turn controlled all the other companies in the group.

He said the rest of the voting stock was held by the Grantie Establishment, a company registered in Liechtenstein.

TRANSFERS STOCK

Mr. Dowding said Mr. Crux already had transferred part of his voting stock to Seattle lawyer Robert Lee Agar and if he (Crux) "has his way everything will be out of the country."

So long as this controlling interest is maintained by Mr. Crux and his associates, no outside firms will try to salvage the Commonwealth Trust group's companies, some of which are in receivership and others have assets frozen by court orders.

Mr. Dowding also called for a legislative committee investigation to determine whether the government's watchdog machinery had broken down.

He said documents were on file in the court registry for two years showing improper transactions among the group's companies but none of the government's officials apparently checked them and neither did Commonwealth Trust's auditors, the chartered accountants' firm headed by former Social Credit finance minister Einar Gunderson.

"The documents on file prove the same directors (of various

Troops Kill Six In Karachi Riot

From AP-Reuters

KARACHI (CP) — Troops fired into anti-government rioters in Dacca today, killing six persons and wounding 50. Another five persons were injured by soldiers charging with bayonets and clubs.

At the same time, 5,000 students demonstrated in Rawalpindi calling on opposition parties to boycott a meeting with President Mohammad Ayub Khan. The meeting is aimed at settling Pakistan's political and social unrest.

Word spread that Prof. Shamsuzzoha, head of the chemistry department at Rajshahi University 100 miles away, had been shot by police, and the students charged the troops.

The professor was fatally wounded as he tried to persuade demonstrating students to return to their campus.

Under public pressure, authorities lifted the curfew in Dacca for four hours this morning to permit people to get any available food. No new supplies have reached the city since Sunday.

The new outbreak of violence came as the fate of talks to end a three-month political crisis in Pakistan hung in the balance after main opposition leaders said they would not attend.

Bhutto, a former foreign minister who commands militant student support in West Pakistan, told a news conference Tuesday that the government had withdrawn a corruption charge against him so that he could attend the Rawalpindi talks but he said he would not attend because he had not been given enough time to study the invitation.

Commonwealth group firms) acted on both sides of the fence, signing documents transferring funds from one company to another, time after time."

"For two years they sat there unobserved by the inspectors or the auditors, yet the companies were in breach of all the laws of this province."

Mr. Dowding noted that the late J. V. Fisher, former B.C. deputy finance minister, was a director of Commonwealth Trust but added he was certain "he would not have permitted those things to go on."

Mr. Dowding said that even the "name of the minister of health services is being rumored around and I want a committee to have this cleared up because the impression is getting abroad that this company (Commonwealth Trust) had some benign influence protecting it.

NO CHECK MADE

"What went wrong that those documents were never checked? Why did no one look them up?"

Health Minister Ralph Loffmark, outside the House, told reporters he had two connections with Commonwealth Trust.

In 1963 for "two or three months" he was retained by the company in his professional capacity as a lawyer specializing in tax matters but he resigned this post as soon as he went into politics.

Two years later, while he was minister of industrial development, trade and commerce, the company asked him how it should go about applying for coverage under the federal government's deposit insurance plan which was created as a result of the Atlantic Acceptance group's collapse in Ontario.

SEEK INSURANCE

He said Commonwealth Trust needed provincial government authorization to seek the federal insurance because it was the only B.C.-chartered trust company in the province.

Mr. Loffmark said he drafted the letter of authorization and Premier Bennett signed it as minister of finance.

Subsequently, federal inspectors held a two-hour conversation with him about the mechanics of covering provincial firms with the federal insurance but no indication was given him that anything unusual had been discovered about the company's affairs.

Mr. Loffmark said at no time did he hold shares or have a management interest in the company and his only relations with it were in his professional and ministerial capacities.

Vandalism Again Hits Cal. Campus

By The Associated Press

A new outbreak of violence and vandalism hit the University of California in Berkeley Tuesday and the current wave of student unrest spread to predominantly Negro Howard University in Washington.

Thirteen persons were arrested on the Berkeley campus after three stench bombs were set off—one in the administration building and two in a student cafeteria. Twenty-one windows were broken.

Bottles, rocks and dirt clods were hurled at policemen during the latest incident on the campus where the Third World Liberation Front has been seeking improved educational opportunities for minorities.

At Howard several hundred students occupied the law school building Tuesday seeking a meeting with the faculty to discuss demands. They left early today after a U.S. marshal ordered them out.

MONTREAL (CP)—Detective-Sergeant Roger Lavigueur, who threatened in December to take over the municipal government during a pension fund dispute with the city, has resigned his post within the Montreal police union.

GUNFIRE EXCHANGED

AMMAN, Jordan (Reuters)—Jordanian and Israeli forces exchanged machine-gun and mortar fire for 25 minutes early today in the northern River Jordan valley, a Jordanian spokesman said.

The spokesman accused the Israelis of starting the shooting. There were no Jordanian casualties.

It is believed the Israelis suffered casualties, the spokesman said.

certain to reject this, because the Swiss legal code stipulates jurisdiction over crimes committed in the country.

Swiss police said the guerrillas used Soviet Kalashnikov submachine-guns. About 50 bullets hit the Boeing, mostly in the forward first-class compartment and cockpit, shattering the instrument panel, navigational and radio equipment.

One of the passengers who emerged uninjured was Gideon Rafael, director-general of the Israeli foreign office. He immediately telephoned a report to Eban.

The guerrillas left leaflets at the airport expressing "apologies to the Swiss people and government" and asking for sympathy. In Amman, the Popular Front said Zurich was selected for the attack "purely on technical grounds."

The Amman communique identified the four guerrillas as Amina Dahbour, a 25-year-old woman schoolteacher from Israeli-occupied Gaza; Ibrahim Tewfik, a laborer from Haifa, Israel's chief port; Abdel Mohsen Hassan, a driver from Lydda, in central Israel, and Mohamed Abu el Haja, a laborer from Nazareth, which also is in Israel.

It was not known here which one was killed.

The communique obviously had been prepared before the attack since it said the plane was destroyed.

Soviet Jails Intellectual

MOSCOW (AP) — A court today sentenced a woman member of Moscow's small group of dissenting intellectuals to a year in a labor camp for possessing leaflets protesting the arrest and trial last summer of another member of the group.

The defendant, Irina Belogorodskaya, 30, an engineer in a patent office when arrested last Aug. 7, was given credit for the more than six months she has spent in jail.

Miss Belogorodskaya was found guilty on a charge of distributing "deliberately false fabrications defaming the Soviet state and public order." The offence carries a maximum penalty of three years.

She pleaded innocent to the charge.

GAMBLERS SPECIAL VANISHES

HAWTHORNE, Nev. (CP)—Ground parties searched the wild California-Nevada border in a light snowfall today for a Gamblers Special plane that vanished before dawn on Tuesday with 35 aboard. Search planes remained grounded. The plane was en route to Burbank, Calif.

Ground parties in jeeps and brush buggies searched near Dyer, Nev., 70 miles south of here; Montgomery Pass between Dyer and Bishop, Calif., and White Mountain Peak, a 14,242-foot elevation in California.

Pueblo Officers Violate Prisoners' Conduct Code

CORONADO, Calif. (CP) — In a long, dark room at a jail they called The Barn, the six officers of the Pueblo broke the U.S. Code of Conduct for prisoners one day after capture during an interrogation without torture, two of them testified Tuesday.

The officers violated the code by revealing their jobs on the intelligence ship, Lieut. Timothy Harris and Lieut. Fredrick Schumacher said. They included themselves as violators.

Harris and Schumacher told a navy court of inquiry they later falsely confessed to spying and invading North Korean territorial waters—but only after beatings and death threats.

Harris returns today for more questioning before five admirals on the court, which began by investigating the Pueblo's capture and conduct of its men as prisoners in North Korea.

SKIPPER ALSO CONFESSED

Their skipper, Cmdr. Lloyd M. Bucher, and second in command, Lieut. Edward R. Murphy Jr., have said they signed false confessions after mental and physical torture and death threats.

The code of Conduct forbids U.S. servicemen to tell their captors anything but name, rank, serial number and date of birth.

Schumacher and Harris also told how they plotted an escape from their prison but finally gave up the idea because the chances of success were remote.

"Our main problem was the thought that even if we could get out of our detention area, there would be no outside help," Schumacher, the ship's operations officer, said.

Mishaps Kill 114,000

CHICAGO (AP) — Two thousand more persons died in accidents in the U.S. in 1968 than in the previous year, the National Safety Council has reported. Over-all fatalities from all accidents during 1968 were an estimated 114,000 persons, up two per cent.

However, a Pacific disturbance moving into the Gulf of Alaska will spread rain over the north coast early Thursday morning. Cloudiness preceding this system will reach the inner south coast and the central interior Thursday afternoon or evening.

The Weather and You

By CARL RIBLET JR.

An old friend told me of a time in the Second World War when a prolonged hot shower warmed him through and through after he had been in continuous action for 68 days in the cold winter of 1944-45 as an infantryman in France and Germany.

He and his comrades hadn't been really warm for a month. They were bone cold when his company was relieved and trucked to a base in the rear of the action. He was passed into a Quonset hut where the temperature was a blessed 90 degrees or more. He pulled off his filthy combat clothes and went into the hot shower room. The heat wrapped him like a kindly cloak.

There was no time limit placed on occupation of the shower. "I soaked and soaked under hot water for nearly an hour," he recalled. "The army had that hot water tank firing up hour after hour as every man of us thawed out like we never had before. I felt like I had never been comfortably warm until that hour."

Tax Dooms Small Firms, Family Farms

OTTAWA (CP) — Small businesses and family farms are "doomed to extinction" under the government's proposed estate tax changes, a Conservative MP told the Commons Tuesday.

William Scott (Victoria-Haliburton) made the statement as the Commons once again dwelt on the gloomy topics of death and taxes.

The burden of the Conservative argument again was that the government's planned changes would make it difficult to pass on family farms or small businesses.

But a freshman Liberal cut against the theme with the argument that the individual should stand on his own, not dependent on the support of the last generation.

Said Gordon Blair (Grenville-Carleton):

"We live in a society where most people like to believe that a man is judged by what he is, not who he is or whose son he is."

Mr. Blair also argued, however, that the nature of the changes have been exaggerated and misrepresented and that it is "simply not true" that they pose a threat to the family farm.

Much of the debate dealt with the basic exemption from federal death duties, set at $50,000 under Finance Minister Edgar Benson's proposed legislation.

The present limit is $40,000 and Mr. Benson originally had planned to cut it to $20,000. He revised it to $50,000 after signs of unhappiness within and outside the Liberal party.

But Mr. Scott said Tuesday the revision really changed nothing. Estates of more than $50,000 would be taxed on everything above $20,000 and Mr. Benson had been guilty of devious conduct in trying to convince Canadians he had done them a favor with the change.

Mr. Benson had set out to destroy any accumulation of private capital that remained in the country.

"His intent is still the same. All he did was change the load in the murder weapon."

Mr. Blair, in rebuttal, said the tax would have none of the horrendous effects ascribed to it.

The debate took place on the second-reading stage of the tax bill, which will be before the House again today.

Czechs Offer Loans To Those Who Fled

PRAGUE (Reuters) — Czechoslovakia is offering loans and air tickets to help citizens who fled abroad after the Warsaw pact invasion last year to come home.

Czechoslovak embassies and consulates abroad have been authorized to tell emigrants there is nothing barring their return —they can pay back the air ticket and any loan in Czechoslovakia.

Czechoslovaks who still want more time to make up their minds can also get loans to prevent them being stranded abroad, the Prague daily Svobode Slovo said.

The paper said many were confused because firms in some countries—it referred to Australia, Switzerland and Canada—regarded Czechoslovaks as sources of cheap but highly qualified labor.

More than 60,000 Czechoslovaks fled the country immediately after the invasion but about half of these have since returned.

Major Step Taken For a Water Policy

OTTAWA (CP) — Two consulting firms are going to make a study of water resources in Ontario and British Columbia.

Acting Resources Minister Otto Lang said today the move is "a major step forward in the development of a national water policy."

He said the two engineering firms will "undertake preliminary studies of the hydrometric network of Ontario and British Columbia that will help to lay the groundwork for an expanded and more effective inventory of Canada's total fresh water resources."

Shawinigan Engineering Co. of Montreal will carry out the Ontario studies, while T. Ingledow and Associates Ltd., of Vancouver will work in British Columbia.

Among other things, said Mr. Lang's announcement, "these studies will help determine the best locations and the minimum numbers of water level and streamflow stations needed to provide over-all inventory coverage for each of the two provinces."

The federal government will finance the full cost of the studies. The provinces will co-operate by providing background information and the advice of their own experts.

The announcement said similar studies are being considered for other parts of Canada.

Mr. Lang said a network of data-gathering stations across Canada would provide a more complete picture of the country's water resources. "This would permit a clear assessment of such important matters as water pollution, regional water shortages, area development, flood control and forecasting."

Quebec Still Irked Over Niger Mission

By STAN McDOWELL
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Quebec paid its own way to an international French-Language conference in Niamey, Niger, Prime Minister Trudeau told the Commons Tuesday, but only Canada has the right to vote.

The prime minister saw the single Canadian voting right at the conference as the conclusive answer to the Quebec delegates's argument that there are two delegations, one Canadian and one from Quebec.

Although Prime Minister Trudeau and Premier Jean-Jacques Bertrand agreed last week that Federal Secretary of State Gerard Pelletier would be chairman of the whole delegation, including Quebec delegates, Quebec Minister Without Portfolio Marcel Masse has insisted at the conference that there is a separate Quebec delegation and that he is its leader.

Quebec delegates, who went to the conference separately from their counterparts from Ottawa and the other provinces, insist that they form a distinct Quebec delegation that is included in an overall Canadian representation. They were irritated to find Quebec was not on the list of countries represented at the conference on "La Francophnie," the international French-language community.

Ottawa's position is that, in line with federal responsibility in international affairs, there is one delegation, representing Canada, but including delegates from Quebec province.

The prime minister said it was pointless to "bicker over words" like representation or delegation. The conclusive answer, he said, was that Canada alone has a vote.

Mr. Trudeau said the federal government had offered to pay expenses for all delegates to the province. Ontario and New Brunswick had accepted, he said, but Quebec, "which has the means," had insisted on paying its own way.

Nixon Backs Extension Of Surcharge

By RICHARD HALLORAN
The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — The Nixon administration made clear Tuesday that it intends to ask Congress to extend the 10 per cent surtax on individual and corporate incomes.

Budget bureau director Robert P. Mayo told the congressional joint economic committee hearing that "our administration's current position is to support the proposed extension of the surcharge" and certain excise taxes due to expire June 30.

Mayo said that without changes in commitments in southeast Asia and the state of the economy, the administration wants the surtax continued "as an appropriate and necessary fiscal policy in our efforts to stem the forces of inflation."

Mayo said the administration's policy is to provide "restraint by achieving surpluses in the federal budget in both the current and the coming fiscal year."

This could be done, he said, by extending the surcharge and reducing outlays.

Mayo's testimony appeared to be the final step in the evolution of Mr. Nixon's thinking on the surtax. During the campaign, he said he wanted it eliminated as soon as possible."

Tight Security for Nixon's Tour

LONDON (AP) — Police of six nations are completing plans to protect President Nixon against organized demonstrators and individual fanatics and screwballs during his European tour.

In Britain, France, Belgium, Germany and Italy, security agents are charting routes, vantage points for potential assassins, assembly points for demonstrators and compiling lists of local "nuts" who might do something weird if they got the chance.

American secret service men are in London, Paris, Brussels, Bonn, West Berlin and Rome co-ordinating arrangements with local authorities.

Cmdr. John Lawlor of Scotland Yard, who dealt with the riots at the American Embassy last year, has sent a list of potential troublemakers, including Continental agitators, to all immigration officers.

The president will stay at Claridge's Hotel rather than the U.S. Embassy residence in Regent's Park because every British security officer knows every alcove and corner of the venerable establishment in Mayfair. Heads of state and government chiefs have stayed there for generations.

Militant opponents of the Vietnam war have served notice they intend to give the president a hot time in London. Edward Davoren, secretary of the Revolutionary Student Federation, claims that 50 organizations have formed a Hot Reception for Nixon Committee. He promised 60,000 at one demonstration before the U.S. Embassy Monday, before Nixon's arrival.

London police will be out in force and the home office has issued special permission for American security officers attached to the president to carry guns.

Paris police are planning the same protection for Nixon that they gave President de Gaulle. That is considerable.

Police will line roads and streets, spaced 50 yards apart. Firemen and police will be stationed on rooftops. Plainclothesmen will mingle with the croads. Traffic will be stopped on the presidential routes, and Nixon's motorcade will travel at high speed. Any unusual assembly will be promptly broken up.

Belgium, home of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization and the Common Market, generally practices the European system of smothering the involved area with police.

Bonn and West Berlin present special problems in the light of their proximity to East Germany as well as the presence of energetic leftist students from many countries who attend West German universities.

West Berlin will have 13,000 uniformed police on standby, with possibly half on special duty. American troops and public safety officers will be mobilized as well.

But no trouble is expected from East Berlin. The Soviets have a habit of telling their satellite to cool it when such a personage as an American president is in town. Hotheads in West Berlin may be inspired by Communist propaganda but they won't have Kremlin support.

Rome is expecting some flurry of protest but only from maverick extreme leftists. The big Italian Communist party seems more pleased at Nixon's visit than against it.

The Hopeful Line

FINANCE MINISTER BENSON still holds bravely to the belief that he can achieve a balanced budget this year, but there appears to be a large element of "if" and hope in his calculations. One of his greatest problems is the continuing inflationary spiral, and one of his greatest hazards is that willy-nilly he may contribute substantially to the problem. The estimate is that the federal government will spend $11.8 billions in the coming fiscal year, but Mr. Benson points out that about $200 millions of this may not be needed, thus keeping next year's spending down to the original computation of last fall.

One of the sources of saving, the government says, may be in the medicare program, to which $370 millions has been allocated. If some of the provinces remain out of the plan, as they currently assert, federal expenditures would be reduced by some $200 millions. Thus if the government's medicare plan were to be successfully executed, Mr. Benson's budget probably could not be.

But another hazard lies in the supplementary estimates, which, brought in late in each year, are designed to make up the deficiencies of the original budget estimates. And since these added sums normally run to more than $350 millions, it is fairly clear that some savings will have to be made in one area or another.

The spectre that hovers behind a possible large deficit, quite apart from the fact of inflation, is the national debt. At latest report the gross debt had reached a total of about $33 billions. Canada has an annual interest charge of $1.6 billions. This puts the yearly outlay for interest payments close to the total of the defence appropriation and it has become one of the major items in our cost of running the nation.

The only way in which this cost can be cut is to pay back some of the debt, and to do this requires a surplus of income over expenditure. If this cannot be achieved, old bond issues coming due must be paid from the proceeds of new bond issues — and these days that means higher interest rates. Mr. Benson's optimism in these circumstances is a heartening demonstration. It will not persuade many, but we would like to be convinced of its authenticity—preferably by firm figures of performance.

A Place to Live

IT IS WELCOME NEWS THAT City Hall officials are still actively considering the matter of a Broad Street mall, and that the short stretch between Fort and View Streets, closed mainly because of traffic problems at the Fort Street intersection, may become the first section of an attractive pedestrian way leading from the city centre to the Centennial Square complex.

This was part of the original Centennial and Bastion Square conception, and if imaginatively planned and attractively carried out it could form a very important element in the city core. If "downtown" is to offer effective alternatives to the attractions and conveniences of the shopping plazas on the rim of the city it must concentrate on making shoppers feel welcome, and few means are more effective than properly decorated and furnished pedestrian ways in which a leisurely and pleasant atmosphere can be created.

The Broad Street proposal has been long a-simmering. In co-ordination with some of the very stimulating private projects which are now under way or planned in the business district, City Hall's program should be brought up to date and kept alive.

The Critics

BOTH THE CONSERVATIVE and NDP opposition groups in Parliament have been critical of the government for its extra-mural activities with the provincial premiers.

While recognizing the need for federal-provincial conferences at the top level, Mr. Stanfield and Mr. David Lewis have expressed alarm at the growing status of the discussions which took place between Prime Minister and premiers on constitutional matters. They fear an invasion of Parliament's rights and demand reassurance of the prestige of the Commons. Their protests at the moment seem more partisan than practical. Of course Parliament must have the last word in any alterations of the constitution, and many other words as well. But since the provinces also have the responsibility of approving constitutional changes, it would be folly for Parliament to proceed very far on its own without consulting with the provincial members of Confederation.

Thus Mr. Trudeau is on sound ground in getting the whole matter before the provinces as a start, for there can be little progress until the problems have been thrashed out on that level.

No Whitewash for the Bonaventure

THE saga of the Bonaventure is the latest reminder that modern government is never more incompetent than when it is dealing with paint. Not many years ago the government persuaded Parliament (with a minimum of effort) that the name of Trans-Canada Air Lines should be changed to Air Canada. Everyone hailed this splendid idea, noting that it would work wonders for national unity. There was general surprise when the paint bill, chargeable to entranced taxpayers, came to one million dollars.

Western

The gain for national unity was evidently not of sufficient magnitude to induce the government to risk a coast-to-coast paint job on the Trans-Canada Highway which continues to go by its old, unreformed, waspish name. What we have is unity in diversity; unity aloft and diversity on the ground.

In the case of the carrier, Bonaventure, there is no allegation that the taxpayer was a victim of wasteful government expenditure. What was done, presumably, had to be done. But it does appear that Parliament was given an estimate so meaningless as to make a complete mockery of the power of the purse.

The original estimate, submitted to treasury board when the Bonaventure was still in the water, was $8 million for the refit and improvement program. Seven months after it began, treasury board approved an increase, bringing the total to $11,770,000. The final cost will be well over $13 million.

Minimized 'Unknowns'

While the defence department had no previous experience with carriers, it was not without some guidance because destroyers must frequently be refitted. According to the director of maritime systems engineering, it normally allows 40 per cent for unknowns. In the case of the Bonaventure this would have been far too low. In fact, it allowed 2½ per cent. This is optimism unlimited.

It will be readily understandable to the taxpayer that, in a job of this size, not everything can be foreseen. No reasonable person will condemn the department because, as it turned out, it was necessary to make structural repairs to the ship's bottom. Again, it is understandable that the estimators should be out — even to the extent of 100 or 150 per cent — in regard to complicated electronic systems. One can even overlook the fact that they forgot the laundry equipment and repairs to furniture.

But it is not such items that account for the mammoth errors. What should impress the ordinary, tax-paying, do-it-yourself Canadian citizen is the fact that the experts were far more wildly wrong in the not-very-technical matter of paint.

Original estimate $150,000. Revised estimate $400,000. Final cost $1,021,000. This baffles belief.

Various explanations were offered. The more the taxpayer examines them, the more fascinated he will probably get.

The first is that the Bonaventure had never been out of the water. It was assumed, until she was in dry dock, that the paint would be in reasonable condition and that a bit of patching would suffice.

Was this a reasonable assumption? As Mr. Crouse, a Conservative member of the public accounts committee pointed out, the department of steamship inspection requires that, in the case of commercial shipping, certain things must be done after three, or with some ships, four years. Regulations provide that the bottom must be scraped, painted and covered with anti-fouling compound. The Bonaventure had been in the water for eight years.

Rhetorical Question?

As the defence experts eagerly explained, the regulations do not affect naval ships. But presumably sea water does. Mr. Cullen, a Liberal member, therefore asked if they might not have been used as a guide. The defence witnesses evidently regarded this as a rhetorical question, merely observing that there had been "good experience with the type of surface that was on the bottom of the ship" and that paint deteriorates when it is out of water.

Even if the charitable taxpayer is prepared to accept this as a credible explanation, the breakdown shows that the cost of painting the underwater hull was a relatively minor item. It amounted to $156,000 as compared to $495,000 spent on interior painting.

But the defence department can explain that too. In the words of Mr. Armstrong, the deputy minister: "In the course of a major refit of this kind there are all kinds of disturbances that affect the paint."

There are indeed. But why did these disturbances come as such a shock to the department? It is true that the refit required 18 weeks longer than the experts had estimated. Even so, it was expected to take a year. During that time is was foreseeable that a great many men would be working aboard the ship. (In fact the average number was 500 and the maximum 977.)

Surely it must have occurred to someone in the department that it is not possible to have a ship out of water for that length of time, with so many workmen tramping about and taking things apart, without ruining a great deal of paint.

As an explanation after the event this is certainly persuasive. But it is the sort of thing that would have occurred before hand to any non-expert. No doubt the precise amount of damage and deterioration was unpredictable. The incredible fact, however, is that there was originally no allowance. There cannot have been much in the revised estimate, when the work had been in progress for seven months, since the figure of $400,000 would not even have covered the flight deck, underwater hull, ship's side and superstructure.

With this sort of estimating it is small wonder that the department so often complains that there is so little to show for so much expenditure.

Surely there must be some rating somewhere in what used to be the navy who could save the expensive help from future embarrassment with a few timely and elementary tips on this not very abstruse subject of paint.

Letters

Indignant

Indignation forces me to make a comment about a news story in your paper concerning the recent by-election in Nanaimo-Cowichan-The Islands constituency. On Saturday February 8 your front page headline in large print announced BY-ELECTION A TOSS-UP. Of course two days later the inaccuracy of your prediction was decisively proved when Tommy Douglas increased Colin Cameron's majority by close to 3,000 votes, but how do you report the victory? . . . by a small space on the lower right hand side of the paper, and in very, very small print a recognition that it was a "steam roller victory." Really, Mr. Editor!

But more infuriating was the whole tone of the report in Saturday's paper. Surely it was meant to be a news report and not an editorial comment. And yet your reporter writes: "those who vote Liberal will be voting for a man who has gained respect around Nanaimo as a logger, social worker lawyer, and magistrate: those who vote NDP will be casting a ballot for the promise of Tommy Douglas' oratory and against the Trudeau government."

You make Douglas' skill at oratory sound like a gimmick — like the face towel in the box of detergent. Does it not occur to your reporter that the main reason Douglas is such a good speaker is that when he says that he wants a people-oriented economy instead of a profit-oriented one, and that man was not made for the economy: the economy was made for man, that he means these things?

Yours truly, B.C. Cobble Hill

Introducing a problem

In support of "the critic" (February 13 letter to the editor), I would like to also add my opinion. The West does not need an official language. One may walk downtown and hear many languages spoken, and this is a good sign. Canada is becoming a great mixture of peoples, as did our southern neighbor, and the country will benefit greatly from these different cultures. But to institute French in the western provinces at least is to ignore reality. To bring French into the West is to bring a problem to an area where no such problem exists.—"Critic's Support".

Leads to breakdown

I stand with public works Minister William N. Chant, 100 per cent in his denunciation of the abomination of legalized sodomy, and that it can only lead to the breakdown of civilization and Christianity.

He is the only one that I know of who has had the courage to come out and denounce it openly.

So strongly do I feel about it that I have already written to Prime Minister Trudeau and Opposition Leader Stanfield informing them that if this amendment to the Criminal Code were passed I would no longer be able to exercise my vote—Mrs. Sybil Blyth, 460 Chester.

Looking Back

From the Times, Feb. 19, 1909.

When the police commission meets this evening it will take up the question of appointing a new inspector, who would act under the direction of the chief of police. This is a new position.

Members of the police force are asking for an increase in pay. This matter will be taken up. The minimum scale of pay for constables is $65, while 15 years ago it was $75.

No Nation That Refuses to Attempt Any Defence of Itself Can Claim an Identity

By BRUCE HUTCHISON

IN our favorite national cliche we Canadians say that the American people take us too much for granted. If Prime Minister Trudeau removes Canada from NATO, that cliche will end, along with many other more important things. the American people will no longer take us for granted. They will not even take us for friends.

Hutchison

But at the moment, as the Canadian in Washington discovers to his amazement, the American people and their legislators do not yet know that Canada has considered its withdrawal from the grand alliance and the councils of the Western world.

Of course the State Department knows all about it, with a mixture of shock, pain and incredulity. It knows and has on file every off-hand remark made by Mr. Trudeau, every contrary statement by Mitchell Sharp and Leo Cadieux, every speech by Eric Kierans urging a neutral policy of isolation in a cabinet of comic solidarity.

When I visited the capitol, however, and talked at length with probably the six most powerful members of the United States Senate I was dumbfounded to learn that they had heard nothing about Canada's agonizing reappraisal of foreign affairs, beyond a few newspaper snippets which they had not taken seriously. And when I told them what was happening in Ottawa, and showed them the written record of Parliament, they could hardly believe it.

A man who may well be the next President of the United States said to me: "If Canada actually thinks of getting out of NATO it's an insult to my country. No, much worse than an insult. It would be a betrayal. Our people would never forgive it. And believe me they would express their hurt by means that would hurt Canada far worse than you can imagine."

More Hourt Than Angry

That is the precise description of the feelings I found in the Senate, though not yet among ordinary Americans, who are totally ignorant of Canada's policies and intentions. The men who belatedly have read Mr. Trudeau's confused and contradictory statements are not so much angry as hurt, because no man can be really hurt except by his friends.

In another report I shall summarize what I heard from senators, both Democratic and Republican, who happen to be old friends of mine. Here I am not trying to argue that Canada should remain in NATO and NORAD for fear of angering the United States. My argument (as shared by many members of the Trudeau government) is much simpler and purely Canadian — that by repudiating our twenty-year contract we would betray our own paramount national interests and, if such an old-fashioned word is still in the dictionary, our national honor.

In the first place, if Mr. Trudeau's emerging foreign policy means anything it means that he seeks to expand Canada's influence in the world, and especially in Western Europe, the ancestral home of our two founding Canadian races. As he has written in his book and personal credo, his whole philosophy of politics is based on the use of "counter-weights" and in Europe he hopes to find a counterweight to American influence on Canada. That strategy, it seems to me, is entirely sound and constructive.

But it must collapse and become sheer nonsense if he abandons the alliance which defends Europe and quarrels with the United States which defends the non-Communist world in general and Canada in particular. For once it is out of the alliance, Canada will have no more influence on the allies, no part in their military planning or, even more important, in their present determined attempt to come to terms with Russia.

In these great affairs, now changing the whole structure of world power, Canada will have no voice at all. And in its own special relations with the United States on many fronts it will not approach Washington, the capital of the world's giant, as a member of a team with immense and growing influence but alone, powerless, distrusted and discredited.

In short, if Mr. Trudeau had deliberately set out to diminish Canada as a factor in the human equation he could not have done better than to threaten Canada's withdrawal from its company of friends, the only reliable friends it has anywhere in the world.

Or, as one senator, and an ardent friend of Canada, put it to me: "If you bail out on the alliance you'll be just another Finland and when you speak no one will hear you."

Secondly, if Mr. Trudeau has a secret dream of Canada, as I believe he has, he wishes to give it what we now-a-days call an "identity." I happen to think that Canada has possessed an identity ac clear and palpable as its northern climate since Champlain built his "Habitation" on the rock of Quebec in the killing winter of 1608. But leave that semantic argument to the psychologists and headshrinkers. The real point is that Mr. Trudeau, with his matchless gift or words, and intimations deeper than words, wishes Canadians to be themselves and proud of themselves. That is what he means by identity.

But no nation that refuses to attempt any defence of itself, however inadequate the defence may be, or which refuses to help its sole defender, the United States, however small the help, can claim any identity whatever, except the identity of cowardice, smugness and fat greed. In such a posture we would be easily identifiable in the eyes of the world and in our own — and also contemptible.

Regrettable Statement

Thirdly, in the most regrettable statement made by any prime minister since Mackenzie King's famous "five-cent" speech, Mr. Trudeau has said "we know darn well" that the United States must always defend us whether we make any contribution to our defence or not. Thus, reversing the old cliche, we take the Americans for granted. We assume total defence by the United States for obvious reasons of geography. Yet even this axiom, like so many others, has suddenly become questionable.

It may still be true, for the time being, that the United States must defend the huge land mass lying between it and Russia but if we refuse any co-operation, in our airspace and along our coastlines for example, then by the supreme laws of power and survival, the United States will defend us on its own terms, by its own methods and its own intervention in our business because it would have no alternative.

All these necessities, however, are passing with the change of military techniques. As a man very close to the summit of power in Washington told me, far more in sorrow than in anger: "The big war, if it comes, won't be fought by soldiers on the ground or planes in the air of Canada. It will be fought, in about half an hour, with missiles launched from the United States or from our Polaris submarines all around the globe.

"When we launch them we won't be worrying about the Russian missiles aimed at Montreal, Toronto, Winnipeg and Vancouver. We'll be thinking of ourselves alone. And if the present arms race goes on, which God forbid, and we build an anti-missile system then, if Canada is no longer our ally, we don't need to stop the missiles falling on you."

All this is nightmare and, one hopes, improbable madness. But far short of human suicide, the threatened quarrel between Ottawa and Washington contains some practical, immediate considerations to be discussed in another report.

Long Walk Back For the Camels

By GEORGE BAIN
The Globe and Mail

OTTAWA—The sheiks have wrapped themselves in their shining robes, mounted their camels, and ridden back off to their desert kingdoms, leaving the Sultan to tend his goats.

Sometimes (the bright lights and the close atmosphere made nodding off very easy) the observer in the Confederation Room would see the thing as a gathering of suzerains, deigned to meet in the tent of the patriarch.

What position he enjoyed, they allowed him. It was useful to recognize the sultanate because, for instance, the right of access to the caravan routes which crisscrossed their territories needed to be reposed somewhere.

But, apart from that, and the performance of a few other residual functions which they would assign him, he would occupy himself with his goats.

At which point, the unobserving observer would leap from his reverie, look around the horseshoe table and recognize that these weren't . . . or was that a jewelled curved blade that John Robarts was wearing, tucked in his waistband?

SHEIKH OF OLD B.C.

It is true—it is, in any case, true to me—that for very long stretches of time in the first three days of last week, it was exceedingly hard to see the nation for the provinces.

These (certainly in the case of the premiers of the big and rich provinces) very often were sovereigns speaking.

No one listening to John Robarts talking about the likes and dislikes of the people of Ontario could doubt for a moment that he, and he alone is the tribal chief.

Where that leaves those 64 Liberals who were elected in Ontario on June 25 is a question—and one to which Mr. Robarts gave short shrift when Edgar Benson asked it in the argument about medicare.

W. A. C. Bennett, of course, has always talked of his people as if they were colored blue or had the letters B.C. branded on their brows, or were otherwise identifiable on sight from lesser breeds (i.e., anyone else).

Mr. Bennett is a monarch of the most kingly sort. Jean-Jacques Bertrand speaks for Quebec, as Quebec premiers have a habit of doing, as if he invented it.

And some of the others, although relatively new to the realization that they preside over domains of affluence and power, have taken to the wearing of the purple with astonishing ease.

* * *

It is left mainly to the poor Atlantickers, who need it, to talk about nationhood.

The rise of the provinces, of course, has been going on for all of this decade. Jean Lesage coming to Ottawa, backed by a lot of tough-minded officials, and pounding the table for what he wanted, was part of it.

Perhaps the fact that there have been shaky federal governments over most of that period, is another.

No small part of it is the fact—and it is a fact—that Ottawa has not ever been in it with the provinces when it has come to public relations.

Anyone who does not believe that might consider the following: When Mr. Bennett introduces British Columbia's first $1-billion budget (a miracle budget, he called it), it is a sign of growth, progress and good government; when the federal budget increases, it signifies only waste, extravagance and inefficiency.

* * *

The provinces generally have been in the fortunate position of being able to represent (and get away with representing) their growing expenditures as the unavoidable result of an increasing population and the fast pace of development, while denouncing Ottawa for its shiftless ways with money.

Federal programs tend to be unnecessary, untimely, and unwelcome (or all three); provincial programs are more likely to be sacrosanct down to the last penny. It's a good wicket to be on.

Mr. Trudeau, with the freshest mandate in the country, is in a position to do something to restore the balance. It wouldn't be a good bet that he won't try.

Meanwhile, bye-bye sheiks; may your camels never falter.

How to Save UBC: Limit Enrolment

By DR. WILLIAM C. GIBSON

(Dr. Gibson, a member of the UBC faculty of medicine, is special assistant to the president on university development.)

With the prospect of 34,000 students at Point Grey in less than five years, the University of British Columbia family is beginning to look around for someone to blame, something to say, and, more hopefully, something to do about it.

Of all the causes of mass and infectious frustration on the campus the chief is overcrowding.

It is easy to see why. Every morning by 8 a.m. the lines of traffic have started to converge on campus, sometimes after a snail's-pace progress over bridges. Then the fight begins to get a parking space—of which there are now 12,000.

Once parked, the students start on their trek through the rain—up to half a mile—to classrooms where several hundred students are closely packed.

300 May Listen None Will Speak

Some complain that even in third year they may find 300 "attending" one lecture. They use the term advisedly, for while some may see the teacher, others may hear, none will ever speak to the scholar at close range.

The more enterprising may feel that self-education offers greater rewards than does the 300th seat in an amphitheatre, so the library is given a whirl. This does not last long—if it even begins—for there is only one seat for every seven students on campus!

This is the worst of all the frustrating things on campus. Food may be hard to get, but books are essential—and no student who wants to study in a library expects to find himself actively discouraged, by lack of seats and lack of books.

The annual report of the university librarian this year is a sobering document. He needs some 2,500 more seats if he is even to begin to cope with the frustrating problems he sees.

Problem of People, Not University

His are not forecasts but actual shortages, today so serious that all alumni must wonder how much longer UBC will continue to be a good university. Their hope was that in their lifetime it would become a great university.

The first thing to recognize in all this is the fact that the problem is the problem of the people of British Columbia; it is not "the university's problem," as is so often said.

It comes as a shock to some to realize that in Ontario few freshmen can attend the larger and older universities; or that in some of the world's best universities freshmen can enter only if they have 80 per cent on entrance examinations.

At UBC, where the entrance requirement is now 60 per cent on B.C. matriculation examinations, the last freshman class to be tested (in May, 1968) showed that of those entering with 60 to 64 per cent on B.C. matriculation, 27 per cent failed or withdrew. Only 32 per cent received a full year's credit, and 41 per cent obtained some credit.

It may be asked if this exercise was worthwhile for 27 per cent of the freshman class. Those who failed had lost a year of their own time, had wasted their own family's money—not to mention the professor's time—and the taxpayers' money.

In arts a student pays for about one-quarter of the cost to the taxpayer. In medicine, the student pays approximately one-eleventh of the cost.

For each student enrolled the taxpayer has invested from $6,000 to $8,000 in capital equipment.

Make Students Work for a Year

So, all in all, we should perhaps ask ourselves the question, "For whom the overcrowding?"

I still harbor the quaint notion that, considering the above facts, no student should be admitted to a university in this province unless he was gainfully employed for 12 months previously.

To put something into the economy first might be a salutory prelude to taking something out of it. This is, of course, such rank heresy that it would never be considered.

Coming to the next quaint idea, it may be that no one in future can enter UBC until they have successfully completed two years at a junior community college.

Possibly no assistant professor should be eligible for promotion to associate professor rank at UBC until he had successfully completed three years of teaching in such a two-year college.

It seems to me that the rural areas of the province, many with low cash income constituents, have for more than 50 years sent their young people great distances to UBC at the coast.

Possibly the time has come to redress this, and to build sufficient two-year colleges throughout the province to remove the insupportable load of freshmen and sophomores now burdening UBC.

To continue the heresy even further, one might suggest that freshmen and sophomores should have to "earn" their right to a place on the Point Grey campus, either by gaining 80 per cent on entrance examinations or by completing two years in junior colleges.

No Limitation By Tuition Fees

The terminology will give some, of my critics apoplexy, no doubt, but the survival of UBC as a top university is a more serious consideration.

What we should never permit is limitation of entrance into UBC through escalation of tuition fees. It may be that non-resident fees will eventually be charged, as in many state universities in the U.S.

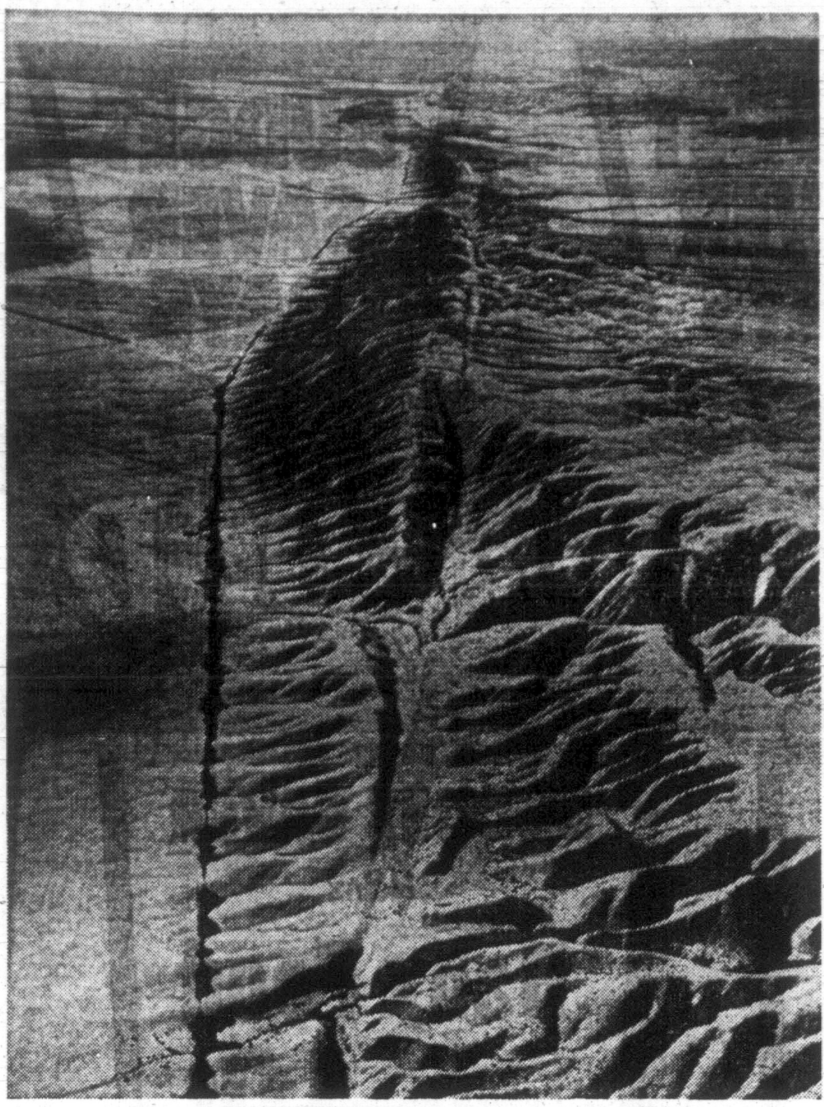
The goal is not discrimination against students capable of handling university work loads.

The goal is the preservation of UBC, an institution into which two generations and more have poured their effort, affection and support; an institution which has played a key role in the development of the province and nation, and which has supplied the peace-keeping personnel of the world with some of its greatest figures.

Must Be Frozen At 15,000 Level

By overcrowding it 50 per cent beyond its capacity we are destroying its usefulness to the province.

It must be kept at 15,000 students and must be properly financed to provide those critically important professional faculties which will give the province what its development requires in engineers, teachers, doctors, lawyers and other professionals.



San Andreas Fault visible on Carrizo Plain

California Tries Defusing Timebomb Lying Underneath

By EDWARD GROSS

California is sitting on a geological time bomb, overdue to explode. The bomb is the notorious San Andreas fault, a 600-mile-long fracture in the earth's crust starting 100 miles north of San Francisco, running southeast parallel to the coast and splitting into branches that run to the Imperial Valley and the Gulf of California.

It was 63 years ago that a horizontal slippage averaging 10 feet in the fault triggered events that destroyed San Francisco and killed 700 people. Geologists are certain another major quake will hit the fault region, probably within the next 30 years.

●

Despite this certainty, California blissfully goes on constructing large housing developments and major engineering projects astride the fault, as well as selling sites for nuclear powerplants.

The Federal Council for Science and Technology, in a recent proposal, recommends a 10-year national earthquake research program to find ways to predict when and where quakes will strike and how to minimize loss of lives and property.

Unobtrusively, listed at the end of six primary objectives of the program and couched in modest language is a phrase that is actually a plan to defuse and prevent earthquakes, or at least modify them.

Basically, the idea is simple. Inject fluid into underground rock, release the strain and produce a gradual series of tiny earthquakes or tremors instead of one violent jolt.

Ironically, the idea came about as a result of what looks like man-made earthquakes which themselves raised a storm of opposition. In 1962, the Army began pumping liquid chemical wastes into the ground near Denver, Colo. Soon tremors shook the area. The tremors continued through 1965, their number coinciding with pumping rate.

●

As geologists reconstruct it, the rock at the Colorado dumping site was filled with vertical, parallel fractures or cracks, and was non-porous so it couldn't absorb the liquid. The liquid filled the cracks, widening them and reducing the friction between rock surfaces. The rocks, already under stress from internal forces, began slipping, producing the Denver quakes.

Geologists and geophysicists at the National Centre for Earthquake Research in Menlo Park, California, are considering testing the theory, with an eye to its application in earthquake control.

Right now, they are at the data-gathering stage, but within three to four years, they hope to complete field experiments, which will give them an evaluation of the feasibility of applying the idea.

One factor favoring the fluid injection method is the nature of West Coast earthquakes. Most of the world's earthquake zones are deep-seated. The earthquake zone of the western United States, however, is shallow enough to put it within reach of standard drills.

●

"We are excited about it," says Dr. John H. Healy, geophysicist with the U.S. Geological Survey at Menlo Park. "There is a remote chance that it might be used in the San Andreas fault and a fairly good chance we might try it in a remote section."

There is some evidence that the method can work. At the Rangely oil fields in western Colorado, one of the ways to get oil out of the ground is to pump water into the margins of the oil fields and remove the oil from the centre. Sesmic activity, in the form of small earthquakes, has been detected.

Geologist M. King Hubbert is very cautious about the method. He feels that the consequences of employing a fluid pressure mechanism could go either way.

"The increase of fluid pressure could set off a San Francisco earthquake," he warns, adding that it depends on the amount of stress on the rocks. "If there were little stress build-up, then it could work."

He compares the stress situation to that of a giant mouse trap: "A small act can release the trap. Fluid injection could produce a series of small jolts or set off a big one. Injections should occur at a minimum of stress. If you're going to mess with a mouse trap, mess with it when it's not set."

●

One other earthquake control idea being considered is the use of explosives to relieve the stress. However, that is not being seriously considered. The scheme would be to place large numbers of explosives in a region under stress. Theoretically, the explosions could break points in the rock, thereby shaking the fault loose a little at a time.

But such a method requires extremely precise control; it is very likely to trigger a quake; also the magnitude of the explosions required could cause as much damage as the quake. Explosion effects at the Atomic Energy Commission's Nevada test site are being checked to test the method.

The Young Look From Across the Pacific

By ART STOTT

The three young men, 19, 18 and 17, broke the ice with an affable greeting as we waited at the bus stop. They were relative newcomers, apparently interested in people and inclined to strike up friendly conversation with strangers. They had come from Hong Kong about six months ago and were attending a local private school to acquire the high school credits which would qualify them to enter university.

Stott

All hoped to concentrate on some field of science as they advanced. They considered their opportunities greater here and they liked Victoria. The atmosphere was agreeable, the people they had met, kindly, and there was space about them. They had studied English in school at home, had gained a reasonable understanding of the language and were improving their proficiency in it here, though they talked Chinese among themselves.

Hong Kong, explained the eldest, was crowded. When you were on the sidewalk downtown you walked the way the crowd was moving. You couldn't buck the traffic. The colony, along with its newly developed regions in Kowloon, had a population approaching four million. With that many people, the university was bulging with students. It was hard to gain admission.

* * *

The three youths weren't particularly homesick anymore. They had friends. When they wanted to, they could always find countrymen in Victoria who would talk Chinese with them—and English speaking acquaintances of their own age who kidded them when they resorted to their native tongue to talk about Hong Kong.

They found commodity prices high in Victoria, explaining that they were used to buying under favorable conditions of a free port at home.

Without wanting to pry into their personal affairs, I asked how it was possible for them to acquire financing to study here. The reply was matter of fact. Their families were upper middle class and could afford it.

What about those who weren't so well off? Could they get an education? Oh yes, said the eldest of the group. They could go up to and into high school. But when they got out, there were no jobs. He looked troubled as he said it.

Was it difficult to adjust to the school they attended here? Not particularly. They were interested in science. The local textbooks were frequently of American origin where they had been used to English, but in science there was a sort of common approach, a sort of universal communication.

We met on Monday afternoon. "How come," I asked, "you're skipping class today?"

"Again, please," queried the spokesman.

"Why aren't you in school now?" I repeated in paraphrase.

"Oh," they chorused with large grins. "We have a holiday. Chinese New Year."

Students from the Orient and other foreign parts studying in Victoria private schools are no novelty. They have been coming here for the last half century or so. Yet it seemed to me the three youths at the bus stop represented a new genre, modern as the grooming of recalcitrant hair they were trying to train in the approved youth style of the day.

* * *

They seemed to have a very clear idea of what they wanted educationally. They met people whom they did not know with a cheerful openness. Their attitudes invited a matching response, and had apparently received it. They were a long way from home, came from an environment unknown to most of us here, had certain characteristics that were different. But any foreign traits were submerged in the assurance that human beings are human beings anywhere and are usually treated with a reciprocal attitude to their own. They didn't look for prejudice. They hadn't found it.

Flattering, I suppose, to have youths come here because this part of the country seemed to offer them a better chance. Flattering, also, to have youths so blithely ignore the so-called generation gap and prove that communication is possible and enjoyable between people of diverse ages. And encouraging to meet, even in such a brief encounter, boys from another land demonstrating the ability of their generation to take for granted the universality of humanity which, at their age, seems to exceed its differences. A lot of us who are older took a long time to learn that.

'Roads Raise Aim at Grain

OTTAWA (CP) — Both Canadian Pacific and Canadian National railways have agreed to aim for increased targets to move grain into export position at Vancouver, Trade Minister Jean-Luc Pepin told the Commons Tuesday.

He said the CNR had exceeded its new target but "the CPR is doing as well."

Stanley Korchinski (PC—Mackenzie) suggested that the railways try to borrow diesel engines from U.S. lines to increase grain movement.

He said the engines are needed in view of reports that the tie-up of ships waiting to load grain may continue into later April or May.

Mr. Mackenzie also said he has reports of some community elevators in western Canada which have had no grain deliveries since last fall.

Mr. Pepin said he, too, has had representations along this line. He had brought them to the attention of the railways.

The investment dollar premium added about 15 shillings to provide relief for some stocks.

Canadian Pacific fell 2 points. Losses in other Canadian issues ranged to 2 points or so.

GRAIN

WINNIPEG (CP) — Trading in all commodities slowed near the close of action on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange today.

Rapeseed declined as a result of hedge selling and good exporter buying on the scale down. Flax declined fractionally on local and commission house trade limited to commercial buying.

Oats and barley attracted a light domestic trade. Rye featured inter-market and inter-month spreading.

Japan bought 140,000 bushels of rapeseed overnight.

Tolay trading volume Tuesday: Flax 401,000 bushels, rapeseed 412,000 bushels and rye 199,000 bushels.

CHICAGO (AP) — A late rally, attributed by some trade sources to the tense situation in the Middle East and in central Europe, tended to influence buying of grain futures on the board of trade.

As a result, early losses of nearly 2 cents were trimmed. Soybeans prices, however, held generally firm, especially in the new crop months.

THE ACCOUNTANT'S ADVICE

Small Shareholder May Be Locked-In

By EDGAR A. DOWNEY, CA

(This is a service provided by the Times and by the Institute of Chartered Accountants of British Columbia.)

Most individuals who hold shares of a corporation own a very small fraction of the total business. A number of such individuals together might hold enough shares to give them majority control of the corporation.

If the shares of a company are distributed among a large number of people practical control can often be exercised by a small group of shareholders. Such a group may hold say 20 per cent of the shares with the other 80 per cent being spread between a lot of people who do not act together or, more likely, do not take any interest in the company affairs.

This is not necessarily a bad thing. The small controlling group would normally want the company policy to enhance the value of all of the shares to improve their own investment. Consequently all of the shareholders usually benefit.

There are situations where the management might misuse their authority by paying excessive salaries or directors' fees or by making preferential deals with other businesses in which the individual managers have personal interests.

If the shares of the company are listed on a stock exchange or actively traded in the "over-the-counter market," then the dissatified shareholder may choose to sell his shares and then not care about the management. However if there are many such shareholders who want to sell out the market price would likely go down, so they would suffer some loss but at least they are not completely trapped in their investment.

MINORITY LOCKED-IN

It is the minority shareholder of a private company who may be locked-in. If he cannot have any say to improve the management and has no market to sell the shares, his investment may have no realizable value at all. Theoretically he might take legal action against the majority shareholders for oppression and ask the court to order the company to give him some relief but such procedures are difficult and usually extremely costly.

In most small private companies the minority shareholders are quite satisfied with the good management of the controlling shareholdrs and everybody is content to accept the results while the business goes well. But business conditions do change and the shareholder contentment may vanish with a diminishing profit.

Generally a minority shareholder in a small company is in a very weak position. If he obtained his shares as a sort of employee bonus without any substantial investment of his own money, he would have little to lose and little to complain about. But, if he paid real value for his shares, he may have put himself into a closed position where he cannot recover his investment nor do anything to improve it.

This does not mean that all minority positions are unwise. The difficulties can be avoided by arranging a share purchase agreement with the controlling shareholder or other special guarantees but too often such protections are not sought until problems have arisen and then it is often too late.

Odd Outfall In New York's Paper Snow

By LEWIS H. DIUGUID

WASHINGTON (WP) — The paper blizzard has drifted down on the most modest of stock market dabblers — me. The morning mail brought a valid certificate in my name for 20 shares that I never bought.

I could sell the gratuitous stock and make a quick $1,000. The shares are in the Rouse Co., selling at over $50 each.

But when I informed my broker of the error and suggested what a less honest fellow might have done with it, he unflappabIy informed me that the whole affair simply left me in a short position with Merrill Lynch, Pierce Fenner and Smith. Smith.

The broker explained that I was the victim of a reverse flow, an updraft, in the paper blizzard — the inundation of paper work that has almost swamped brokerage houses trying to handle the rapid increase in stock market transactions.

Usually customers complain that after having bought stock they fail to receive the certificates. When this happens, the broker sends a second and even third or fourth set of orders to his New York office asking that the required certificates be delivered.

In my case, I bought 20 shares of Rouse in January and the certificate arrived promptly. But some benumbed brokerage clerk apparently sent off a second delivery order anyway.

Hence the arrival of 20 more shares. I asked who might be missing the shares that came unearned to me. The broker explained that Merrill Lynch has a pool of shares from which mine were drawn and that this transaction would dutifully appear on my monthly account tally sheet.

Then I would either have to produce the shares or the money to pay for them at the going price.

It wasn't so clear what would happen if I simply disclaimed receipt of the stock which, after all, I had not requested.

Tax Tips

If your question is not answered here or in the revenue department's tax guide, phone 382-2173 or write National Revenue, Taxation, Victoria.

Victoria Taxation Office

Q. May I treat the cost of clearing and breaking land as an expense?

A. Yes, if you are in the business of farming. See Page 7 of the Farmer's and Fisherman's Guide for further details.

Q. I've heard a lot about the registration of charitable organizations for tax deduction purposes. As a donor to some charities, what should I know about this?

A. Canadian charitable organizations issuing receipts for income tax purposes must be registered, and all receipts issued for donations must show the registration number of the organization. If you have received a receipt which doesn't show this number, you should get in touch with the organization and obtain a proper receipt.

Q. Is the reserve portion of a patronage dividend taxable?

A. Yes, both the cash and reserve portion must be included in income except in cases of consumer goods.

Real Estate Business Set Victoria Records in '68

Growth of the Greater Victoria real estate industry in the last decade is borne out by multiple listing service annual statistics that set three records in 1968.

Inflation of property values is partly responsible for the nearly quadrupled dollar volume of multiple listing sales since 1958, but at the same time the actual number of transactions had doubled.

The number of listings in 1968 also was nearly double what it was 10 years earlier.

Victoria Real Estate Board, which operates the multiple listing system, reports $32.7 million worth of sales through MLS last year. There were 4,045 listings and 1,857 sales.

This compares with $26.9 million, 3,368 listings and 1,765 sales in 1967, and $8.6 million, 2,202 and 948, respectively in 1958.

Last month MLS statistics fell off in listings, volume and unit sales because of bad weather.

Even so, nearly $1.68 million worth of transactions were completed, compared with $1.59 million in December and $2.6 million a a year ago. There were 249 listings (down from 328 a year earlier but up 164 in December), and 71 sales (down from 163 and 80, respectively), for 94.7 per cent of list price, only .2 per cent off the 1968 high of 94.9 per cent of list price during July.

Multiple listing was initiated in Victoria Feb. 13, 1955, starting as a separate association of agents and becoming a committee of the real estate board in 1960. Founder of the original 31-member group was F. N. Cabeldu, above, whose real estate business the real estate board's offices are located on Broad Street.

Superior Oil Income Doubles

CALGARY (CP) — Canadian Superior Oil Ltd. had a net income of $8,503,000 or $1 a share in 1968 compared to $4,346,000 or 51 cents a share in 1967.

The company's gross revenue increased about seven per cent last year to $33,100,000.

Crude oil and natural gas liquids production increased 5.5 per cent to an average of 24,919 barrels daily. Natural gas production was up nearly one third to 78,000,000 cubic feet a day.

Beer Prices Hit In Socred Speech

Beer drinkers, the hard of hearing and Sunday sports buffs all got a good word from Social Credit backbencher Dudley Little Tuesday.

He gave his own government a few bad words on the beer and sports issues; then called for legislation to stop the "travelling-salesmen" approach taken by large department stores when they sell hearing aids to the elderly.

No large department store or any other merchant selling goods in large quantities is qualified to handle an individual's hearing-aid needs, said the member for Skeena.

There was a United States association of qualified hearing specialists and the government should introduce legislation to require anyone selling the instruments to be a member of a similar association.

It makes sense, he said, pointing out that people who fix teeth and sell eyeglasses have to be properly qualified.

PROTECT ELDERLY

Hearing aids were mostly needed by the elderly and "these elderly people need protection. They are being taken by travelling salesmen for department stores right and left."

He named an employee of Eaton's who was in charge of hearing aid sales in B.C. and Alberta. Mr. Little said he showed this man a hearing aid that Eaton's had sold an elderly woman and "never even bothered to fit it for her."

The hearing aid was returned to the store because of the store's slogan "satisfaction guaranteed or money refunded," said the member. Since that time, the woman had died and no refund had been made.

Mr. Little mentioned the name of Ben Ginter and the troubles Tartan Breweries Ltd. had introducing canned beer to the province at a price 10 cents less than the national breweries could meet.

TEN CENTS LESS

"Why should we have beer at the same price as that set by the Eastern interests when a local brewery is willing to sell for 10 cents less?"

In the member's written speech text he states: "This would appear to be price-fixing on the part of the attorney-general's department, the very thing they should be protecting us against."

He told the house Mr. Ginter should not "have been subjected to the abuse he has taken from this government in the past year."

He said it was bowing to Eastern interests at the expense of a provincially-owned industry and the beer-drinking public.

Mr. Little closed with a call for a province-wide plebiscite on Sunday sports.

"I don't think the government should be allowed to dictate how people are going to spend their Sundays."

A vote would permit citizens to "decide their own destiny."

The member pointed out that Vancouver, with the acquisition of a charter, had been permitted to introduce Sunday sports on its own "although it is a special privilege the rest of us can't enjoy."

CBC Employee Drank Cyanide

TORONTO (CP)—A coroner's jury ruled Tuesday night that Mandell Kussner, 22, former student at Trent University and a sound technician for the CBC, killed himself by taking cyanide poison.

The inquest was told that Kussner drank a fluid Jan. 10 which one policeman described as "cloudy with a froth on top." He drank it shortly after being arrested in his apartment on a charge of having hashish. Death came about 90 minutes later.

Arthur Mayse

Once I obliged the hard-pressed leader of a Wolf Cub pack by agreeing to put some of her charges through a badge test.

"All you have to do," this wolf-lady told me, "is make sure they can identify a few trees and plants."

Since my own knowledge of nature's works is limited, I did some preliminary boning up, and even went so far as to memorize a name or two in botanist's Latin.

Test afternoon came, and the badge-seeking wolflets turned up. They were a bright and frisky bunch, but what most of them did to nature's works was sheer murder.

I pointed to an arbutus tree (Arbutus Menziesii, if anybody cares), and asked the first candidate on my list to name it.

"You mean that one with the funny bark?" he said. Then, brightly, "Is it a maple?"

The next boy up observed a maple—Canada's tree in its broad-leafed western version—and pronounced it an oak.

So it went, until with three Cubs tested, out stepped a boy who named a selection of native flora with casual ease.

At this point, we adjourned for an identification prowl among the trees. The boy who had learned from his father helped, and even corrected me on one I mis-labeled.

★

What matters here is not that the Cubs earned their badges, or that three of them walked as virtual strangers in a segment of the world about them. The thing that signifies is that one parent spared the time to enlarge his son's background for living.

Some fathers and mothers do just that, and by so doing, they help their children more than they may ever realize.

I do not suggest that the parent must take on the role of busy instructor. Most of us, outside our own fields of special interest, are incapable of doing so.

But I think it is tremendously important that the child be exposed to the world in which he is growing up.

Many school teachers go far beyond the line of duty in attempting this necessary task. There are few weeks for instance, when a file of students accompanied by guide and teacher don't trek through this plant to learn at first hand something of how a daily paper is produced.

But the expedition of discovery made with one parent or both has its own unique value in the education of the child.

It can also be rewarding to the parent, since a child is likely to see and note what an adult may miss.

★

We took our son to an art gallery before he could read—not with any idea of force-feeding culture into him, but merely so that he would know by seeing that there are places where anybody can go to look at pictures.

He looked at a swirl of color and told us, "Three blue fish on a blue plate." I peered at the artist's title, which happened to be "Fish on a Plate," and decided that modern art might, after all, have something to commend it.

There are no laws under which any child must visit an art gallery, or a library, or learn the shape of his city from a hilltop, or the look of a deep-sea ship close up.

By this much, however, the parent who will take a weekend hour or two can advance his child's awareness and further his knowledge. It follows that such trips must be free from nagging or bull-headed determination to instruct. All those tactics are likely to accomplish is a state of boredom.

One warning here. The years in which the parent can contribute effectively to the shaping of the child's outlook and attitudes are all too few.

They are confined to childhood, and sad though the fact may be, there really isn't much point in attempting to establish a neglected relationship once childhood has advanced far into adolescence.

As a parent, you catch 'em young—and if you don't, there's no point in mourning the lost chance that will never return.

FIRST VISIT to Victoria brought exclamations of pleasure today from pianist James Dick as he viewed the green grass and basked in warm sunshine. The 27-year-old American artist will give a recital tonight at 8:30 at McPherson Playhouse and will appear with Victoria Symphony Orchestra at the weekend, playing the Chopin E minor Concerto. Almost exactly a year ago he was soloist with the Vancouver Symphony but "Victoria seems far different' he says. A native of Kansas, Mr. Dick has distinguished himself as winner of three top international awards, including the Tchaikowsky Competition in Moscow two seasons ago. He was a Fulbright Scholar in London in 1964 and says that London is the one big city in the world where he would most like to live.

Jubilee Tops In Performing Quickie Surgery

By PETE LOUDON

Royal Jubilee Hospital here is leading the province in the field of one-day in-and-out minor surgery.

The program started in earnest just a year ago, now is handling 13 to 16 cases daily or about 300 a month.

Vancouver General Hospital offers day-care surgery to about 200 patients each month. Royal Columbian in New Westminster does about 175. Lion's Gate in North Vancouver does about three a day.

St. Joseph's Hospital here does 20 to 30 a month despite being hampered by a shortage of space. St. Paul's in Vancouver has a similar problem but hopes to get a one-day surgery started soon.

The people who are benefitting from out-patient surgery today would have spent two or three days in hospital under the previous way of doing things, a Jubilee official stated.

Two factors made the new system possible—the development in recent years of anaesthetics and sedatives which are fast-working and fast to wear off—and additional financial aid to out-patient programs by B.C. Hospital Insurance Service.

BCHIS once paid $2 for each out-patient treatment. Now it will pay $23 per day. The patient pays $2.

Usual routine is for the patient to check in at 8 a.m. and go home before 6 p.m. He will use one of eight beds in a special ward (Two East) at Jubilee.

The surgery undertaken often includes a breast biopsy—removal of tissue for examination, minor plastic surgery, obstetrical curettage and removal of skin lesions or growths.

Many investigational procedures—where instruments permitting a doctor to look at human organs are inserted into the body, are also on the in-and-out list now. So often, are simple fractures.

Dr. A. C. Pickles, hospital executive director, says the program has taken more than 200 persons from the waiting list for beds for elective surgery. Overall waiting list at the hospital is still in excess of 1,500.

The program requires that the patient's doctor be certain that conditions at his home are suitable to his recovery. And a patient is only released from day-care when a friend or relative is available to drive him home.

YOUNGSTERS GETTING THE MESSAGE IN PRINT

By JIM HUME

If the medium is the message Greater Victoria youngsters have settled on the printed word.

In 1967 the children's department at the Greater Victoria Public Library distributed 172,575 books to youngsters. Last year the same department jumped its circulation to 203,069, close to 50 per cent of book-borrowings in the adult section where 567,941 books crossed the check-out counter.

Add to the youngster's reading list 48,251 books loaned via the young people's section — as compared with 33,564 — plus the youngsters borrowing books via the Town and Country branch, Brentwood Station and the Bookmobile section and the total number of young readers in the area is greater than at any time since 1964.

PUZZLER

Chief librarian Jack Lort still shakes his head, as do other librarians across North America, at the strange happenings in the library world in the three years spanning 1965-6-7.

In 1964 book borrowing was at a peak across the country with 579,037 books moving out of the general circulation department in Victoria and 235,272 books in circulation via the children's department.

In 1965 adult borrowing dropped by 30,000 books, children stopped reading to the tune of 20,000 books. The following year was worse with adult book-borrowing dropping another 9,000 and children's borrowing dropping by a thumping 50,527 books during 1966.

Softening that blow a little was the opening of the young people's section which saw 20,182 books loaned in its first year of operation — but still leaving a staggering 30,000 book borrowing reduction.

In 1967 the picture improved slightly with 535,494 books in circulation via the general department and 172,575 in circulation via the children's department. An increase, but still far short of the 1964 peak.

"We don't know what happened in those two or three years," says Mr. Lort. "It wasn't just Victoria. All across the continent book borrowings just took a staggering tumble. Every expert in the country had a different explanation but I don't think anyone really came up with an answer."

Whatever brought the 1965-67 doldrums it appears to have vanished.

HIGHEST YET

Total borrowings for last year, including all book sections of the library service, were 1,186,732, the highest on record.

Leading the reading parade is Saanich where residents, with 7,000 less registered members than Victoria, out-read their city cousins by 29,986 books in 1968.

The 21,426 registered borrowers in Saanich took 463,761 books from the library shelves (as compared with 413,647 in 1967) while 28,246 borrowers in Victoria mustered the time to read 433,775 books.

Saanich has been out-reading Victoria since 1966 when 388,132 books went there and only 356,177 to city dwellers.

Reading habits are improving in all sections of the Greater Victoria area with the following totals registered in 1968. The 1967 borrowings are in brackets.

Central Saanich, 56,052 (44,272); Esquimalt, 53,055 (45,240); Oak Bay, 171,130 (156,435) and View Royal, 7,602 (5,968).

Book borrowings were not the only library services to show an increase.

The reference department answered 39,943 questions compared with 29,761 in 1967. Films borrowed jumped to 2,989 as compared with 2,367 the year previous.

Paintings in circulations totalled 3,246 compared with 2,660 in 1967 and records on loan jumped to 25,346 over the 19,780 borrowed in 1967.

One Reduction In Oak Bay On Assessment

Five Conduct Losing Fight

Only one of six appeals heard this morning by the assessment court of revision in Oak Bay was successful.

The reduction was for $220 for a property on Transit Road.

As the appeals neared their completion 34 have been unsuccessful and four successful.

Several times during the morning court chairman Alan Bigelow said the appeals boiled down to the true market value of the property. The court was not concerned with percentage increases or the amount of taxes paid.

The appellants had to show their property was worth less than the assessor said.

Protection Request 'Routine'

Oak Bay police today discounted a Vancouver news report which tended to add more mystery to the case of missing city businessman William Osland.

The story said Mr. Osland's business partner David Hummel had asked for police protection for his family before he left on a business trip to Mexico on Feb. 8.

Oak Bay Police Chief John Green said Mr. Hummel, a city lawyer, had merely asked police to keep an eye on his house and family during his absence.

Chief Green said the same request is made by many husbands when they go out of town — "we just drive by, we don't even stop."

He said there was no request for police officers to be stationed at the Hummel home and no reason why such a request should be made.

Police are frank, however, in their assumption that foul play is involved in the disappearance of Mr. Osland Feb. 3. His mother is convinced he has been murdered.

He disappeared after saying he was going to see the ship R. M. Emery, of which he was part owner, before it was towed to San Francisco for remodelling as a marine attraction.

REWARDS

Mr. Oslund, 35-year-old father of two, vanished. His car was found in a parking lot with his keys and his briefcase inside. Rewards have been offered.

Last week Mr. Osland's family posted a $1,000 reward for information leading to his location and his firm Diversified Management and Development said it would post a similar reward last Monday if he was still missing.

An employee of the firm today could not confirm whether the second reward has yet been offered. He said all the firm's directors are out of town.

Review Planned On Parking Fee

POTHOLE PROSE reaches classical heights in Greater Victoria these days. Residents say we've got potholes big as bathtubs, potholes big as moon craters, potholes with tenders out for bridges, potholes they're measuring for ferries. Now the camera proves it can lie as delightfully as a typewriter. There's a pothole, above, where the owner of those lily-white hands obvious has gone down for the third time.

Complaints Considered By Hospital

Royal Jubilee Hospital board will review its scale of charges for car parking following a spate of complaints.

Board chairman J. Courtney Haddock said, "We're doing our best to get a proper system. We can't provide free parking."

In recent years the hospital's 450-car parking lot has been controlled by a toll gate which provided unlimited parking when a dime was inserted in a slot.

But since Jan. 1 rates have been set at 15 cents for the first half hour or portion thereof and 10 cents for each succeeding half hour. Persons parking more than four hours pay a flat 75 cents. During the night, between 10 p.m. and 6 a.m. the toll gates are back in use for unlimited parking for 25 cents.

$3,000 WEEKLY

Potential revenue during visiting hours alone, if the lot is fully used for the five-hour period, is at least 20 cents an hour per space. This means an earning power of more than $3,000 a week, more than $150,000 a year.

Such a revenue, invested by the hospital development society, could produce a healthy fund for provision of special furnishings and technical equipment and could be a sizeable relief to property taxpayers.

ABUSED BY PUBLIC

Mr. Haddock said parking earnings already have provided curbs, blacktop and lighting for the hospital grounds. Extra protections for the doctors' parking area has reduced vandalism and theft.

Previous parking arrangements were subject to some abuses by the public. Employees have been restricted from using the main lot but the growth of apartments in the area has contributed some problems.

POOR POOL?

There have been cases where persons going downtown from outlying areas would park there and proceed in one car on a pool basis. Some concern is also felt as to whether the new Eric Martin Institute, which is adjacent, has sufficient parking.

Overflows could create new problems for Jubilee.

Doctors attending the hospital pay a flat fee for parking on a monthly basis.

CHURCH-SPONSORED

New Service to Aid People in Distress

A counselling service for people in trouble will be set up by Greater Victoria Council of Churches.

The idea is to set up a panel of experts — lawyers, doctors, psychiatrists, clergy and businessmen — who will be available to people in distress.

"You could call it a poor man's counselling service," Rev. Dr. Samuel Parsons, executive secretary of the Council of Churches, said today.

"Broadly speaking, men or women applying to the council for help will be referred to the expert most qualified to help them."

STEERING GROUP

At its annual meeting Tuesday, the council set up a steering committee, under the chairmanship of Rev. Albert E. King, to decide how the counselling service should be organized.

It will be modelled on the Pastoral Institute of Calgary and will probably be called the Pastoral Institute of Victoria.

Canon Grahame Baker, rector of St. John's Anglican Church, was re-elected president of the council, with Dr. Parsons as vice-president and executive secretary and Wilfred Spearman, treasurer.

Rev. John Watson of First Baptist Church was re-elected vice-president. Chairmen of committees are Rev. H. B. Ilsey, fellowship; Monsignor Michael O'Connell, inter-faith; Canon Hilary Butler, education; Rev. Bruce Molloy, social action; Rev. Leighton Streight, worship and witness; Bishop Denys Rankilor, public relations.

CHILDREN'S THEME SET FOR PARADE

The Victoria Day Celebrations Association today announced the theme of this year's parade will be children's fantasy.

Mother Goose, Mickey Mouse and dozens of other children's favorites will make their appearance in the May 17 parade.

Application forms for float entries may be obtained from the association office at 202-1029 Douglas St., or by telephoning 382-3912.

Ask The Times

Q. I know the history of Guisseppe Garibaldi, and that at one time he lived in the United States, but no mention is made of his having had any connections with Canada. Who is responsible for having named a mountain in B.C. "Garibaldi"? Was it an Italian? M.M.J.

A. Official records show that the mountain was named by Capt. George Henry Richards about 1860 in honor of the Italian patriot who was at the height of his victories at that time. Capt. Richards had been commissioned by the British Admiralty to chart the West Coast area.

Anyone wishing a question answered is invited to send the question along to the Times, addressed to "Ask the Times" Editor. Questions and answers will be published daily.

All questions should deal with matters of fact and be of general interest. The Times does not undertake to solve conundrums or legal problems. Nor will it attempt to put a value on old coins, stamps or antiques. These should be submitted to a dealer.

Regional Move Opposed

A four-member Greater Victoria Library committee has recommended against library services becoming a Regional Board function at present.

Chairman Brian Tobin and members Aldermen Lily Wilson, Victoria, Frances Elford, Oak Bay and Alan Newberry, Saanich, state however the Regional Board could one day become the library's governing body.

In a two-page report to the library board the committee notes there would be no major difficulties in transferring the administration of library services to the regional group.

But it adds that owing to the limited period of the existing inter-municipal administration, and the limited changes a switch in authority would bring "there would be little purpose in seeking a change at the present time."

The report concludes by saying the door should be left open for future negotiations.

"It is recognized that possible new revenue sources, the growth of the population and other factors, may change the situation in the future. The question of reorganization under the regional district authority therefore remains open in principle and invites further investigation."

For the past three years the once Victoria Public Library has been administered by the four core municipalities of Oak Bay, Esquimalt, Saanich and Victoria with Central Saanich represented on the board by a non-voting member.

The bulk of the revenues required to operate the library come from the municipal governments involved via the Inter-municipal Committee.

Girl Pages Fine But No Mini-Skirts Please!

By PAT DUFOUR

Well, why not girl pages in the B.C. legislature?

Dr. Carron Jameson, chairman of the Greater Victoria school board, and Fred Willway, his Sooke counterpart, think the girls should have a chance.

Peter Bunn, a former chairman of the city board, goes along—provided the girls don't turn up in miniskirts.

Only Mrs. Rubymay Parrott, chairman of the rural Saanich school board, dissented.

They were asked to comment on a charge by Mrs. Eileen Dailly, NDP member for Vancouver, that the government is discriminating against girls by only using boys as pages.

Dr. Jameson said girls "might add a little charm to the house.

"It might help them develop into interesting parliamentarians, or help make them constructive businesswomen."

Mr. Willway said both sexes should have a chance at being pages.

"I don't think there should be any discrimination. The girls do a darned good job on the safety patrols. They're as good, and sometimes better than the boys."

Trustee Bunn said the girls would be as much credit to the district as the boys are.

They'd be a "delightful addition" but they'd have to be the right kind of girls.

"We couldn't have any flamboyant minis . . . or any show like Mrs. Jordan's (Pat Jordan, minister without portfolio) red underwear."

Describing herself as a traditionalist, Mrs. Parrott said, "I think boys look better in uniform and page duties are more in keeping with a boy's personality."

Economically, she sees no injustice in the male monopoly.

"Girls of that age find it much easier to make extra money by baby-sitting and other means."

Ald. Frances Elford of Oak Bay cited the exclusive use of boys as "just another of the little discriminations."

She sees the use of girls as a means of encouraging more women to enter the field of politics.

"The pages have to be good students, just the type of people we want to lead us."

Ald. Elford said if current regulations forbid the use of girls as pages these should be changed, and soon.

From a strictly practical point of view, it may be uniforms, not regulations that finally resolve the issue.

Colin Glover, vice-principal of Reynolds secondary school which provided this year's crop of pages said:

"We were sent the uniforms and had to choose the boys they would fit. Boys are getting bigger these days and we had to disappoint some of the older ones."

You can always lengthen a skirt but everyone knows it's more difficult—and costly—to let out the seams of a tightly-fitting pair of pants.

LEAVING Victoria Saturday is Brigadier Cecil Bonar, superintendent of the Salvation Army men's social and rehabilitation centre at 521 Johnson Street, since 1966. A native of North Sidney, N.S., he has been appointed administator of the Army's Men's Hostel at Sherbourne Street, Toronto—the largest in Canada. "It's a promotion," says Brigadier Bonar, "but I hate leaving—so many good friends in Victoria."

Basement Suites, Duplexes Backed In Saanich Study

By ROGER STONEBANK

A technical committee in Saanich has recommended legalizing basement suites in houses and permitting (legally) up and down duplexes.

But the housing committee, to which it reports, trod carefully Tuesday night.

While recommending the approval, the technical committee chairman's report said that basement suites and conversions to duplex and to suites should be in limited trial areas only and should meet minimum requirements of the National Building Code residential standards.

The housing committee, which reports to council, referred the subject back to the planning department to consider the trial areas and to both the planning department and solicitor for a specific definition of basement suites and the minimum height to be allowed.

FAVORS DUPLEXES

The housing committee individually expressed agreement with permitting up and down duplexes in Saanich. At present they are not legal because the zoning bylaw uses the word "semi-detached."

Assistant municipal planner Gil Laurenson said no one knew the origin of the ban on up and down duplexes, but it was assumed it was a difficulty in defining the difference between a basement suite and an up and down duplex.

One alderman said there is no difficulty in defining the difference—if the suite is above ground level, it's a duplex. If it's below ground level, it's a basement suite.

The housing committee decided to refer back the subject to the planning department for study on lot sizes for up and down duplexes and zoning areas.

On triplexes and quadruplexes, the committee will recommend to council that these be allowed on lots of not less than 10,000 square feet if covered parking is provided for one car per suite and the suites are not less than 600 square feet each.

The committee descussed a number of other items on housing, including the problems of leasing municipal land to non-profit organizations.

Mr. Laurenson showed committee members one developer's plan for row housing which would sell for $16,500 per unit for three or four bedrooms.

The design showed 10 units, five per block, with a road dividing the two and with landscaping and gardens down the centre of the road.

Cars would come into the rear of the units, which would front outwards away from the development.

Mr. Laurenson described the plan as one of the best he has seen of this kind.

Alcoholism And Driving Panel Topic

Drinking and then driving landed 458 Greater Victoria residents in police court last year.

Were they alcoholics, were they gamblers or anti-social—or just insufficiently informed on the risks?

These are questions for discussion at a community exploration of the dangers of drinking and driving which will be held at the YM-YWCA Friday evening and Saturday.

Sponsored by the Greater Victoria Association on Alcoholism the confernece will hear Dr. Charles Simpson, Greater Victoria affiliate of the B.C. Safety Council, as keynote speaker.

Other authorities will discuss preparation of youth for driving, tests for intoxication and laws pertaining to drinking and driving.

President of the association, John Gough, said anyone interested in attending the conference should telephone the Alcoholism Information Centre, 385-4488.

Wouldn't Hurt Even a Mouse

NEWCASTLE ON TYNE, England (AP) — Capt. Monty Muir is a kind-hearted man. He wouldn't even hurt a mouse.

So he pulled up his 112-seat Britannia airliner as it was about to take off for London when he spotted a mouse running over the runway. That meant takeoff was delayed by a few seconds and an entry was needed in the log.

"Delayed due to conflicting traffic," reported Muir.

Before the Magistrate

Six men were each fined $25 in magistrate's court Tuesday for failing to file their 1967 income tax returns.

They were Stewart Taylor, 2319 Belmont; David Chung, 746 Yates; George Watson, 89 Pilot; Alex Patterson, 897 Vernon: William Hall, 3250 Eldon Place, and Willard A. Davis, 4203 Springridge.

"I don't know why I did it," Phyllis Turnbull, 4237 Wilkinson Road, told the court after she pleaded guilty to theft of under $50.

She stole a bracelet, an evening bag and ashtray from The Bay. She was fined $100 or in default one month.

Aubrey A. Nobbs, 1353 Pandora Avenue, pleaded guilty to driving while suspended and failing to remain at the scene of an accident.

He was sentenced to 21 days on each count — not to run concurrently.

Nobbs collided with the rear end of a car on Yates and left the scene of the accident.

Clarence Larsen, 1353 Pandora, who also failed to remain at the scene of an accident, was fined $250 and his licence was suspended.

He was apprehended after he struck a car at the intersection of Burnside and Wilkinson.

Charles A. Mitchell, 999 Ambassador, and Roderick A. White, 332 Vancouver, each were fined $400 for impaired driving.

Built-In Resistance to Change, Says Auditor

OTTAWA (CP) — The cost of billeting 125 officers and men of the Bonaventure during the aircraft carrier's 18-month refit at Lauzon, Que., may have been more than $500,000, the Commons public accounts committee was told Tuesday.

The carrier refit involved 1,500 contracts and came to about $13,000,000. Originally estimate for the work was $8,000,000.

"So we have another $500,000 to add," Alfred Hales (PC—Wellington) said after E. B. Armstrong, deputy minister of defence, gave the figure.

However, Mr. Armstrong said the billeting costs weren't considered by the department to be part of the refit cost.

Lloyd Crouse (PC—South Shore) complained that officials still weren't providing a total cost figure for the refit.

He said the defence and defence production departments had failed to control and record totally the refit cost and were virtually issuing open-end contracts.

"Obviously something must be done to tighten procedures," the Nova Scotia MP said.

G. W. Hunter, deputy minister of defence production, denied Mr. Crouse's allegations of open-edned contracts and "loose estimates."

It had been the Bonaventure's final major refit and the first job of its size handled by officials.

"If we had four Bonaventures, I guess we could have done a better job on the next three," he said.

INTERIM PAY BOOST SUGGESTED BY IWA

VANCOUVER (CP) — Syd Thompson, president of the Vancouver local, said Tuesday the International Woodworkers of America "will have no choice but to demand a reopening of the coast forest industry contract" to seek an interim pay increase.

He said lumber prices are "scandalous" and the workers are entitled to more money.

LAWYER ARGUES NHL CLUB CAN'T MAKE GRADE AT OAKLAND

OWNERS VETO FRANCHISE SHIFT TO VANCOUVER

Bullish About Hockey Interest in Area, Says Campbell

NEW YORK (CP) — Will National League hockey make the grade in Oakland, Calif.?

"No," said Toronto lawyer Edwin Goodman, who tried unsuccessfully Tuesday to persuade the owners of the 12 NHL teams to allow the Oakland franchise to be sold and transferred to Vancouver.

"Yes," said league president Clarence Campbell, citing rising attendance figures and construction of a subway system which will eventually deliver fans from the San Francisco Bay area to the door of Oakland Coliseum.

"I am distinctly bullish about hockey interest in the area," said Campbell.

The owners reaffirmed their determination to operate in the San Francisco Bay area despite the financial difficulties of Oakland Seals, plagued by low attendance figures since joining the circuit as an expansion team two seasons ago.

But the club may change hands. Campbell said "three or four solid offers" have been made to purchase the franchise and continue to operate in the San Francisco Bay area.

"We hope that by March 25 it will be resolved who will operate the franchise," said Campbell. March 25 is the date the NHL governors will meet again, in Miami Beach, Fla.

The governors turned down, by a reported 9-to-3 vote at the closed meeting, the bid by Burrard Hockey Club Ltd. in co-operation with the present owners, San Francisco Seals Ltd., to move the club to Vancouver.

Goodman told the governors that a Burrard survey indicated the NHL team could not succeed in Oakland. He cited the seven competing major-league franchises in baseball, football and basketball and the high proportion of the population which has no interest in hockey because of its ethnic origin.

Nor did the Burrard group believe hockey could succeed in San Francisco as long as the Cow Palace remained the only hockey arena.

He argued that U.S. network television arrangements would not suffer—"for every person watching hockey in the bay area, there would be 50 in the Vancouver area."

And the Vancouver group offered to reimburse the other NHL clubs for the extra travel cost involved in playing in Vancouver, 800 miles north of Oakland.

A motion by Frank Tatum, representing Oakland, that the frachise be moved to Vancouver was seconded by Toronto. It was learned that the third favorable vote came from Montreal. The other nine clubs turned it down.

"You can't leave one partner out in limbo," said Campbell, asked for the reasons behind the turndown. Jack Kent Cooke's Los Angeles Kings would be left in an isolated position, more than 300 miles south of Oakland, and Campbell said scheduling problems would be significant.

Teams visiting the West Coast now have an easy overnight jaunt between Los Angeles and Oakland. An extra day would have to be provided for the 1,300-mile trip between Los Angeles and Vancouver. Teams must have time for land travel if planes are grounded.

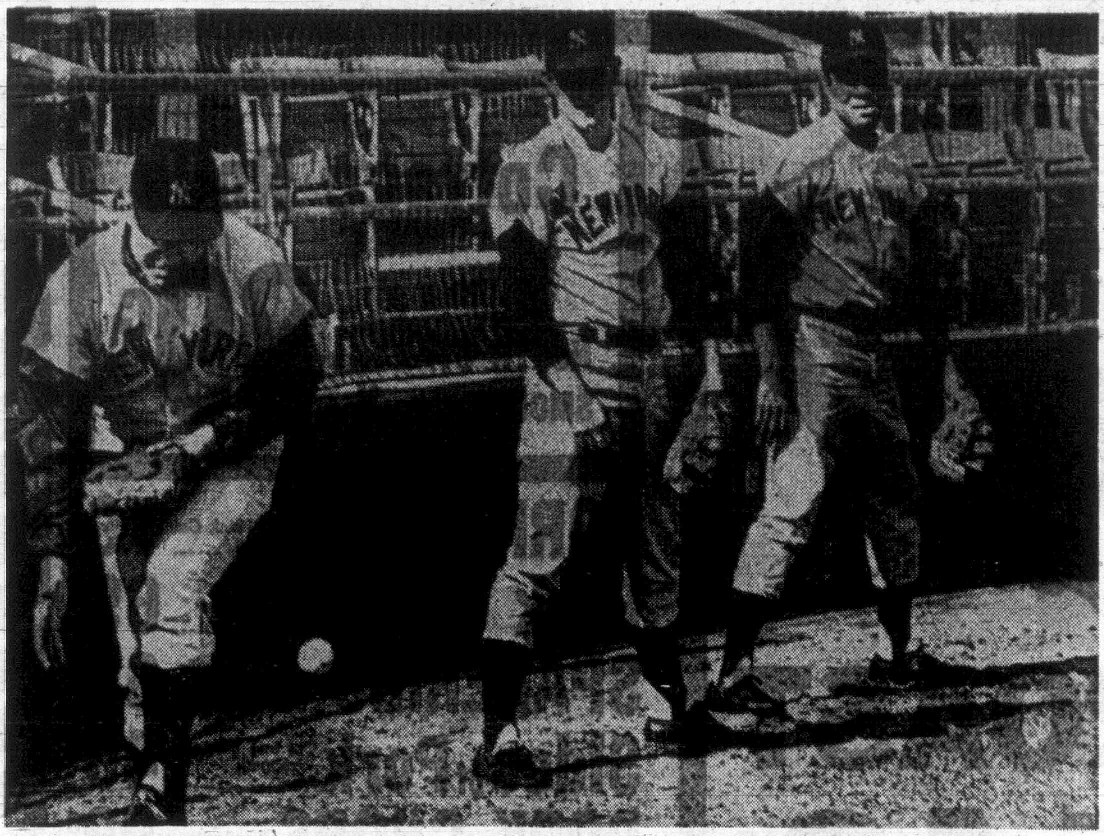
The Burrard offer of compensation for extra travel costs "would be an unreasonable impost" againnst the Vancouver club, Campbell added. He said the $18,000 extra cost mentioned by a Vancouver representative sounded low.

Campbell also noted that the Seals had climbed to second place in the West Division this season and that management now is doing a good promotion job.

"It would be a dreadful thing to move the team when it is getting stronger," he said.

Campbell said Oakland had fulfilled a commitment to Labatt's, the Canadian brewing firm, in seeking the transfer. Labatt's had made a large loan to the Oakland club to help it over last year's rough spots. The NHL had turned down the application and the decision was irrevocable.

However Vancouver remains at the top of the list for a team when the NHL expands again.



BOYCOTT EASES WORK LOAD ON COACHES

Break in Dispute Today Or Strike Seems Certain

NEW YORK (AP)—A break in the dispute between major league baseball owners and players may come today. If it does not, a strike by the players appears certain.

Marvin Miller, executive director of the players' association, said Tuesday he expects to receive today the result of his poll of the players' executive comimttee on whether to accept the owners' latest offer in the pension dispute.

Miller has recommended that the committee reject the owners' offer of Monday, increasing the players' pension package to $5,300,000 a year compared to the $6,500,000 yearly the players want.

The owners' latest offer came after they had rejected Miller's offer to submit the pension dispute to binding arbitation.

John Gaherin, head of the owners' negotiating committee, said the owners' latest offer would increase benefits for 10-year players to $590 a month from $500. The players seek $600, plus various improvements in health and insurance benefits.

The big-name players, who have said they will refuse to report to spring training until the pension squabble is settled, have until March 1, the official date for holdouts and the actual strike deadline.

Two Orioles on Deck As More Camps Open

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Five more major league baseball spring training camps open in Florida and Arizona today, and at least two players plan to report despite the current pension dispute between the club owners and the players' association.

The two are pitchers Pete Richert and Jim Palmer of Baltimore Orioles.

"I can't buy a house and strike at the same time," Richert told the Baltimore Morning Sun. He is a left-hander used mostly in relief.

Palmer, a right-hander who had a big season in 1966 and then suffered a sore arm, said: "I've got to show them I can pitch. So I'm going to sign and start workouts on schedule."

The Orioles are training at Miami, Fla.

BAILEY EXPECTED

There was no indication of what players would show at the other four camps slated to open.

They are Kansas City at Fort Myers, Fla., Oakland at Mesa, Ariz., Atlanta at West Palm Beach, Fla., and Pittsburgh at Brandeton, Fla.

No veterans were on hand Tuesday at the opening of the New York Yankee camp in Fort Lauderdale, Fla., but Bob Bailey, expected to be the regular right fielder, was present at West Palm Beach, Fla., where Montreal Expos started training.

Only two veterans, catcher Russ Nixon and relief pitcher Dan Osinski, worked out with the rookies for Chicago White Sox at Sarasota, Fla. The White Sox camp opened last Friday.

Peterson Watches Off-Track Outfits

Attorney-General Leslie Peterson said Tuesday his department is keeping a close watch on two Vancouver outfits that have indicated they plan to become off-track betting shops.

He was commenting on the Supreme Court of Canda's decision to permit a Welland, Ont., operating to continue.

The court upheld decisions of various Ontario courts that the operation — making bets for a fee — did not represent bookmaking — betting against a private operator.

Mr. Peterson told reporters he is "concerned with the possible effects of this decision.

"If this practice became prevalent across Canada, it may be difficult to control pari-mutuel betting."

TWO DANGERS

There were two dangers. First, it would be difficult to ensure that bets placed in the shop ever got to the track. Second, it left these operations open to muscle from organized crime.

Asked whether the government might consider branch pari-mutuels, like the smaller offices of chartered banks, Mr. Peterson said it would be a difficult and expensive operation to police.

Two Vancouver companies now are seeking to be established as off-track betting shops and the attorney-general said he would not approve without "a full police investigation."

Outspoken Coach Fined, Suspended

CALGARY (CP) — Ron Butlin, president of the Western Canada Hockey League, fined Scotty Munro, coach of the Calgary Centennials, $150 Tuesday and suspended him for one game.

Butlin said the fine and suspension were imposed on Munro for continuing an argument over a bench penalty and for not returning his team to the ice when told to do so by the referee.

A faceoff occurred and Estevan shot the puck into the Calgary net while the argument was continuing. Calgary won 5-3.

CODE CHANGE EXPECTED TO OUTLAW BET SHOPS

TORONTO (CP)—Ontario Attorney-General Arthur Wishart says he expects the federal government will amend the Criminal Code to outlaw off-track betting shops.

Wishart told the legislature Tuesday he has discussed the matter with Justice Minister John Turner "and our recommendation was to amend the code to make such activities illegal."

The Supreme Court of Canada refused Monday to hear a Crown appeal against lower court decisions which said two Welland, Ont., men broke the law in accepting bets at an off-track office and then placing them at the Fort Erie racetrack for a fee.

Ramos Youngest To Wear Crown

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The new lightweight champion of the world is Mando Ramos, at 20 the youngest ever to reach the top of the 135-pound division.

The Long Beach, Calif., native won the title when he stopped Teo Cruz, 31, of the Dominican Republic in the 11th round of their scheduled 15-round fight Tuesday night. Cruz weighed 134¾ Ramos 134½.

Ramos wanted to win the battle as a 19-year-old last September against the champion, Cruz.

"Sorry about that," quipped Mando when reminded of the quest which failed in the first fight with the man from Santo Domingo.

Ramos ripped open an ugly gash over Teo's left eye in the eighth round. He kept reopening it, as well as slicing a smaller cut under the eye, until the bloody fight was stopped with 19 seconds remaining in the 11th.

Under California rules, it goes as a knockout, only the second suffered by Cruz in more than a decade as a professional fighter.

RIGHT CUTS CRUZ

"I cut him with a right hand as he came in," said Ramos whose ring span of four years covers only 26 engagements.

"We'll ask for a rematch. After all, we gave him two shots at the title," said Peter Martinez, Teo's manager.

Said Mrs. Aileen Eaton, the lady promoter for the Olympic Boxing Club:

"I might put on a rematch if the price was right."

The bout attracted 14,183 fans who paid $140,732.

FELSTEIN LOSES

In a preliminary bout, Bob (Pretty Boy) Felstein, a Toronto heavyweight now fighting out of Buffalo, N.Y., dropped a 10-round decision to George (Scrap Iron) Johnson of Los Angeles.

Johnson weighed 220, Felstein 197.

Felstein opened a cut over Johnson's right eye in the ninth round but Johnson's body attack won the verdict.

Top spot in the Vancouver Island Hockey League will be at stake tonight as University of Victoria Vikings clash with Stockers North Americans in the opening game of a doubleheader at Esquimalt Sports Centre.

Late Surge by Labs Fails to Catch Lions

Second-running Red Lion Inn held off a determined surge in the last half Tuesday to edge leading Labatts 57-55 in Victoria Senior Men's Basketball League play at Mt. Douglas High School.

In the other game, Colony Motor Inn downed last-place Farmer Construction 74-62 to strengthen a grasp on third spot.

Bill Spotswood fired 16 points in pacing the Red Lion victory while Jack Newnham added 10. All eight Lion players hit the scoresheet with at least two points during the all-out effort which held on to a 26-23 half-time lead for the win. Darrell Lorimer led Labs with 18 points.

At one point Red Lion led 50-36 before Labatts started the rally only ended by the final buzzer.

Jim Cunningham paced the Colony victory with 22 points while Gary Woodburn added 14 and Ken McCulloch 12. Pete Simmonds topped Farmers with 21 points.

Facilities would also include top-class accommodation for visiting teams and a national sports school with a permanent staff of coaches.

Bruins Face Penguins To Open Crucial Trip

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Boston Bruins have been one of the hottest teams in the National Hockey League for most of the season, despite injuries to some key players. But the next seven days could prove crucial for the team, now tied for first place with Montreal Canadiens in the Eastern Division.

The Bruins had lost only one game since the beginning of the year until the weekend's two straight losses—the first successive losses for the team since the season started.

Tonight, with some of their top players still out with injuries, the team starts a four-game road trip without their leading scorer, Phil Esposito, suspended Monday for two games after a league inquiry into his attack on referee Bob Sloan in Boston Feb. 8.

The Bruins start their road trip tonight with a game against last-place Pittsburgh Penguins of the Western Division.

MEET LEAFS TONIGHT

The Canadiens tackle the fifth-place Maple Leafs tonight in Toronto and their captain, Jean Beliveau, is on a scoring spree.

Beliveau, who scored four goals against Los Angeles Kings last week, has averaged a goal a game in his team's last seven games in which they won five and tied two.

In other games tonight, Detroit Red Wings meet the Rangers at New York, Chicago Black Hawks play at Oakland, Philadelphia Flyers are at St. Louis and Los Angeles Kings tackle the North Stars at Minnesota.

Centuries Console West Indies Squad

SYDNEY, Australia (Reuters) — Centuries by Gary Sobers and Seymour Nurse consoled the West Indies today as it slid nearer to defeat against Australia in the fifth cricket test match here.

Barring intervention by the weather Australia, which leads the five-match series 2-1 and with one match drawn, seems certain to clinch victory on the sixth and final day Tuesday.

The West Indies, left the impossible task of scoring 735 runs in 10 hours to win, scored 303 runs for seven wickets in four hours by close tonight.

The first three West Indian wickets crashed for only 30 runs in 30 minutes before Sobers arrived at the crease to hammer 113 in 144 minutes with 20 fours.

Later Nurse reached 100 not out to take the game into the last day and balk Australian efforts to win tonight.

Earlier Australia declared its second innings at lunch with the score 394 runs for eight wickets made in even time.

Ian Redpath (132) joined Doug Walters as a century maker and their fourth wicket stand was worth 209 runs.

With one day to go the West Indians are still trailing by 431 runs with only three second-innings wickets remaining.

Naimark Wins Playoff

CAMPBELL RIVER, B.C. (CP) — The Barry Naimark rink of Vancouver defeated John Hessell of Quesnel 12-5 and 6-5 Tuesday to win the mixed curling championship of British Columbia.

Naimark now goes into the Canadian Mixed Championships in Kitchener, Ont., March 10-14.

Naimark, who breezed through to the coastal area crown with six straight victories last weekend, had too much finesse for the interior champions Tuesday.

Although the second game was close, Naimark broke it open by scoring three on the seventh end to take a lead he never gave up.

Naimark was calling the shots for rinkmates Bobbie Wallace, Terry Paulson and Dell-Jean Miller.

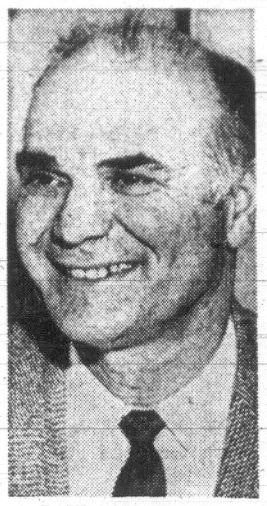
Training Course Tough But Pupils Are Eager



PAUL PRESIDENTE
. . . conducts course

By STEWART LANG

It was short, sharp and eye-opening!

Such was one man's opinion of the first hunter-training instructor's course offered in British Columbia under the sponsorship of the fish and wildlife branch.

As before any exam, there was some tension in the air Monday night at the provincal museum prior to tackling the two-hour long test of woods-lore that culminated about nine hours of lectures, slides and films.

During the first lecture, Paul Presidente, hunter-training officer for B.C. and originator of the program, said: "There is no doubt about it, you're going to have to study."

This was perhaps an understatement.

Passing mark in the exam, which contained 200 questions, was set at 85 per cent to ensure high calibre graduates, who will be qualified to conduct future training courses for hunters.

In spite of this toughness, enthusiasm for the subject matter never waned. All of the 31 men who started the course wrote the exam.

Occupations of those taking the course varied considerably, showing the depth of interest in hunting and fishing in the Greater Victoria area.

Students included an electrician, printer, office manager, several armed forces personnel, a school principal, conservation officer, mink rancher, a biology graduate student, shipwright, design technician, blacksmith and even a cook.

On Experimental Basis for One Year

Although there were no women taking this course, Presidente said that in other provinces and in the United States, women not only took the course but often outperformed the men.

The only major criticism that could be levelled at the format would hinge on time.

There just wasn't enough time within nine hours to cover the varied subject matter as well as take in slides and films.

Perhaps five nights, three hours a night, might provide a better foundation from which to prepare for the examination.

However, the course was well presented and the training manual is extensive enough to serve the would-be instructor with an estimate of his knowledge before taking the course.

It will also be valuable as a reference source when conducting classes.

"The program is going to be on an experimental basis for one year," said Presidente.

"After the year we will pool all critiques on the course and form a committee to discuss the pros and cons of each.

"On the basis of these criticisms," said Presidente, "additions and deletions will be made."

Presidente said that the branch is aiming at a very high standard, which may be "watered-down" if necessary. In other provinces and states, similar courses often had to be upgraded extensively.

"As we go along, we're definitely going to improve," stated Presidente.

Another course will be held in Victoria if enough applications are received by Presidente. If not, classes will be moved to Duncan, Campbell River and the mainland.

Champs Oust Victoria Rink In 'A' Final

PRINCE GEORGE (CP) — Del Collin (Bob Bean, Stew Thompson, Brian Copp) of Prince George won the B.C. police curling championship here Tuesday by defeating Moe Hill of Victoria and Fred Ellis of Vancouver.

Collins eliminated the Victoria rink in the "A" event final, scoring two on the home end for a 7-6 decision, then beat Ellis, 8-6, in the "B" final.

The Prince George rink will try for the Canadian championship in New Westminster March 3-4.

Peters Paces Victoria Win

Keith Peters handed Victoria its winning margin during a 12-3 victory over hosting Oak Bay in Inter-High School Senior "B" Rugby League action on Tuesday.

Peters booted two penalty goals and scored a try while Skip Porteous chipped in another try.

Garry Carvell scored all of Oak Bay's points with a penalty goal.

Canucks Move Up On Tie at Phoenix

Vancouver Canucks moved a step closer to the front-running Portland Buckaroos in the Western Hockey League race Tuesday night by playing to a 2-2 tie with the Roadrunners at Phoenix.

Veteran Tom McVie, playing in his 700th WHL game, counted a second-period goal to give Phoenix the tie in the close-checking struggle. McVie tipped in Wayne Carleton's pass at 9:08 of the middle session before 4,054 spectators.

Canucks now have 65 points, four behind Portland and four ahead of San Diego Gulls.

Bob Charlebois also scored for Phoenix while Andy Bathgate and Jim McKinney counted for Vancouver.

Brian Hextall collected an assist on McKinney's goal to climb into a fifth-place tie with San Diego's Willie O'Ree in the scoring race.

SAUNDERS SETS PACE

Portland clubmates Bill Saunders and Art Jones continue to run one-two in the point chase.

Saunders earned five points during the past week to boost his total to 83 points on 37 goals and 46 assists. Jones is four points behind and eight ahead of Seattle's Guyle Fielder, who includes the league-leading assist total of 56 in his 71 points.

Two other Portland players top statistics. Goalie Jim McLeod has the best goals-against average (2.41) and defenceman Connie Madigan leads the penalty list with 154 minutes.

Tennis Boycott Avoided

NEW YORK (AP) — The United States Lawn Tennis Association and the professional promoters reached an agreement Tuesday on open tournaments that may set a pattern and prevent threatened boycotts.

But it's just temporary, the promoters warned, and unless the International Federation accedes to their additional demands the pros might snub open events in the future.

ANNOUNCE PACT

'Announcement of an agreement under which the pros agree to play in the four remaining U.S. Opens, including the National Championships at Forest Hills, was made jointly by Bob Malaga, executive assistant to the president of the USGA; George MacCall of Los Angeles, president of the National Tennis League, and Bob Briner, executive director of World Championship Tennis, Inc.

TERMS NOT DISCLOSED

Exact terms of the agreement were not disclosed but it was learned that the USLTA agreed to contribute about $50,000 to be equally divided between the two pro groups for travel and expenses.

MacCall and Briner prepared to go to London where they will confer with officials of other countries. They are expected to demand the same arrangement, around $12,000 extra for expenses, from the other sponsors. In all, there will be 32 open tournaments this year.

Combination Tops Bonspiel

COURTENAY — Ken Musket and Dunc Ross of the host club formed a foursome with Elmer Boe and Doug Rafter of Nanaimo to win the primary Labatt's event Sunday in the 10th annual men's bonspiel at Comox Valley Curling Club.

The Nanaimo quartet of Bill Good, Winston Allen, Bob Kosich and Bill Ribbons was defeated in the final while rinks skipped by Bill Balance and Gus Palmason of the host club were downed in the semi-finals.

Art Meyers scooped up the second of three victories for CVCC by besting Warren Paul of Port Alberni in the "B" event.

Ti Conti of Campbell River collected the "C" event award with an extra-end victory over a Victoria rink entered by Wayne Buck and skipped by Keith MacKenzie.

Ralph Boyd of Campbell River downed Lorne Vanetta of CVCC to win the "D" event.

Dave Paterson of CVCC captured the other event by besting George Gudbranson of Ucluelet.

MAYFAIR CENTRE

Bennett Promises NWT Rail Service

INUVIK, N.W.T. (CP) — If the Northwest Territories and the Yukon were part of British Columbia, the B.C. government would extend railroad facilities into these territories, Premier W. A. C Bennett said in a letter published in the Jan 7 edition of a weekly newspaper published here.

Mr. Bennett was replying to a list of five questions submitted by publisher Tom Butters of The Drum to the premier asking his views on his proposal to assume political responsibility for the future development of Canada's western territories, and his suggestion that B.C. extend the province's boundaries northward to the Arctic Ocean.

The publisher asked "would not some B.C.-Alaska-Yukon territory-Northwest Territory 'common market' arrangement be more in line with B.C.'s collective interests?"

LIST OF QUESTIONS

The premier replied "British Columbia government cannot spend money outside its territory and cannot build its railroad outside of its boundaries because the province would lose control of this great railroad which is being used to develop northern British Columbia."

"Highway construction, as well as other capital expenditures would be carried out, and this is the reason a common market arrangement would not work" the premier said.

Mr. Bennett said that "while the capital would be Victoria, provincial government agents who have knowledge of the Yukon and Northwest Territories would be appointed to reside in these areas with the necessary staff.

LARGE CASH RESERVE

Answering a question on how the B.C. government would see development in the territories compatible with the province's economic objectives, the premier replied, "The development must be ahead of opening up of your resources or else your resource development would be held back. British Columbia can finance development. It has no government debt. Highways, bridges, tunnels and buildings are all paid for and British Columbia does not owe any bank, and has large cash reserves."

The premier said he was confident that when seeking re-election, the B.C. voter would support his proposal to the extent of underwriting the costs of northern development at its present accelerating pace.

Faster Work Urged On Insurance Study

Alex Macdonald, deputy leader of the New Democratic Party, Tuesday urged the committee studying the Wootton report on auto insurance to "buckle down and work."

He told the second meeting of the committee he believed it possible for suitable legislation to be presented to the House before the March 7 deadline placed on the committee's deliberations.

The meeting lasted 14 minutes.

Mr. Macdonald moved that Tom Cantell, B.C. superintendent of insurance, be asked to appear before the committee Friday morning.

The deputy leader said it would take a while for private organizations to prepare their presentations so Mr. Cantell's appearance soon would get the ball rolling.

DEADLINE RAPPED

Committee chairman Herb Capozzi (SC—Vancouver Centre) and others have criticized the deadline, saying it makes it virtually impossible for good legislation to be drawn from the lengthy royal commission report.

The report was released in November. Among other things, it recommends compulsory no-fault auto insurance which would see damage claims paid no matter who was to blame in an accident.

There has been an indication this recommendation might be broadened to permit a claimant the alternative of filing suit for damages.

The New Democrats are seeking publicly-owned and operated insurance and introduced legislation earlier in the session to put such a scheme into effect. They have come under fire for the move because some MLAs believe it makes it difficult for the committee to approach the report openly when legislation is already before the House.

Mr. Macdonald defended the deadline, saying "our job is to decide and propose legislation that can be enacted this session."

The committee should get to work and "hear these submissions so we can report out."

Mr. Cantell will be asked to comment on the recommendations of the Wootton Commission and answer questions from committee members.

Illegal Sewer Connections To Be Traced

Oak Bay council will ask the City of Victoria to smoke out illegal sewer connections in a continuing study of the municipality's surface water and sewage drainage systems, Mayor Fred Hawes said today.

Engineers have found 40 to 50 improper connections of surface water drains into the sanitary sewer system running into the northwest outfall at McMicking Point.

They want now to determine how many such infractions there are in the city's section of the sewer, by smoke testing.

The system services about 1,000 acres of the northeast section of the city, 300 acres in the Saanich panhandle between the city and Oak Bay, and about 1,200 acres of Oak Bay land, the mayor said.

SMOKE TESTING

Smoke testing of the system last year found the improper connections "most south of Oak Bay Avenue," he said. The area is built up with older homes.

The sewer is operating at about one-quarter of capacity if only the sewage flow is taken into account. But added volumes of surface water drainage, particularly during periods of heavy runoff, are stretching the capacity.

Many of the connections are made directly into the sewer system because basements were too low for proper connections to surface drains, Mayor Hawes said.

Municipal bylaws require separate connections for each type of drainage.

"At that time (of construction) the builders took the least difficult way of correcting the wrong level of basements," the mayor said.

"But the problem will have to be corrected. The only way to do that is to put in sumps to raise the water to the level of surface drains."

No decision on enforcement of the bylaw requiring proper connections has yet been made, but Oak Bay has the power to prosecute, he said.

The municipality first wants the city to conduct a study of its section of the system to determine how many properties are improperly connected.

Borman Meets Descendant Of Columbus

MADRID (AP) — Moon astronaut Col. Frank Borman Monday met a descendant of Christopher Columbus as he placed a wreath at the foot of a towering statue here to the discoverer of the Americas.

Borman, who is touring Europe, was welcomed at the Plaza Colon by Cristobal Colon de Carvajal y Maroto, 17th Duke of Veragua and hereditary Admiral of the Ocean Sea. The title was created in 1537 for Diego Columbus, the explorer's son.

Parkinson's Disease Drug Brings Hope to Afflicted

By STUART AVERBACH

WASHINGTON (WP) — A new drug that has brought "dramatic improvement" to sufferers from Parkinson's disease was hailed here as "the most important contribution to medical therapy of neurologic diseases in 50 years."

The editorial praise in the usually conservative New England Journal of Medicine followed the publication of a report that 20 out of 28 patients treated over two years with the drug L-Dopa showed "marked or dramatic improvement."

The drug, which has shown similar results in other trials in the nation, is available only for research.

But an official of the National Institute of Neurological Diseases and Stroke predicted that pressure from Parkinsonian patients may push the drug on the market by next summer.

As recently as 1966, doctors believed that there were no promising new treatments for Parkinson's disease, which strikes as many as 40,000 Americans each year. There are an estimated 1 million Parkinsonian sufferers in the nation.

AFFECTS CONTROL

Parkinson's, a brain disease, starts with tremors that increase until the patient loses muscle control and becomes rigid. In many cases it is fatal.

In his New England Journal editorial, Boston neurologist Dr. David C. Poskanzer said L-Dopa has opened "a new era of therapy" for Parkinsonians.

The report published in Thursday's New England Journal was by Drs. George C. Cotzias, Paul S. Papavasiliou and Rosemary Gellene, all of the Medical Research Centre of Brookhaven (L.I.), National Laboratory.

They reported that two patients—a carpenter and a trial lawyer—have returned to work after being treated with L-Dopa.

In order for the treatment to succeed, the doctors stated, doses of L-Dopa must be gradually increased until each patient is taking a large amount.

The tremors began disappearing in the reverse of the order they appeared—first the paralysis, then the muscle rigidity and then the tremors.

Of the 28 patients in the study, the doctors said that 10 showed "dramatic" improvement, 10 "marked" improvement, four "moderate" improvement and four "modest" improvement.

Dr. Poskanzer said this study gives a "clear demonstration that L-Dopa can effectively reverse most of the disabling symptoms of Parkinson's syndrome and that it can be given over a long period at an exceedingly high dosage if levels are increased slowly."

Other studies — including those of Dr. Melvin Yahr at Columbia University and Dr. Benjamin Boshes of Northwestern University — have shown similar results.

Last fall, the National Institutes of Health planned a three-year, 3.3 million dollar study of L-Dopa that would have included 600 patients at 20 medical centres.

This test has been revised, an NIH official said, because the trials around the country have shown such good results. Instead, NIH will try to prove the safety of L-Dopa through a computerized study of the 350 patients who have received treatment with L-Dopa.

Borrowed $370,000

SEATTLE (AP) — Dave Beck, former teamsters union boss, admitted at his trial in U.S. tax court Monday he borrowed $370,000 from the union between 1943-53 but said it was to pay his personal bills and other debts while travelling.

NDP DEMANDS YELLOWKNIFE HOSTEL PROBE

Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Regulations governing conduct at the territorial student residence in Yellowknife were described Tuesday as being as stringent as those in Canadian prisons.

David Lewis, acting New Democrat leader in Parliament, demanded that Northern Affairs Minister Jean Chretien investigate the rules covering "every detail of behavior" of the students living in Akaitcho Hall.

This is the hostel attached to Sir John Franklin school in Yellowknife where some 200 young people from the surrounding territory receive training.

Mr. Lewis, who said he had never been to Yellowknife, described some of the regulations under which these students live as "outrageously degrading" and reminiscent of the 19th century.

"I can't think of prison regulations that are more stringent," he said.

DELUGE COMING

Astronauts Get Blame For Storms

By ELIZABETH FORBES

Forbes

When May Baldwin of Campbell River bustled into Victoria at the height of our unseasonal winter weather, she propounded a theory as to reasons for the surprising siege of drifting snow and near-zero winds. It's a theory that has been whispered around by the man on the street ever since the first Sputnik was launched. It's also one that has been pooh-poohed by scientific minds.

As May Baldwin put it, when she went to school "a long time ago," she learned there was "a protective layer of something-or-other" around the planet Earth. And, if anything happened to destroy or damage that protection — like "punching holes in it," we'd soon know about it.

We listened to May. Agreed that it could be a solution (although perhaps an over-simplified one) to present fickle weather patterns around the world. Then warned her that she would never get the scientific minds to accept her theory.

Mrs. Baldwin merely shrugged and said "wait and see . . . the time will come."

We laughed.

* * *

Now, less than a month later, I have before me an article out of London, England, that gives the opinion of a Norfolk consultant long-range weather forecaster named Cecil Tibbitt.

Mr. Tibbitt is convinced that spacecraft cause unusual weather patterns by producing a downthrust that forces moisture out of the atmosphere prematurely.

He expects another serious flood in Britain in the spring "unless all forms of outer space activity are stopped until after April 20."

Later, he forecasts, a four-month drought will affect the whole northern hemisphere, though it may occur at different times of the year in different places.

The article was sparked by excessive rainfall in Britain during the past 12 months. It gives figures from the meteorological office showing that for a fourth consecutive year general rainfall over England and Wales has been "more excessive than average."

* * *

In St. James's Park, London, it has been measured as 28 per cent above the average taken since 1916.

Last March, 10 inches of rain fell in two days in the Scottish highlands. In July a single storm brought severe flooding to southwest England, with 6.5 inches in a day. In September two days of rain turned southeast England into a disaster area.

Gardens have been turned into marshlands, sandbag defences have been erected along rivers and streams, timber houses have developed bloat through the excessive damp. And, as the article was written there appeared to be no sign of the rain stopping.

No wonder then that Mr. Tibbitt's long-range forecast of a drought looked good to the writer of the article, John Allan May, who moaned in black ink that his double garage doors had swollen sideways so the two parts of the lock clashed and the doors would not close.

If it happens and a drought does hit the whole northern hemisphere, then the belief that outer space activity has something to do with present weather patterns could become even more firmly fixed in the mind of the man in the street.

And, of course, next time May Baldwin bustles into town, she'll be able to say "I told you so."

Quebec Faces Disadvantage

TORONTO (CP) — Quebec Education Minister Jean-Guy Cardinal says French-speaking Quebecers would be at a numerical disadvantage if Quebec separated from Canada.

"We are 6,000,000 people speaking French in Canada and we are one province of 10. If we separated we'll be in the same position, but among 220,000,000 people speaking English in North America."

Mr. Cardinal was speaking during a program on Toronto radio station CFRB.

The interview was pre-recorded in Ottawa.

He said he is not optimistic about federal legislation, such as the official languages bill, to protect French-speaking minorities in other provinces.

"The best way to help them will be not to forget them, but to have a strong Quebec who will represent in Canada the French culture—everything which is desired by those minorities."

Log Export Ban Sought by IWA

VANCOUVER (CP) — The International Woodworkers of America Tuesday underlined their plea for a six-month ban on log exports from British Columbia in a telegram to Jack Davis, federal forestry minister.

The union earlier asked Ray Williston, provincial lands and forests minister, for an end to overtime permits, requested by some coastal logging firms to meet sales requirements.

The union has been fighting company plans for a six-day week for loggers in order to build up a log inventory.

Jack Moore, regional IWA president, said Tuesday he sent a telegram to Mr. Davis warning him that many lumber manufacturing plants in B.C. are being closed down or are about to close down due to a shortage of logs, thereby threatening the livelihood of workers in the industry.

"It is most unjust that while many workers are being threatened with unemployment your government allows jobs to be exported to Japan in the form of raw logs," the telegram said.

"We respectfully request that your government place a ban on export of logs for a six month period."

The unions claims there is no need for overtime in the industry because an estimated 6,000 workers are now idle because many logging camps are still snowed in.

It says these men should be put to work in camps that are still operating.

MLA SUGGESTS TOBOGGANIST DRIVERS' TEST

Dudley Little (SC—Skeena) Tuesday told the legislature the government should ban persons from operating power toboggans unless they hold a valid driver's licence.

"Nonsense," shouted other Social Credit MLAs around Mr. Little.

"How can a 10-year-old have a driver's licence?" asked Don Phillips (SC—Peace River South).

"He shouldn't," retorted Mr. Little, who added a 10-year-old shouldn't be driving a power toboggan.

He said many accidents with such machines are caused by persons foolishly or in ignorance operating them.

Amid laughter Mr. Little admitted he was speaking from experience.

Mr. Little had arrived at the House in a wheelchair, one leg in a cast.

He broke it recently while operating a power toboggan.

TEACHER HARASSMENT 'DEAD AS THE DODO'

VANCOUVER (CP) — The chairman of the board of governors at Simon Fraser University Tuesday described alleged harassment of moderates at the campus in suburban Burnaby as "dead as the dodo."

Richard E. Lester said the board will discuss the issue Thursday. But "what is the point of an investigation now when the person involved did not want to press the matter at the time?"

Meanwhile, 18 members of the department of political science, sociology and anthropology issued a statement saying news stories about the reported threats damage them and the department.

Last Thursday, Allan Cunningham, history professor at SFU, said in a speech that activists on the SFU campus had used threats in an attempt to intimidate faculty who don't hold the same views.

Pullout From NATO Urged in VOW Brief

OTTAWA (CP) — The Voice of Women said today Canada should get out of NATO, terminate the NORAD agreement and adopt a nonaligned foreign policy.

The organization also called in a brief presented to External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp for immediate recognition of Communist China and Canadian support for Peking's admission to the United Nations.

The VoW told Mr. Sharp that NATO is obsolete, increases cold war tensions, and limits the freedom of action of its smaller members.

NORAD, it said, makes no contribution to Canadian or continental security. It was costly, wasteful and detrimental to Canadian economic development. It seriously impaired Canada's territorial and political integrity. It hampered and obstructed Canada's ability to pursue its basic foreign policy objectives.

"A non-aligned foreign policy based on disarmament and directed towards the promotion of equal human rights for all people is the only alternative to ultimate disaster," said the VoW brief.

It advocated a rapid increase in Canadian external aid, channelled through the United Nations.

THERMAL electric plant using low-grade coal from the Kaiser operations at Natal is under consideration, says Dr. Gordon Shrum, co-chairman of B.C. Hydro. The hydro authority has been in contact with Calgary Power Ltd. because B.C. would not develop the project alone.

Mid-Term Break At Uvic Next Week

Classes at the University of Victoria will cease for two days next week for a regular mid-term work study break.

The holiday from classes, until this year only one day in length, gives students a long weekend to catch up on reading and course work prior to final exams.

It will be Feb. 27 and 28. Examinations begin in mid-April.

They Have to Fly the Bug To See if It Has Any . . .

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — "I wouldn't give you two dollars a day for a room in it. But it's destined to land us on the moon."

That's Air Force Lt.-Col. James A. McDivitt describing the fragile lunar module which he will help test on the Apollo 9 flight scheduled to start from Cape Kennedy Feb. 28.

McDivitt will command the flight. With him will be Air Force Lt.-Col. David R. Scott and civilian astronaut Russell L. Schweickart.

They are to orbit the earth for 10 days in one of the most complex man-in-space flights yet attempted. Many rate it tougher than the Apollo 8 moon orbit mission.

The major goal, McDivitt said, is to give the lunar module, called a LEM, its first manned test in space. The LEM looks like a giant bug.

McDIVITT . . . tough mission

FLY IN THAT?

"My impression when I first saw a LEM," McDivitt said, "was 'Holy Moses, we're going to really fly that thing in space?'

"It's a very flimsy craft—like a tissue paper spacecraft. If we're not careful, we could easily put a foot through it.

"It has an entirely different mission than any other spacecraft has ever had. Other spacecraft had to withstand re-entry Gs, earth landing with parachutes and had a pretty rough environment to live in.

"The LEM isn't like that," he said. "It is not designed to re-enter the atmosphere or make hard landings. It will fly only in the vacuum of space and not in any atmosphere. It is intended to make a soft landing on the moon."

McDivitt noted there aren't any seats in it, that the two men who pilot it must do so standing up. That's because weight is very critical in the vehicle and because it's not intended to support life for more than a day or so while astronauts are on the moon.

NOT FOR COMFORT

"It's not designed for comfort," McDivitt said. "When they want to rest on the moon they'll have to lie on the floor or against the equipment bays."

When Apollo 9 is launched by a Saturn 5 rocket, McDivitt, Scott and Schweickart will ride in the main Apollo ship, with the LEM resting in an adapter section between the third stage and the spaceship.

Once in orbit 118 miles high, the astronauts separate the main ship, called a command module, and turn around to dock with the LEM, pulling it free on the third stage.

"When you put the LEM and command module together you have a pretty big mass weighing about 90,000 pounds," McDivitt said. "It's a completely new guidance task from what we experienced on Apollo 7 and Apollo 8.

"Our job on Apollo 9 is to prove in earth orbit that we can actually fly this gigantic mass to the moon, stop it there and perform a lunar landing with the LEM."

Uvic Will Offer Welfare Course

By ALAN WHITE

A bachelor of social work degree to be offered by the University of Victoria will be a new approach in social work education.

It will be a concentrated program of undergraduate training in the field much akin to an honors degree course in any other subject, with special courses and field work included.

It will also more closely meet the standards being demanded by professional organizations of social workers.

Dr. Roy Watson, head of Uvic's department of anthropology and sociology and chairman of a recently-revived university committee studying the school, said the degree would be an improvement over the old BSW.

WEAK DEGREE

The BSW in the past has been given after a year's study in university following general studies in the arts. It has been criticized by welfare and social work officials as a weak degree offering insufficient training in the practice of social work.

The Uvic program—when the school of social work eventually gets into operation—will offer a separate course involving studies relevant to the profession and field practice.

A Master of Social Work degree will also be offered as further study to the BSW. Similar programs have been started at several Ontario universities.

The result of concentrating studies will raise the standards of graduates by strengthening the value of both degrees, Dr. Watson said.

"I think with the integration possible (in the program) the graduate degree would be a better degree," he said.

The schools following the older approach spend the first year of a social work program just getting students oriented to the field after their studies in another subject area, he said.

"I am most happy to see the program — it is a tremendous stop forward," said Gordon Wright of the Family and Children's Service in Victoria.

Mr. Wright is president of the B.C. Association of Social Workers and chairman of a recently organized board of registration for social workers.

The trend in recent years has been towards a training program which includes practical experience in social work before a degree is granted, he said.

The registration board, set under provincial legislation passed last year, is now empowered to require certain standards before a social worker is given registration as a professional.

The association says a person must have "a bachelor's degree and so much training in social work" to be accepted, Mr. Wright said.

The Uvic program will probably qualify graduates for immediate accreditation by offering the required courses and the necessary field work.

ADDITIONAL WORK

Students with degrees taken in the one-year program after general studies will have to do additional work in the field after graduation to build up their qualifications for accreditation.

The trend is for social work programs in universities to follow more closely the standards being set down by professional organizations by specializing in the undergraduate training, Mr. Wright said.

The Uvic school was approved in principle last week by the university senate and a recommendation sent on to the board of governors for authorization to hire a director to begin organizing the school.

Some $30,000 in federal government grants is available to hire the director and pay administrative costs in setting up a school of social work on the campus.

The step was first recommended to the university by a special committee which reported in October of 1967.

Lecturer Lauds Kipling Genius

By ROBIN BURGESS
Uvic Correspondent

History sees Rudyard Kipling as the voice of British imperialism and creator of the term "whiteman's burden."

But Dr. Joyce Tompkins, Kipling expert from Dalhousie University in Halifax, painted a different picture of the 19th century British author when she spoke at the University of Victoria Tuesday.

In her lecture on "The Younger Kipling," Dr. Tompkins said, "he was an intensively inquisitive young man with a strong taste for truth and a strong taste for the exciting."

This was the young man who at 17½ put out singlehandedly the Indian newspaper The Civil and Military Gazette when the editor was ill, and at 27 had achieved fame and wealth as a writer.

Kipling was born in Bombay and began his professional writing life about 1884, writing short stories about Indian life for newspapers.

TOUGH AUDIENCE

"He was writing for an audience that was tough, not easily impressed or surprised," said Dr. Tompkins. "But they are quiet tales that don't use a blunt instrument to make an impression on their tough readers."

At 23 he set out to assault the city of London and make himself known as a writer in England. He was a resounding success.

"He offered the English world novelty and power. He described a world that very few people had heard about."

With his confidential almost slangy style and exotic tales of eastern bazaars and Indian mysticism Kipling was a novelty to the Victorian Englishman.

This was the young Kipling writing about a country he knew and loved intimately. As the years passed his attitude to India was to become conditioned "by distance and ignorance; Kipling's distance and his audience's ignorance."

EMPIRE DEFENDER

It was in these later years he became the great defender of the British Empire. Dr. Tompkins felt this aspect of his work is greatly over-stressed by critics.

"There's much less trumpeting than one would think. . . . Certainly he did believe that certain supreme responsibilities were laid on white men and certain qualities were given to white men to face these responsibilities."

It was in San Francisco he started his love-hate relationship with America.

America shocked and fascinated Kipling. He expressed his indignation at the lax morals of the Americans to American journalists but he wrote back to India awed accounts of the equal education of American girls.

In 1889 he crossed into B.C. "for a breath of more familiar air.

"Kipling considered B.C. perhaps the loveliest land in the world after New Zealand. He claimed he felt the East in Victoria, but described it as quite a colony of old men."

On Thursday at 12:30 in the Clearihue Building on campus Dr. Tompkins will give a final lecture on Kipling called "The Elder Kipling."

Presidency: Leadership Rerun?

DR. BRAND
. . . Diefenbaker supporter

OTTAWA (CP) — The Conservatives have their fingers crossed that the contest for the party presidency will not turn into a re-run by proxy of the Diefenbaker-Camp combat.

Dr. Lewis Brand, of Saskatoon, a long-time supporter of former prime minister Diefenbaker, has announced that he is a candidate for the presidency at the Conservative association's annual meeting here March 10-12. Dr. Brand was MP for Saskatoon in the last Parliament but was defeated in the election last June 25.

Some Conservatives say that if a known and vociferous supporter of Dalton Camp, the former party president, enters the race, a Diefenbaker-Camp proxy rematch could result.

However, candidates in the contest at this point in opposition to Dr. Brand indicate that a fight comparable to the one which split the party in 1966-67 can and will be avoided.

Mr. Camp when president called for a review of the leadership. The result was the leadership convention in the fall of 1967 which ousted Mr. Diefenbaker and installed Robert Stanfield. Mr. Camp resigned from the presidency last fall and the post now is empty.

MOORES CANDIDATE

Frank Moores, freshman Conservative MP for Bonavista-Trinity-Conception, is a candidate for the presidency. He was in Vancouver Tuesday to line up support.

Another candidate is James Doak of Virden, Man., now a national vice-president.

Neither Mr. Moores nor Mr. Doak is considered to have been either strongly anti-Diefenbaker or pro-Camp.

The same would not seem to apply to bilingual Heward Grafftey, the former Conservative MP from Missisquoi who is considering running for the presidency. He opposed Mr. Diefenbaker and has a lot of Quebec support.

Roger Regimbal, former MP for Argenteuil and first vice-president, to the dismay of many Conservatives, has been prevented from running because of illness.

Deckhand Threatens One-Woman Mutiny On Fog-Bound Troller

By MAUREEN DUFFUS

"You couldn't get me out there again if you paid me a million dollars," said Vivian Morris, a wife who figures she overdid the bit about taking an interest in her husband's work.

Dave Morris is a commercial fisherman, and the last time Vivian went out on the troller with him, she was, to put it mildly, frightened.

To put it another way, she was so terrifed she tripled the insurance policy on her husband's life as soon as she got home.

"It's not the sea itself. That doesn't bother me. It's that awful fog.

"It's like sitting there with a plastic bag over your head. The noise of those huge freighters going by in a dense fog is terrifying, you just sit there and wonder where it's going to hit. You feel as if you're sitting in a canoe.

ADMITS DEFEAT

"I wanted to go home the second day, which didn't go over too well. But at least Dave gave in and anchored close to shore at night. He finally gave up and took me home after four days."

Vivian allowed as how it wasn't all bad, when the fog cleared.

"The fish are so beautiful, all irridescent. At first I didn't see how anybody could kill anything so lovely, but Dave said, 'Look, you see twenty dollars jumping at you, you learn soon enough how to gaff it neatly.' I got to the point where I could hit them."

SLOW LEARNER

As a deckhand, Vivian was not a great success, even when she wasn't cowering with fright.

The fish have to be cleaned before they're packed in ice, and Vivian helped. Someone asked if she was good at it.

"Good? Ha. I was slow. The fish have to be done a certain way, because you don't get top price if they're marked or damaged."

As cook, Vivian rated higher marks, but she couldn't eat anything.

As look-out she wasn't too bad, watching for other boats.

But even as look-out she got sent to the bottom of the class one day for a panic-stations reaction.

"It was foggy and I went back to look and there were big puffs of smoke coming out of the engines. Out life-raft and away — I figured this was it.

"It was just a little thing, not enough water in something, but I was ready to radio for rescue."

WHALE APPEARS

Vivian admits there are wives who go out on the boats with their husbands all the time and love it. But many of the fishermen go out by themselves — it's not easy to find a good deckhand.

"I don't know how they stand it, out there alone. They keep in radio contact once a day at least, to let each other know they're safe. Dave says it doesn't bother him at all, he's so busy all the time."

"He must have been quite busy the day the whale got caught in the stabilizer and took off with the boat, swooosh, until it finally broke free, breaking the stabilizer off at the same time of course."

TRAFFIC JAM

Vivian Morris won't go out again. But she will remember the good parts, like the beautiful scenery around Ucluelet, and the sight of all the fishing boats converging off the inlet at 4:30 in the morning, "just like the traffic jam in from dockyard at 4:30 in the afternoon."

The skipper of the Pamela may still take his wife and children out for day trips. And he'll still accept their help with painting and fixing up the troller during the winter months.

Ex-deckhand of the troller Pamela, Vivian Morris, didn't exactly get fired. She just threatened mutiny until the skipper, her husband, put her ashore. Now, she only goes out as a passenger on day-trips. (Robin Clarke Photo)

But it is unlikely that he will ever again sign on the unruly deckhand who is frightened of fog, scared witless by a bit of smoke, and who threatened, on the fourth day of what was supposed to be a ten-day trip:

"If you keep me out here another day I'll hit you in the face with a wet fish!."

A skipper might well prefer solitude to that sort of insubordination.

March Total Nears $38,000

After controversy and bad weather, this year's Mother's March may match last year's $38,000 total after all.

Two weeks later money is still "drifting in" said executive secretary of the Kinsman Rehabilitation Foundation Ray St. Dennis. So far $30,000 has been counted.

Mr. St. Dennis thanked mothers who "had made this successful in spite of everything," at a tea at Oak Bay Beach Hotel Tuesday.

He chastized a newspaper and a "small group of people" who, he said, interfered with the success of the march.

"I feel it is my job to clarify the situation to you," he said. "I want to set the record straight."

SUBMIT APPEALS

In the meantime he said two appeals for assistance have been submitted to the foundation's board of directors in Vancouver.

The Victoria Cleft Lip and Palate Society have made a request for a grant and a request has also been made for a full-time audiologist and a part-time speech therapist on the Island.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Pregnancy Is Happy Time —Only Minor Discomforts

Lowman

Think of the things we take for granted! Try to imagine that you have never seen the sun. How would you feel when that great ball of fire appears in the sky? Pretend that you have only seen barren trees before. You would be overcome when the buds suddenly appear and burst into leaves this spring! These are only two examples of the wonders all about us.

A baby is probably the greatest miracle of all and yet we take one for granted unless it is our own. Then the experience of pregnancy becomes mysterious and awe-inspiring, as it should. This nine months should be a time of happy anticipation with only a few minor discomforts and today having a child can be safer than crossing a busy street.

FEW SIMPLE RULES

In order to make it so, there are a few simple rules you should follow. The most important one is to see your doctor as soon as you suspect you are pregnant. Then follow his advice. He will see you periodically and have the opportunity to hold in check any unfortunate symptoms which might develop.

In many instances the appearance of the first child heralds the disappearance of the mother's good figure. This should not happen but far too often motherhood ushers in overweight. Unless the young mother loses this as soon as her doctor says she may diet and exercise, the following years and pregnancies are almost sure to snowball her burden of too many pounds.

Overweight adds to the discomforts of pregnancy and may even be responsible for a few. It makes delivery more difficult. It also robs you of that superb feeling you have when you first wear one of your regular outfits after the arrival of your baby. There is nothing quite like it!

Do not kid yourself with that old pacifier "I am eating for two!" Keep your weight gain within the allowable limits.

DOCTOR MAY ALLOW

The following exercise is one your doctor may allow during pregnancy or very soon after the arrival of your child. It is a very mild abdominal exercise. However never take any special exercise without first consulting your physician. Ask him about this one.

Lie on the floor on your back with your legs straight and your arms resting on the floor at your sides. Bend your left leg and bring your left foot closer to your hips. Now straighten the left knee as you slide your left foot back to place. At the same time bend your right knee and bring your right foot close to your hips. One knee bends as the other straightens. Do not lift your feet from the floor but slide them lightly and quickly back and forth along the floor.

If you would like to have my leaflet "Care During Pregnancy — Reconditioning, After Pregnancy" send a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for it. Address to Josephine Lowman in care of this newspaper.

Simply styled and colorful, coats like these, made of water-proofed fabrics, make an interesting spring sewing project. They are practical too and can be worn whether it rains or shines.

Rain or Shine Coats Should Be Glamorous

By EUNICE FARMER

Dear Readers,

Here's more news for your spring sewing. It's hard to call a raincoat anything that sounds glamorous, no matter how hard you try, but I've come up with a name that tells the story a little more completely. I like to call them your "Rain or Shine" coats.

These are the most marvellous addition to any wardrobe no matter where you live in this country. They may be made out of water-repellent moire, heavy cottons, silk and worsted Italian silk or almost anything, for that matter.

Make your rain and shine coat in any simple style, but make it colorful, gay and eye-catching because, as you know, there is no clothing a woman wears that is more dreary than the ones she wears on a rainy day. Just check me out by looking around you the next time you go shopping.

There are products you can buy that can be sprayed on your coat when you have completed it to make it water-repellent; some fabrics are pre-treated, and you may also have your coat treated at the dry cleaners when you have finished it. These marvelous coats can be worn as a lightweight coat when the sun is shining, too, or when the weather demands a lightweight wrap. Make one and I guarantee it will be your very favorite coat!

Dear Eunice Farmer,

I would like to make myself a spring coat, but most of the patterns I look at and really like are called "coat-dresses." Can these patterns be used for coats, and if so, what must be done to them in order to obtain a properly fitting coat?—Mrs. C. M.

Dear Mrs. C. M.:

There is quite a difference between a coat-dress and a coat pattern. A coat-dress is usually cut similar to a dress. In other words, it doesn't have the amount of ease you need for a coat that is to be worn over other clothes. The sleeves are usually quite narrow and in general, these patterns would not be suitable to be worn over anything except the skimpiest lightweight sleeveless dresses.

A coat-dress pattern does not include a lining pattern either; however, this is relatively simple to cut by using the same pattern as the coat, eliminating the width of the facing and adding the extra width for the seam allowance where the lining will be attached to the facing. The back of the pattern should also be cut a little fuller for ease.

These patterns have been used for coats and have been used successfully; however, you must decide first just where you want to wear your coat and what it must be worn over. If it's for a general all-purpose coat, I wouldn't recommend it.

Guns in Brazil

SAO PAULO, Brazil (AP)—In an effort to discourage robbers, the Brazilian Discount Bank is having its girl tellers trained by the army on how to handle guns. So far the bank has trained and armed 3,000 of its 8,000 employees.

Always Look Ageless

To get an ageless look, you must first make all the little age lines in your facial skin so inconspicuous they won't be seen by people at greeting distance from you. Or, better yet, get rid of them altogether. Ask your favorite cosmetician for a bottle of 2nd Debut, the lotion that women everywhere are calling their secret face lift. This lotion contains CEF (Cellular Expansion Factor) that expands underneath lines to push them upward so they level with the skin's surface and thereby become invisible. This smoothed-out appearance of the skin gives the face an ageless look that favors its wearer with an almost unlimited variety in her choice of clothes.

Sawdust Becomes Sugar In Meal of the Future

VANCOUVER (CP) — "I'll have some soya bean bacon, artificial fried eggs and a little sodium caseinate and sawdust sugar in my coffee."

This could be the menu of the future if Dr. William Powrie's predictions come true.

The newly appointed head of the food science department at the University of British Columbia foresees sugars locked up in sawdust and protein disguised as algae.

The difficulty is to make artificial food palatable. He says possible indications of future trends in food are the success of "mock bacon" tidbits synthesized from soya beans and coffee creamers made from sodium caseinate and corn syrup.

Artificial milk is making a big impact in California, he says, but many states prohibit its sale.

Another line of research already under way at UBC is growing living tissue in an artificial medium. The department has already grown carrot tissue and now is experimenting with lettuce cells.

One aspect of the research promising a return in the near future is growing of liquorice cells. Cultivation of these in a test tube could mean production on a commerical scale, freeing Canada from reliance on imported supplies.

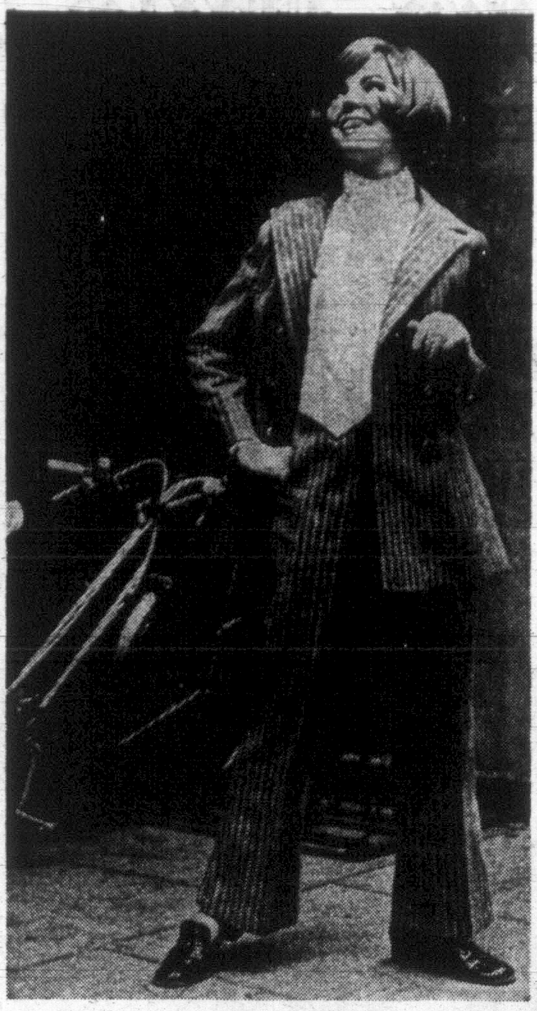
'Fashion's Little Joke' Becomes Favored Choice



It's the gangster look with wide lapels and white vinyl vest in this striped, men's-wear flannel citysuit. Mid-thigh-length jacket is what's happening in fashion this year and the citysuit is no longer regarded as one of fashion's little jokes.

By FLORENCE DE SANTIS

It must be five years or more since Norman Norell caused the first stir over what are now called "citypants," all one word, just like that.

Norell substituted culottes for skirts, and there was a brief flurry of imitations which quickly died when nobody bought them. But Paris noted, and Paris isn't above lifting an idea, even when an American does it.

Courreges' pants look was such high fashion and so difficult to imitate that although he had many copycats, practically no one could reproduce his tailoring, not, that is, at any price less than his couture level.

Then Yves St. Laurent had the inspiration to treat pants as a species of dress. Why not make them soft, even floppy? Then one didn't have to tailor. St. Laurent took pants out of the sportswear and couture categories.

Meanwhile, a number of bright younger designers in the American fashion industry had been experimenting with Norell's old idea. But instead of the skirt-length culotte, they went for the combination of full-length pants, a la Courreges, with jackets or coats which made a complete, city-type costume.

The designers took models wearing the pants suits to posh restaurants so the maitre d's could throw them out, which they did regularly, with much publicity. Everybody laughed at another of fashion's little jokes.

But the fact remained that the girls began to wear them, and now, with that extra boost from St. Laurent, here are citypants making the scene.

In fact, the National Board of the Coat and Suit Industry, a body not noted for shallow enthusiams, has picked some citypants among its favored suit choices for this spring.

The board likes two looks in spring citypants. One is a flip young silhouette, the jacket very long, shaped and flared, with oversize lapels and double-breasted buttoning, the pants sharply creased and bottom-flared. All this is done in chalk-striped menswear flannel, and it has a white vinyl vest that gives it a jaunty "gangster" air derived from the thirties.

COOKING CAN BE FUN

Several Vegetables Combine In Flavorful Lenten Dish

The Lenten season gives an extra impetus to our vegetable cooking.

A vegetable plate can be a beautiful picture and a flavorful meal. I am not an advocate of vegetarianism but regardless of the slogan "meat makes the meal" without vegetables that meal would lack lustre.

Moore

Today I have a recipe using rice as its basic ingredient but enhanced with three or four or five vegetables that give it its name. Cheese adds the protein.

RICE FLAMENCO
(Serves Six)

Six tablespoons cooking oil, divided; ½ cup chopped onion (or ¼ cup bottled flakes), 1 cup celery; ¾ cup carrots; ½ cup green pepper (optional); one 10-oz. can tomato sauce; one 10-oz. can mushroom stems and pieces (see note); 4 cups hot water, divided 1½ cups raw long grain rice; 2 chicken oxo cubes; 1½ teaspoons salt; about ¾ to 1 cup grated old Cheddar cheese.

In 4 tablespoons of the oil in a frypan gently saute the onions, celery, carrots and green pepper (if used) for five minutes. (NOTE: If you use bottled onion flakes be sure you do not burn them for they burn easily if neglected. Of course you may use fresh mushrooms—as much as one pound. If you do, gently saute them along with the other vegetables.) Add the tomato sauce, rinse out can and add one cup of the hot water. Simmer covered until tender—about 15 minutes.

Meanwhile parch the rice in remaining oil in large frypan stirring until it is opaque and pale gold. Add remaining 3 cups hot water, chicken oxo cubes and salt, stir well to dissolve cubes and cook covered 20 minutes until all liquid is absorbed. Turn into attractive shallow preheated serving dish, pour cooked vegetable mixture over evenly, sprinkle top generously with grated cheese, and serve.

NOTE: If this has to be held for a little while use a good-looking baking dish for it and cover with lid or foil and keep warm in oven at 200 deg. Cheese melts a little and is very attractive. Serve with a colorful vegetable and a rib-sticking protein dessert such as custard pie.

DEAR ABBY . . .

A Real Woman Will Find the Right Man

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I am 53 and have been a widow for three years. I keep my hand in business to keep occupied, but I have no money worries.

I dress fashionably, am well-groomed, I wear glasses and my figure is "so-so." I'm no beauty, and I look my age.

I would like to get married again, but I don't like old men, and young men don't like me. Don't tell me to travel. I've traveled plenty and all I meet is other women looking for men. Don't tell me to develop my personality. I have more "personality" than most men I know. Don't suggest contact lenses. I've tried them and can't wear them. And don't tell me to tint my hair. I already do. What can you do for me?

LOOKING

DEAR LOOKING: Nothing. No man wants a woman who anticipates all the questions and knows all the answers. If you really want a man, you'll have to come across more like a woman.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I are expecting our first baby in about a month. We've arranged to have a woman come in (afternoons) to help with the cooking and cleaning the first two weeks.

The problem is my mother has informed us that she is coming as soon as the baby is born so she can "help" me. Abby, I wrote her some time ago, telling her that I wanted her to wait until the baby is a month old, but she apparently ignored my suggestion.

My mother is extremely critical and I am her favorite target. She makes me nervous. The last time she visited us, my husband threatened to send her packing if she didn't lay off me.

How can I tell my mother to please stay home that first month without causing a major rift?

UPSET MOTHER-TO-BE

DEAR UPSET: Tell your mother again, just as you have told me, that you will welcome her when the baby is one month old—but not before. If it causes a major rift, be prepared to accept it. Otherwise prepare to be criticized, and upset.

CONFIDENTIAL TO WORRIED PARENTS IN PITTSBURGH: No. We don't need a "new" code of morals. What we need is the courage and wisdom to live up to the old ones.

Hate to write letters? Send $1 to Abby, box 69700, Los Angeles, Calif., 90069, for Abby's booklet, "How to Write Letters for All Occasions."

SHOPPING GUIDE

Plain Room Given Individual Touch

By PENNY SAVER

It's amazing what two different people can do with the same materials. I have two sets of friends living in the same apartment building. Their suites are identical with boxy rooms and cream-colored walls. But the two apartments give me two entirely different "feelings." One has been conventionally furnished in one of the "traditional" styles. It is comfortable—but rather reminds me of a department store show-room. The other apartment is overflowing with character. The occupants couldn't afford to buy new tables and chairs, nor do I think they would if they could. Instead they have refinished some old, but not remarkable, chairs and made a couch and shelves of bricks and wood. Bright colors have been used to advantage in drapes, home-made wall-hangings and cushions. The effect is clean and cosy, but not in the "Miss Marple" tradition of overstuffed chairs and Victorian lampshades. Incidental ornaments are all chosen to blend in perfectly and add to the effect. Needless to say my friends "blend in" just as comfortably.

The wonderful thing about people who decorate this way is that they will wait to buy just the right thing instead of committing themselves to an easily-available substitute. I noticed this especially the day I discovered the tobacco-tin that had served as an ashtray replaced by a magnificent pottery ashtray. This ashtray is designed for the heavy smoker (or the housewife who doesn't like to empty ashtrays often). It is about five inches in diameter and the walls are close to two inches deep. Three cigarette rests have been provided. The color is a dull liony yellow and the outside has been decorated with a relief pattern of daisy-like flowers. I later learned that this jumbo ashtray costs $3.60.

Made in Germany

Glancing around I noticed that there were several other new pieces of pottery about so I asked my friend where she had found them, then slipped down to the store she mentioned to look for myself.

This line of pottery, which is made in Germany, includes vases ranging from $1.35 for a bud vase (either pitcher-shaped with a handle or plain) to $8.60 for a large vase for tall flowers and trailing greenery. For $5.75 there is a dish so shallow that it is almost a plate that would be ideal for fresh fruit. A large bowl that would be perfect for salads is $14.75. This bowl has deep sides that are almost straight until they reach the base.

The colors available are a deep, shiny "electric" blue, a dull blue with greenish-yellow showing through and a shiny red with green showing through. Most of the pieces are available in one of the blues and red, though the red pieces are all slightly more expensive. There are smaller ashtrays than the one I first saw ranging in price from $1.65 to $2.60.

The last item in this line has no relation to the others. It is a candle-holder finished in a shiny yellow. This ceramic holder it at least four inches tall and is shaped rather like an antique hookah with a curved handle set between the two "rings." The top flairs out into a flat area with a standard sized depression to hold the candle. These candle-holders are $2.90 each.

If you would like to know where to find these items, please call 382-3131 between 8 a.m. and 4:30 p.m.

If You're a HEP Girl— Where's Your Wig?

Do you wear a bra? Or foundation? Use cosmetics? Do you believe in labor saving? Washer, vacuum, disposer, electricity? Then where's your wig?

Use instant coffee? Frozen foods? A frostless refrigerator? Wigs save time, too—lots of time.

Think of it! A perfect coif in a minute. From wig stand to your head! Ready to go. Flawless! faultlessly coiffed!

If you're modern, be modern. If your time is worth saving in many other ways, it's worth saving in your boudoir and bathroom.

We believe in wigs because we hear what owners say. Votes for women were nothing compared with wigs. Kleenex was a faltering step compared with wigs. Deodorants? Dandy. But wigs are more handy.

Wigs aren't to fool people. They're to "cool" people—their owners. Wigs make it possible to be calm in the hectic rush from being one person at 10, and another at 12, or leading one life at 5 and another at 7. Save time on your hair and you'll have time for your face.

Come in and get the low-down on a high-style wig that you'll love us for showing you. No obligation. Come, explore.

Incidentally, we are now giving a discount on all Wigs and Falls. Phone or drop in and have a chat with Carole, our Wig Specialist.

Terms can be arranged to suit your budget.

Accuracy Not Her Goal

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto art buyers like Christiane Pflug's work. They must — they pay up to $4,000 for one of her paintings.

One middle-aged couple said they like it because it is precise and accurate and real.

Mrs. Pflug, 32, abhors this reaction.

"Those people grieve me," she says. "They like the paintings because they think they are realistic, but I don't paint for accuracy."

He most famous painting, The Kitchen Door with Esther, uses distorted perspective to compress space and draw the viewer into the scene.

The two paintings she produces each year also distort time. Because they are usually painted during a nine-month period, the seasons change from first stroke to finished painting and the changes are left in.

She says she is neither a symbolic nor formal painter; she paints what she wants to paint.

For her, realism is "the tool I use to make my vision visible."

Bulk Meat Sales Racket Charged

Gordon Dowding (NDP—Burnaby-Edmonds) Tuesday accused the provincial government of failing to protect consumers from a "meat mafia" network which set up an outlet in Ladner.

Mr. Dowding did not name the Ladner store but said it was one of a network set up in the U.S. and Canada which has been charged with defrauding freezer locker customers by switching their meat purchases.

Mr. Dowding also charged that the attorney-general's department, before Leslie Peterson took the portfolio, appointed as a crown prosecutor in the Ladner case "the solicitor of the same company, a man who had a share in the company he was prosecuting."

"Did he accept the appointment?" asked former Attorney-General Robert Bonner.

"Yes, and then the first act of the crown prosecutor was to enter a stay of proceedings against the most important man (in the group of seven employees) and the rest disappeared and they're still looking for them."

MEAT VENDING MAFIA

"It's like a mafia working in the field of meat-vending," he said.

Mr. Dowding said he hoped the B.C. Law Society would investigate the actions of the solicitor who accepted the post of crown prosecutor. He did not name the lawyer.

He said the government should establish regulations and require bonds of "fly-by-night operators in the freezer meat business," to protect consumers.

Mr. Dowding said 11 companies have been charged in Canada and a number in the U.S. with fraud and all are connected to "the Bruhn brothers in Elkhorn, Nebraska."

Mr. Dowding said it was "a conspiracy right across the country" that involved sale of millions of dollars worth of meat.

He said in some of the prosecutions in other provinces, it was revealed that company officials admitted to selling the same side of beef to 10 customers while wrapping up cheaper substitute cuts to place in their lockers as well as shifting customers' purchases from locker to locker.

Mr. Dowding said he would advise all freezer-locker customers to insist on keeping the only key to their lockers.

"And they should designate their meat and check it over before it is stored and if necessary sign each package of meat," he said.

Tisdalle Backs Chant In Crime Code Attack

John Tisdalle, the Social Credit member for Saanich and the Islands, said Tuesday he supports statements by Works Minister W. N. Chant about Prime Minister Trudeau and proposed amendments to the Criminal Code.

Last week Mr. Chant said the amendments which would no longer make homosexulaity between consenting adults a criminal act "an abomination in the sight of God and man."

He said this was the chief crime causing the destruction of the Biblical cities of Sodom and Gomorrah.

And he said the prime minister, an associate of "social butterflies," was leading the country into "degeneration."

Mr. Tisdalle told the legislature he is proud to be able to say he supports Mr. Chant's statements.

Whiel quoting from the writings of St. Paul, Mr. Tisdalle said it was characteristic of an age where respect for law and society was disappearing that a place was now being made for people who are "disturbed—the lesbians and homosexuals."

MLAs QUEAMISH

Resuming his speech after the supper break, the member said some of the other MLAs in the house are "too squeamish to stand and be counted."

Then, in reply to a comment from across the floor, he said he did not want to legalize "homosexualism ... I don't think they need to be."

Earlier, Norman Levi (NDP—Vancouver South) said Mr. Chant had tarred himself with his own brush by making "very inappropriate and crack-pot remarks" about Prime Minister Trudeau and the biblical story of Sodom and Gommorah.

"I would remind the honorable minister that the wickedness of Sodom and Gomorrah has been interpreted by some of the ancient Rabbinical scholars in that they reversed the logic of justice," Mr. Levi said.

"The honorable minister, by his own words, has managed to be encompassed by that wickedness that he subscribes to others."

Mr. Tisdalle's speech centred on what he called the "contempt" which young people now appear to have for the law.

He said the royal commission preparing to investigate B.C.'s liquor laws should also look into the fact that "a glass of alcohol in your guts can make you an unwilling killer."

He proposed a special tax to be placed against distilleries that would go towards compensating victims of traffic accidents in which alcohol is judged to have been a contributing factor.

He said the distillers are responsible for 65 per cent of highway deaths.

"No profit statement on alcohol is big enough to pay for a life."

He said such a levy would not only pay accident compensation, but would serve to lower insurance rates for other drivers in the province.

He criticized liquor advertising that made it seem "it is a necessary part of a satisfactory life."

Turning to the problem of drugs, Mr. Tisdalle said the legislature's committee on drugs should be reconvened on a continuing basis for at least a year "if it is going to be of any lasting benefit."

Rail Crash Kills 11

JOHANNESBURG (Reuters)—Eleven black Africans were killed and 155 were injured when a South African passenger train ran into blazing gasoline tank car southwest of here, official figures disclosed Tuesday.

Student Demonstrator Sympathy Spurned

Student demonstrators who court arrest should not expect sympathy when they beg for leniency, Norman Levi (NDP—Vancouver-South) told an applauding legislature Tuesday.

Mr. Levi, a John Howard Society social worker, said that wasn't the way Gandhi and his followers practised civil disobedience.

"I would remind students that with acts of civil disobedience goes a full understanding of the ultimate consequences of such action that may result in arrest, conviction and possible jail.

"It lends no dignity to this time-honored process that the participants beg leniency on the grounds that they did not know the ultimate consequence of their action.

"If you cannot think the total process through then decide not to do it," Mr. Levi said. "In deciding to do it, there is a great deal of mature responsibility required.

"Thomas Jefferson said something about watering the tree of liberty with the blood of martyrs from time to time was a desirable thing.

"In out times the dissent of youth is infinitely more desirable than the military endeavors of their fathers and grandfathers."

MAKES DENIAL

But Mr. Levi denied suggestions that he had encouraged Simon Fraser University students to defy authority.

"At no time did I indicate that university students should incite any type of revolt that can be violent."

Mr. Levi said that B.C. had drawn only $18,315 for day-care centres up to last November from the federal government's $56 million contribution to the province under its Canada Assistance Plan.

He said he was convinced that day-care centres were a benefit to families and children but no one had undertaken any basic research in the province to prove it.

MAKES APPEAL

"I would at this time ask the citizens of British Columbia to write to me, care of the legislature, and tell me of the needs of day-care in their communities," he said.

"I will check out the information and make it available to (Social Welfare Minister Campbell) so that he can take a second look at the applications he has not made for Canada Assistance money."

Mr. Levi contended that day-care centres would not benefit lower-income groups solely. He said besides benefitting working mothers, it would also help those who must be away from their children because of family illness and also would assist fathers who have to bring up their children single-handedly.

$5 Million Suit

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Retired air force Gen. Curtis E. Lemay has filed a $5 million suit against an electronics company charging he was "fired" as board chairman after he became George Wallace's vice-presidential running mate. The breach of contract suit was filed against Networks Electronic Corp. of Chatsworth, Calif., which Lemay served as chairman of the board for a $50,000 annual salary.

POINT ROBERTS TALKS URGED

OLYMPIA, Wash. (CP) — State Senator R. Frank Atwood said Tuesday he plans to ask for Canada-U.S. talks on the problems of Point Roberts, a United States-owned peninsula attached to British Columbia, 20 miles south of Vancouver.

Atwood, Republican senate minority leader from Bellingham, Wash., said he will request in the Washington legislature that President Nixon arrange talks.

In Victoria, Social Credit MLA Robert Wenman of Delta, whose constituency extends to the U.S. border which crosses the Point Roberts Peninsula, approved of Atwood's planned move.

52 Russians Held

NEW YORK (UPI)—Fifty-two crewmen of two Soviet fishing trawlers have been held in Ghana since last October, Life Magazine reports in its current issue. The report said the men were charged with violating Ghana's territorial waters. Officials of the West African nation fear the sailors were gunrunners plotting to restore Nwame Nkrumah to power. Nkrumah is in exile somewhere in Africa.

Strikes to Resume By Quebec Teachers

QUEBEC (CP) — Raymond Laliberte, president of the Quebec Teachers Corporation, has announced that rotating strikes will resume today because efforts at mediation "have not produced sufficient substance."

He said in an interview Tuesday that the two mediators selected by the teachers and acceptable to the school boards and government had refused to take the job.

Efforts at mediation began last weekend after two weeks of rotating or spot strikes in which teachers boycotted classes for at least one-half day in all parts of the province.

They were protesting the refusal of the Quebec government to agree to mediation in contract talks, dragging on for more than 18 months.

English-speaking Roman Catholic and Protestant teachers did not take part in the strikes which involved more than 2,100 teachers since Feb. 3.

Mr. Laliberte said the teachers still are seeking "suitable mediators" but that negotiations are not moving fast enough.

Oil Pollution Laws Demanded

William Hartley (NDP—Yale-Lillooett) Tuesday night demanded the provincial government draw up a plan for dealing with a catastrophic oil pollution of B.C. beaches before it happens.

Mr. Hartley, recalling last year's Torrey Canyon crisis in Britain, said even greater risks soon will be common along the B.C. coast as a result of oil finds in Alaska.

He said it was understood that "great tankers, twice the size (of the Torrey Conyon), capable of transporting 350,000 tons of oil, will be used to carry oil from Alaska to Seattle," he said in the legislature.

If one of these tankers breaks up or springs a leak off the B.C. coast, the result could ruin the beaches and destroy sea life "for many years to come."

"We might have an earthquake too," snapped Minister without Portfolio P. A. Gaglardi.

"That's a fine excuse to offer," replied Leo Nimsick (NDP—Kootenay).

Mr. Hartley said B.C. has "no hard cut policy to control pollution."

Mr. Hartley also called for the provincial government to provide $1,500 annual grants to "deserving rural students" so they could obtain higher education in the major centres.

He also advocated $1,500 annual grants to Indian students "as long as they study and make marks" while attending schools away from home.

Mr. Hartley said "one of the first pieces of legislation" that would be introduced by an NDP government would be to bring all B.C. Indians under provincial laws and programs.

University President Walks Out of Meeting

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — Students occupying a section of the University of Windsor administrative block met Tuesday night with university President Dr. J. Francis Leddy, on the eve of a student referendum.

The closed-door meeting was the last round of negotiations between Dr. Leddy and the students, who have been barricaded in the theology and classics departments and part of the psychology department for eight days. Dr. Leddy walked out of the meeting after students asked that a special committee be set up to consider their demands.

The students are asking equal representation on decision-making bodies, open policy meetings, the reinstatement of Dr. William Kelly—theology lecturer whose dismissal sparked the occupation—if he so wishes and an amnesty for the demonstrators.

DENY ALLEGATIONS

At the referendum today students will be asked if they support the demands. A second question asks if the sudents will back a strike if the occupation fails to bring about changes in the university structure.

Tuesday, two-thirds of the university's theology faculty repudiated statements by a colleague about the dismissal of Dr. William Kelly but stopped short of taking sides on the dismissal itself.

A statement by eight of the department's 12 professors attacked comments by Rev. Vernon E. McEachern, university chaplain and a lecturer in the department. Dr. McEachern told a student meeting Sunday an administration statement distorted the truth about Dr. Kelly's release and that the decision was made solely by Rev. Eugene Malley, department chairman.

The faculty statement said in part:

". . . Not all agreed with the chairman's decision but he certainly consulted his colleagues and a majority agreed. . . ."

Also scheduled today is a meeting between theology department faculty and a delegation of students for an "exploratory meeting" to discuss student participation in the department decision-making.

Sirhan's Practising At Gun Range Told

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The odyssey of a small revolver—from its purchase at a time of civil strife to the fateful moment when it was fired at the head of Senator Robert F. Kennedy—is unfolding before a jury trying Sirhan Bishara Sirhan for murder.

Two witnesses told Tuesday of seeing Sirhan at a firing range June 4, 1968, watching him shoot furiously at a target and asking the rangemaster for "the best box of shells you have—and I want some that will not misfire."

Some 12 hours later, Kennedy lay on a kitchen floor in the Ambassador Hotel, bleeding from a fatal head wound.

HEARD RAPID FIRING

Henry Adrian Carreon, a science major at East Los Angeles College, testified Tuesday he was shooting at the San Gabriel Valley Gun Club in Duarte when his attention was attracted by rapid firing on the pistol range.

"I went over there to see what was going on," Carreon said. "He was just trying to shoot as fast as he could."

Carreon identified the man he saw as Sirhan, and placed the time at around noon on June 4—primary election day. Around Sirhan, Carreon said, lay 300 to 400 empty bullet casings and five or six empty shell boxes.

The prosecution is attempting to establish a case of premeditation to counter defence claims that Sirhan was confused and intoxicated when he shot Kennedy and that the killing was undeliberate.

Reds Arrest Another Yachtsman?

HONG KONG (Reuters) — Fear China may have arrested another weekend sailor grew today as officials awaited definite news of 15 crew members of three missing Hong Kong yachts, reported to have been towed to mainland China Sunday.

An intensive air and sea search off Hong Kong's southern islands for British yachtsman David Bailey, missing in his dinghy since last Monday night, was called off today.

Bailey set off from southerly Lamma Island in a six-foot by three-foot dinghy in search of his drifting yacht, Homa. The yacht was recovered intact Tuesday by police launches.

Local yachtsmen said the dinghy should have been spotted during the search if it was still in the area.

Meanwhile, no word has reached Hong Kong yet about three ocean-going yawls reported seized by armed Chinese junks while on their way to Macao Sunday.

A passing boat reported Tuesday seeing the masts of the three yachts in the Chinese port of Gau Chau, a few miles north of Macao in the Pearl River estuary.

Delay Protested On Hospital Unit

DUNCAN—Old-age pensioners here have sent a letter to Cowichan District Hospital Board protesting delay in building a proposed extended care hospital unit.

The group recommends the board accept suggestions of a brief presented last year in which they were urged to build a frame building on the site of the old Kings' Daughters' Hospital.

The hospital board prefers a concrete building, similar to the present hospital, and built adjacent to it. BCHIS favors a frame building, contending the cost of the other is excessive, and won't approve plans for it.

VALERIE

Polka-Dot Girl Can't Name Sirhan

LOS ANGELES (WP) — The mysterious "girl in the polka dot dress" turned out Tuesday to be a trim campaign worker who saw little and knew less of Sen. Robert F. Kennedy's assassination.

Tall, straw blonde Valerie Schulte, 22, said she was hobbling around on a crutch several yards behind the New York senator when he was fatally wounded in the Ambassador Hotel last June.

From that modest beginning grew a spate of rumors, fed by the claims of several imaginative "witnesses," that Kennedy might have been the victim of a conspiracy involving a flirtatious, fast-moving "girl in the polka dot dress."

Miss Schulte made plain that she had never seen Sirhan Bishara Sirhan, the senator's accused murderer, before or since that fleeting glimpse.

For the edification of judge and jury, Miss Schulte even brought her polka dot dress with her, wrapped neatly in an orange handbag. She unfurled it on cue from prosecutor David N. Fitts.

It was green with huge yellow dots.

"I saw an arm extending with a gun," she said. "It was approximately five yards from me, and approximately three yards from the senator" when she first noticed it.

But that, she said, was about that. She told the court she couldn't even identify Sirhan definitely now as the man who pulled the trigger.

London Bus Arrives Here on World Tour

The largest mobile Union Jack in the world, emblazoned on the side of an old double-decker bus, arrived in Victoria Tuesday on the last leg of a world tour.

Retired after 19 years and 1,000,000 miles on London streets, the bus was purchased for £145 in 1967 by seven young Englishmen who decided to take it around the world.

After minor renovations to make the bus habitable, the group of seven set off for continental Europe. They had £60 each.

By selling postcards, working at add jobs, and with the help of sponsors along the way, they have managed to log some 60,000 miles.

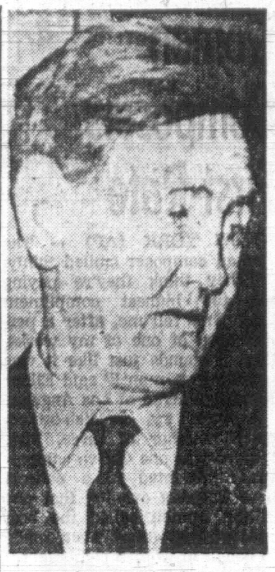
Their two years on the road has taken them through Europe, Africa, the Middle East, Singapore, Australia, the United States and Swartz Bay.

In sunny California they picked up a pretty hitchhiker named Nancy Johnson. She will remain with them until they return to California en route home to England.

The adventurers are Ron Still, Ron Sverdloff, Derek Jones, Anthony Reina, Rob Carter, Albert Pidgeon and Ken Wilkinson, all of Southend.

Lawyers Jailed

VANCOUVER (CP) — Two Vancouver lawyers were each sentenced to two years in prison Tuesday for fraud. Sentenced by Judge A. H. J. Swencisky in county court were Frederick Roy and Edward Duncan, who were convicted last week of defrauding Prosper Oils and Mines Ltd. of $217,000 in 1966.



ACCEPTING an invitation to visit Canada is Prime Minister J. G. Gorton of Australia. He will be in Ottawa April 2 and 3, following a visit to Washington.

What Steps Taken To Stop Gangsters Developing H-Bomb?

Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Conservative leader Robert Stanfield is concerned that new-fangled research may produce atomic bomb devices that could be used by private organizations or "gangster groups."

He introduced the question in the Commons Tuesday by asking Prime Minister Trudeau whether Canada was taking any initiatives internationally to prevent such developments, or at least control them should they occur.

"In view of the concern of the government about proliferation in the use of atomic weapons is it the view of the government that there is any imminent danger of atomic weapons being developed by private organizations or gangster groups within society," the Tory leader asked.

A slightly puzzled prime minister said he would discuss the matter with External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp.

Mr. Stanfield appeared to be referring to a recent article written in the U.S. which said experiments suggest a laser beam could be used to trigger a thermo-nuclear reaction.

Unlike plutonium or uranium, such a device would not be difficult to obtain or conceal, the article said, adding that practical problems involved made it unlikely that people would soon be building nuclear bombs in their basements.

Drama Festival Sets Date for City Finals

TORONTO (CP) —Dates and adjudicators for regional competitions leading to the Dominion Drama Festival at Kelowna May 19-24, were announced Tuesday.

Jacques Zouvi, Montreal actor and director, will judge competition in the four Atlantic provinces. Dates are: Charlottetown March 3-8; Fredericton March 12-15; Sydney, N.S., March 17-22, and St. John's, Nfld., March 24-29.

Marigold Charlesworth, Toronto actress, director and drama teacher, will judge Ontario competition.

Dennis Sweeting, Toronto director, will adjudicate Western Canada regional festivals scheduled for Winnipeg March 6-8; Lethbridge, Alta., March 10-15; Victoria March 17-22; and Saskatoon March 24-29.

English-language competition for western Quebec will be held at Montreal March 27-29. French-language competition will be at Montreal April 4-6.

No festival is scheduled this year in eastern Quebec.

Six plays will be chosen for the final at Kelowna, one from each of the Atlantic, Quebec, Ontario and Western Canada zones, plus two others considered worthy by the adjudicators.

This year's final will be the first to eliminate competitive awards for over-all production merit, although individual awards will continue.

Island Chess Crown Taken By Ray Kerr

Ray Kerr of Langford finished up champion and three other Vancouver Islanders gave creditable performances at the first annual Vancouver Open chess championships last weekend.

Mr. Kerr won out over a field of 50—the largest ever in a B.C. tournament. Among those he defeated were former Canadian champion, Elod Macskasy, Vancouver; Canadian junior champion, Jan Krotki, Edmonton; Seattle master, Viesturs Seglins, and a number of leading players from B.C., Washington and Oregon.

Former Victoria city champion Alan Lane and 16-year-old Daniel Scoones, also of Victoria, finished with three points. Defending city champion Edward Seedhouse obtained 2½ points.

Pancake Victory

LIBERAL, Kan. (AP)—The women of Liberal gave it a good try Tuesday but their best wasn't good enough and the international pancake racing title went to Olney, England for the third year in a row.

Women Composers First-Rate

NEW YORK (AP) — The woman composer smiled thinly.

"They think they're paying me the highest compliment when they tell me, after a performance of one of my works, 'My, it sounds just like it was written by a man'!" said Elinor Remick Warren of Los Angeles.

A pretty, reddish-brown-haired mother of three, Mrs. Warren was one of five composers represented in a concert here Tuesday evening that one of the women called the best concentrated effort ever made in behalf of women composers.

Besides Mrs. Warren's Sonnets for Soprano and Strings, the program included Sonata for Viola and Piano, by Elizabeth Gould of Toledo, Ohio; Three Observations for Three Woodwinds, by Mabel Daniels of Boston; Six Etudes for Piano, by Louise Talma, Professor of Music at Hunter College, New York City and Quartet for Strings, by Julia Smith, a Texas-New York composer.

ONE DIDN'T ARRIVE

Of the five composers only Mabel Daniels, now in her 89th year and still composing, didn't make it to New York to hear her work performed.

Mrs. Maurice Honigman of Gastonia, N.C., president of the National Federation of Music Clubs, said at a reception after the concert: "Women have been considered second-rate composers for too long. If men composers heard this program they'd soon change their minds."

Free Vaccination Offensive Planned

The province will embark on a voluntary, free measles vaccination offensive, Pat Jordan, minister without portfolio, announced Tuesday.

She said tenders will be called in a few days for a supply of vaccine to inoculate all 12-months-old children in the province.

The announcement was made in the House. Later Mrs. Jordan told reporters she hoped the program would be well under way by summer.

The vaccine will be of a type to combat common red measles — rubeola — and the minster said the best defence was a one-shot vaccination of year-old infants. This will be later expanded to include all pre-school children, then school age children.

FACES PROBLEMS

She described the vaccine, an attenuated live virus type, as not too stable and said the department is faced with particular problems of refrigeration and transportation.

It will be available first through local health department offices and later might be made available to private physicians.

A department spokesman said a single shot was worth about $2.50, indicating treatment of the roughly 31,000 children born in a year in B.C. would run about $77,500.

Mrs. Jordan said the province will be able to purchase the vaccine at government prices and in such quantity as to about halve the price to private purchasers.

She estimated the program will mean a saving of $130,000 a year in treatment of the disease. It was the sort of measles that tends to leave victims prone to secondary infections ranging from colds to meningitis.

The minister refused to name the vaccine, but said it now is produced only in the United States although a Canadian manufacturer is apparently planning to enter the field.

IMMUNITY PERIOD

She said she could not indicate how long an immunity it produced because it has only been available in this country for five years.

Apart from the infants to be vaccinated, the treatment will also be available to any child or adult exposed to the disease, she said.

In the House, Mrs. Jordan made a freewheeling charge at David Brousson (L—North Vancouver-Capilano) for what she called the "ambiguity" of his statements Monday about the women's ward at Vancouver General Hospital.

She challenged Mr. Brousson to make clear whether he was criticizing the province for inadequate provision of facilities in the ward or whether he was criticizing the nursing profession.

Mrs. Jordan, a former nurse, said she believed the member had taken the situation in the ward out of perspective and brought it before the House for political gain.

"The nursing profession of B.C. has one of the highest standards in North America today and I suggest the member had his own interests at heart" rather than the interests of proper medical treatment."

Loggers Protest Delay In Unemployment Pay

By ED GOULD

DUNCAN — The International Woodworkers of America office here is being swamped with complaints from loggers experiencing lengthy delays in payments of unemployment insurance benefits.

Business agent Ed Linder said Tuesday: "I've never seen anything like this in 20 years in this business where so many workers have had so much trouble in getting their claims processed."

He blamed the delays on many logging firms, "large and small," for sending their company-employee contribution records to Vancouver rather than Victoria after the record snowfall brought the logging industry to a standstill.

In other instances, insufficient stamps had been placed in employees' unemployment insurance books. The result in both cases has meant long delays in payment.

Some workers had been paid "arbitrary rates," usually lower than they were entitled to — and in some cases payments were held up until passbooks stamps were verified.

This had led to hardship on the part of people who lived from pay cheque to pay cheque, especially since the shutdown occurred right around Christmas, "an expensive time of year anyway."

Mr. Linder said he had written letters to several logging firms advising them to comply with the UIC regulations regarding keeping stamps up to date and several had written back apologizing.

UNDERSTANDABLE

He said the sudden and general shutdown of Island logging and affiliated industries had understandably swamped the UIC office in Victoria. He suggested "it would be helpful if a UIC official were stationed here to handle queries and complaints during this critical period."

Mr. Linder said he was doing half that job himself.

"It's been like an assembly line in here. I've practically got an open line with the UIC manager in Victoria."

CENTRALIZED

Duncan, like many other smaller cities, had its own UIC office but with the nationwide changeover to Canada Manpower from National Employment Service, UIC officer were centralized in Victoria.

That hasn't stopped workers from trying to apply for unemployment benefits at the Canada Manpower Centre.

"We have nothing to do with the payment of unemployment insurance," manager Bob Robinson said. "We keep a stack of application forms here. It's not really part of our job but we do it as a service. They can also get the forms at the post office."

C. A. HOWARD
. . . "on speeches, please"

Duncan's Music Man Named Citizen of Year

DUNCAN—C. A. (Bob) Howard, organist, choirmaster, gardener, was selected Tuesday night as Duncan's Citizen of the Year.

For 26 years Mr. Howard, 78, was choirmaster and organist at St. John's Anglican Church in Duncan. He was for 11 years musical director of a group of young people interested in production of operettas and also directed high school and church groups in a number of musical plays—some of his own composition.

Mr. Howard was born in Australia but left there with his parents when he was two years old to live in England. Several relatives were organists, including a grandfather who was organist at Lincoln Cathedral.

* * *

At the age of seven he entered All Saints choir, Woodford Green, and trained under noted musician Markham Lee.

Even when he left England to settle in Canada in 1911, music was his guiding light. After only a week in Vancouver he was singing at Christ Church Cathedral.

He moved to Duncan in 1925 and took charge of St. Mary's Choir at Somenos and in 1941 began his work at St. John's but continuing to sing at St. Mary's and directing several other district choirs. One of these was the 55-voice Duncan choristers which disbanded during the war.

Mr. Howard was head maintenance man at King's Daughters' Hospital for many years until that institution was replaced by the new Cowichan District Hospital which still utilizes his services.

"They won't let me quit," he says.

A wizard with a hammer, saw and gardening equipment, Mr. Howard has a reputation for being able to fix anything and BCHIS credited him with saving the district hundreds of dollars each year for repairing everything from plumbing to furniture.

* * *

A shy, modest man, Mr. Howard and his wife Rose have two sons, Robert in Duncan and Jack in Taber, Alta. They also have 12 grandchildren and one great-grandchild.

Although he admits he loves being on stage, "only if my back is to the audience. I'd rather conduct a dozen choirs and direct a dozen musical productions than have to make a speech," he said.

Mr. Howard is the fourth citizen to receive the Duncan Kinsmen award. The others were: Claude Green, chairman of Cowichan District Hospital Board; G. E. Wellburn, curator of Cowichan Valley Forest Museum, and Mrs. J. G. Lowood, foster mother.

Dead Baby Found In Plastic Bag

PORT ALBERNI—The death of a newly-born girl, found in a plastic bag here Sunday, is being investigated by RCMP.

Results of an autopsy held in Nanaimo Monday will be released later this week, an RCMP spokesman said. The baby had been dead for about two weeks.

200-BED HOSPITAL

Saanichton Site Pushed by SC

Sidney's Resthaven Hospital should be replaced with a 200-bed acute and extended care hospital in Saanichton, John Tisdalle (SC—Saanich and The Islands) told the legislature Tuesday.

He said he met earlier in the day with the mayors of Sidney, North Saanich and Central Saanich and they had agreed this was the logical site for the new area hospital proposed in the Agnew-Peckham report on hospital needs in the capital region.

Mr. Tisdalle said it would meet the report's recommendation that the hospital be in School District 63, north of Elk Lake.

This recommendation would be taken to the Regional District Hospital Board by the mayors, said Mr. Tisdalle.

But he was concerned, since the majority of board members are from the metropolitan area, that it might not meet with much success.

Nevertheless, he said he believed the health ministr will agree the Saanichton site is the best location for the enlarged facility.

He said 200 beds would just begin to meet the needs of the northern peninsula and islands-area's projected population of 50,000 10 years from now.

Tory Leader Coming For Nominating Meet

CAMPBELL RIVER — Two national party leaders and a cabinet minister are expected to campaign here in the coming Comox-Alberni byelection.

Opposition Leader Robert Stanfeild will kick off the campaign Feb. 28 when he attends the Conservative nominating convention at the Discovery Inn.

He will fly here following an address to the Candian Club in Vancouver.

Deposed MP Richard Durante, who won his seat in June with a 12-vote margin and lost it two weeks ago when two B.C. Supreme Court judges ruled the election void, said he expects Justice Minister John Turner to compaign for him.

Former NDP member Tom Barnett of Port Alberni, who is running again, said national leader Tommy Douglas has promised to come here to support him.

A date hasn't been set for the byelection.

May 15 Deadline For Student Awards

The community spirit which carried Kuper Island's Indian fife and drum band to Expo lives on.

The public campaign two years ago produced a $5,000 surplus which has been held in trust and the committee administering it decided Monday night to again use interest earned for awards to five outstanding Indian students.

As last year, the winners will again receive a medal and cash prize and be chosen for leadership, citizenship, attitude and special interest activities among other attributes.

BY MA Y15

Teachers and principals will submit nominations to Victor Janzen, superintendent of Indian schools, in Nanaimo, by May 15.

A winner will be selected from each of the following areas: Kuper Island, Qualicum and Nanaimo school districts, Cowichan school district, Ladysmith and Lake Cowichan district, and the Sooke, Saanich and Greater Victoria school districts.

Only Grade 7 students are eligible. Last year's winners received a medal, $10 in cash and a $35 bank account.

Spade Clubs Plan Cowichan Seminar

LAKE COWICHAN — Vancouver Island District Kiwanis Spade Clubs will hold a one-day convention - seminar here on April 26.

The request for the use of the camp for handicapped children was made by a Seattle Kiwanian, and approval given by local members at a recent annual directors' meeting in Duncan.

Members were told by chairman Tom Harvey of the Oak Bay club that 150 students, sponsors and organizers are expected at the one-day camp.

Stop the Bombings!

MONTREAL (CP)—The Separatist Parti Quebecois has denounced the wave of bombing incidents in the Montreal area as acts of persons "ready to assume the role of murderers. If they are still capable of listening, we appeal to them to stop before they succeed in killing someone," they said.

WEATHER OBSERVER REWARDED

A Port Hardy woman, Mrs. A. M. Lyon, is one of six British Columbians who have won awards for excellence in weather observing and reporting in 1968.

Mrs. Lyon has been taking daily measurements of rainfall and snowfall at her home at Beaver Harbor since November 1959. She will be presented with an inscribed wall barometer.

Twenty-five winners were chosen this year from 2,000 voluntary observers across Canada. There are about 300 climatatological weather stations now operating under voluntary observers in B.C.

Regional meterorologist J. L. Knox said many more are needed to collect data on rainfall, snowfall and temperature in order to obtain a better inventory of the province's climate.

Doctor Calls Hospital Staffs Selfish

QUEBEC (CP) — Canadian hospitals, hospital administrators, doctors and nurses took a severe verbal battering at the opening session of a conference on hospital-medal staff relations Monday.

Dr. E. W. Barootes of Regina accused organizations sponsoring the conference of being "selfishly engaged in a power struggle for control of hospital affairs."

The conference—an apparent attempt from within the hospital community to untangle the complex and costly problems of hospital care—is the second in two years.

It is sponsored by the Canadian Medical Association, the Canadian Hospital Association and the Canadian Nurses Association.

PATIENT LOSES OUT

"I get the impression," said Dr. Barootes, "that each group is convinced they are the true leaders in the hospital field, that they suffer the others only in a subordinate role, that instead of respecting you resent and suspect the motivations of the others."

His criticisms of hospital administration included these observations:

—"A survey done of all directives and orders issued from all hospital branches shows that nine out of 10 have nothing to do with patient care but are chiefly designed for the comfort and convenience of the hospital workers."

—"In 20 years, administrative space in hospitals has multiplied tenfold and patient space shrunken to far less than 50 per cent of the hospital area. Soon we will meet that sublimely administered hospital which has no room left for that unnecessary evil, the patient."

—"Good hospital administrators are rare and too often administrators acquire their position by default or as a result of proven failure in some other chosen field, including medicine."

Hospitals were portrayed as bastions of bureaucracy where attempts were made to control sickness on a 9 a.m.-to-t p.m. work schedule.

"The most acute illness, the worst accidents and the most tragic catastrophies frequently occur off-schedule in the evenings, nights, holidays and weekends when hospitals are least geared to handle them, when the most novice and junior staff are available."

Dr. Barootes said a taxpayer by the "inordinate length of documentary inquisition, often up to 100 questions, before he can receive a simple service."

DOCTORS USE PRESSURE

He also said private lobbies of doctors can develop in larger hospitals and bring pressure on hospital administrators and government agencies.

"Over-all, their results can be beneficial, but too often they unfavorably distort the orderly allocation of resources to meet community needs, or results in special favor. . . ."

Some hospital beds were occupied "for the comfort and welfare of the physician as much as for the well-being of the patient," because hospital care could be "cheaper for the patient and more rewarding for the doctor."

Turning to nurses, Dr. Barootes said:

"Nurses have torn themselves away from the bedside and are progressively growing more independent and militant."

He said and excellent clinical nurse is often sent on an administrative course "only to return with all her nursing sense replaced by a demonical devotion to administrative bureaucracy."

"In short, nurses have become victims of their own bureaucracy, their desks piled high with 100 different forms."

He described federal interventions in the health field, including the shared-cost programs of hospital insurance, as "blackmail or bribery with your own provincial funds."

Foundations Eyed In U.S. Tax Review

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress opened a sweeping review of the tax code today, hearing a call for a 20-per-cent tax on the investment income of private foundations.

Representative Wright Patman, the Texas Democrat who has been a leading critic of tax-exempt foundations for more than eight years, told the House of Representatives ways and means committee in prepared testimony "I do not seek to destroy foundations, but to reform them."

Drop Restrictions?

WASHINGTON (Reuters)—The government is considering dropping passport restrictions on American travel to China, officials have reported. Such a step was reported by a Washington newspaper to be one of the measures under consideration as part of the Nixon administration's review of policy toward Peking.

Smoke Pollution Issue Smothered

By JOHN MIKA
Legislative Reporter

The B.C. Forest Service Tuesday brushed off last fall's bitter complaints in Greater Victoria and Greater Vancouver that poor slash burning timing had caused serious air pollution.

A special departmental committee tabled a report with the legislature's standing committee on forestry and fisheries which included 21 pages of discussion on the forest industry's expressed alarm over slash burning losses but only devoted four sentences to the smoke pollution problem.

The report said the forest service did not have enough time to study the air pollution aspect of slash burning as it had been directed to do at the last session.

"The question of air pollution from smoke was brought to the attention of the committee but due to lack of time the committee was unable to study this factor in depth," the forest service study group reported.

"On the surface it would appear to be a case of you are damned if you do and damned if you don't.

"If there was no slash burning then there would be larger and more wild fires which, in turn, would cause more smoke than there is with controlled slash burning and this would be during the summer tourist season.

"Under certain weather conditions smoke does not disperse into the upper atmosphere quickly and it is suggested that this be taken into consideration when prescribed burning is located near heavily populated areas that are sensitive to air pollution."

ECONOMIC LOSSES

The forest service report was based on a three-man study, representing the government, universities and industry.

The study was ordered because MLAs were concerned with the growing arguments of industry spokesmen that the government's compulsory slash burning requirements were causing more harm than good in terms of expenditures and losses of merchantable timber due to slash burning "escapes."

"At the outset it can be stated that there was general agreement among all individuals and organizations, whose views were made available to the committee, that there is now and likely will continue to be a need to dispose of logging slash and brush by prescribed burning in the Vancouver Forest District," the committee said.

It acknowledged that the increasing close utilization policy of harvesting a larger proportion of the timber per acre has reduced the quantities of slash lying on the ground which could be considered a fire hazard the following summer.

And it said the second main justification for slash burning—that it clears logged land economically for reforestation operations—also is declining sharply in importance.

The committee said modern equipment including water bombers, networks of access roads and improved forestry techniques have progressively reduced the hazards of forest fires developing into catastrophes.

It added that the time appears ripe to replace reliance on technicians in the field to decide when slash should be burned according to written guidelines.

But it said a federal research project to determine the exact formula of various factors that would give a general guide for safe slash burning conditions is likely to take three to five years longer.

RESEARCH SPEED-UP

It urged a speed-up in the research program and also said the department of transport should be requested to expand and improve its recently-established forest fire weather warning system which has shown promise of substantial assistance to protection officers.

The committee also said negligence in slash burning "can no longer be tolerated.

"All slash burning must be planned and pre-organized and carried out in a proper manner.

"In some instances, adequate patrols must be maintained until there is no danger of hangover fires excaping."

The report also said that while burning still is the most economical method of removing slash, research and use of other methods should be encouraged.

Higher Pay Recommended For Drafted Firefighters

Wage rates for forest firefighters drafted by the B.C. Forest Service should be raised from $1.25 to $1.75 an hour, it was recommended Tuesday.

A special forest service report to the legislature's standing committee on forestry and fisheries said it is time to boost the rate because of complaints.

But the report warned that the statutory rate paid to men hired to man fire lines on Crown land should not be so high that it tempts arsonists to try "to create a payroll."

The recommendation also said a $4.50-per-day living allowance should be paid the draftees who are not provided with board and room on the job.

BETTER THAN PLANTING

The gross pay would work out to $2.31 an hour when meals are not supplied.

This would give firefighters 73 per cent of the basic International Woodworkers of America wage for the coming summer and would be 10 cents an hour lower than the rate paid tree-planting laborers.

Because forest firms normally pay their crews their regular wages when fighting fires on company lands, there have been complaints when woodsmen have been drafted from their regular jobs to fight a nearby fire on Crown land at the $1.25-per-hour rate.

But the report also noted that many workers in remote areas, such as farm laborers and cowhands, earn considerable less than IWA members so the firefighting rate can't be put on the same level as professional woodsmen's wages without increasing the risks of arson for the sake of fire line jobs.

Trudeau Watching Agitators

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau said Tuesday the government may have to be severe in future if it becomes clear agitators are coming to Canada to spread sedition.

How many bombings like that of the Montreal stock exchange and incidents such as the Sir George Williams University riot have to occur before the government reaches that stage, asked George Hees (PC—Prince Edward-Hastings).

Mr. Hees suggested that because of "greatly increased frequency of disruptive" activities the government should reconsider its "open door" policy that allows free entry to agitators advocating the forcible overthrow of the government.

BENEFIT OF DOUBT

Mr. Trudeau said that kind of activity is kept under surveillance.

The government's position was that in a free society with free speech it is preferable to give persons entering the benefit of the doubt.

But, if it became evident people were entering "for seditious purposes," the government would have to be more severe in future.

Robert Thompson (PC—Red Deer) asked Immigration Minister Allan MacEachen whether he was aware that Transport Minister Paul Hellyer had been quoted as saying a lot of student unrest was prompted by political forces from outside Canada.

Mr. MacEachen said no.

Wounded Biafrans Flown to Safety

COTONOU, Dahomey (Reuters) — Forty-seven severely wounded Biafrans, including 37 soldiers, were flown here Tuesday by the International Red Cross from the Uli airstrip in Biafra.

They later left aboard a Red Cross DC-7 for a European destination. Many lost limbs or suffered facial injures. They will receive orthopedic treatment and plastic surgery in hospitals in Switzerland, France, Italy, Denmark and Norway.

Ship Captain Held

LONDON (AP)—A British sea captain who disappeared in China nine months ago is under arrest there and his family in Britain has been accused of "anti-Chinese propaganda" for asking about him, the British foreign office said Sunday. Capt. Peter Will was forced ashore at gunpoint after his ship, the 10,000-ton Kota Jaya, docked at the northeastern port of Tangku last May.

BRIDGE LESSON

By OSWALD and JAMES JACOBY
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

A mathematician would have no trouble making three no-trump with today's hand. He would win the spade lead with his ace and count eight tricks. The ninth could come in the diamond suit if the ace of diamonds shows up in the West hand. It could come in the heart suit if hearts were divided evenly. He would know that it was even money that West would hold the diamond ace and almost two to one against finding three hearts in each hand.

Then, because mathematicians don't like to waste time, he would win the spade in his hand, lead a diamond to dummy's king and claim his contract.

An expert bridge player would also make three no-trump but he would take a little more time doing it. Expert bridge players don't have to be great mathematicians but they all know that a suit breaks 3-3 a trifle less than 36 per cent of the time. They also are in no hurry to make important decisions, so the expert player would run off four club tricks before deciding which red suit would be better to attack.

West would have to make one discard and East two discards. One of them might throw away a heart. In that case, South might decide to play a heart to dummy's king and a second heart back to his ace to see if hearts were going to break for him. With one heart discarded, if both opponents followed twice there would only be one heart left to annoy him.

Or they might throw diamonds in such manner as to give South a very good idea where the ace could be found. Failing all that, South would fall back on mathematics and try for his ninth trick in diamonds.

FOR THOSE WANTING THE TRADITIONAL ATMOSPHERE

This is a large family home whose special appeal lies in its traditional construction, and its location on of treed and secluded grounds. The wealth of beams and panelling combined with a lovely red brick fireplace and 24'x15'6" dimensions of the living room imparts a warmth and elegance hard to find in a less mature home. The same character extends into the 15'x15'6" dining-room and is here augmented by a built-in china cabinet and chandelier.

Entertaining and just living in these surroundings is a pleasure, and for secluded moments there is an adjoining 11'6"x10' den with fireplace. The floor plan makes for easy maintenance, a connecting hall leading to the 3 bedrooms, bathroom and elec. kitchen, all of good size. Various improvements have been made, such as, new plumbing, new OOM heating, decorating etc. and were effected with great taste in order to maintain and enhance the character of the home. The grounds are made up of 5 sub-divided lots, so that the purchaser may choose to live in his own park or sell part of it to recover a part of his original investment.
This property offers a great opportunity at $29,900. I welcome your enquiries.

Go-Ahead For Schools On Peninsula

The treasury board announced approval Tuesday to call tenders estimated at $890,500 for school additions on the Saanich Peninsula.

It was the green light for the first work arising out of a $4 million building referendum approved by ratepayers Oct. 19.

The projects: a six-classroom addition to Brentwood elementary school; three more classrooms at Deep Cove elementary; four at Saanichton elementary; eight at Sidney elementary; eight at Keating elementary and a lunch room addition at Claremont senior secondary school.

The referendum will ultimately involve additions or renovations to all 18 schools in the district.

Among projects where the treasury board approved awarding contracts:

Addition of three classrooms and a kindergarten and renovations for a library at Victoria's Hampton elementary school for $102,479.

Alterations and an addition to Campbell River secondary school worth $464,848.

HOME GARDENS

Don't Prune Shrubs Yet

By HILDA BEASTALL

Mild days in February always induce activity in the garden. This year is no different from any other, for last weekend saw many gardeners checking their plants.

Hilda

While badly browned or blackened shrubs are perhaps too noticeable a feature now after the frost and snow, we must discipline our pruning hand.

Only broken branches should be cut, not those which appear to have suffered other damage. They must wait at least until towards the end of March.

Even then, pruning should depend on the current weather.

A more useful job now is checking surface mulches around plants. Although we have been spared heavy rains lately, shrubs or small trees planted last fall may have become loosened.

The surface mulch of peatmoss, compost or bark spread around before the year end may be no longer in place around the stems.

Wind and the weight of snow may have rocked the plants, loosening their roots and creating a space at soil level.

Press some mulching material firmly around the stem, and in general see that no plant is loose.

Too much top movement during this critical root-making period can result in parts of recently planted shrubs dying mysteriously by early summer.

Fortunately, so far there has been little heaving by frost action, since snow came before frost to keep soil from freezing.

In rock gardens and on sloping ground, newly set plants should be checked. Take a pail of dampened peatmoss or slightly dried and screened compost mixed with sand, using this for top dressing around and under low spreading plants.

Marijuana Stand Explained

By DR. WALTER ALVAREZ

I regret that some people were much disturbed by my recent column on marijuana, having somehow gotten the idea that I approve of young people's using that drug and LSD. Actually, I strongly disapprove. It makes me think of a man's standing on his hands on the edge of a great precipice; why should anyone needlessly invite disaster and death?

Alvarez

My distressed readers might have remembered that for several years in this column I have been warning people that bodily changes produced by LSD could do serious harm. Recently a woman who used LSD during her pregnancy gave birth to a badly deformed baby. No one, of course, can say from just one case that the LSD produced the deformity, but it could have been responsible.

★ ★ ★

I just read about a man in England who murdered a girl while under the influence of LSD. Also, just now I read an article by an investigator who talked to over 1,000 students, and was told that most of them after a brief trial of LSD thought that they had had enough, and took no more. Naturally, the ones who go on and on with drugs are often ones who were poorly adjusted or even mildly psychotic to begin with.

People who were much disturbed over my recent article on marijuana failed to note that I was not approving of its use; what I was saying was that experts on drugs have been writing to say that they doubt if it often produces physical harm. If I had a grandchild smoking "pot" I would be unhappy and worried, but afraid mainly about what his association with other drug-users might do to him, especially if he were to leave home.

★ ★ ★

I just read an article in the Journal of the American Medical Association (JAMA), in which Prof. Maurice H. Seevers, after much studying of drug dependence, remarked that some 75 per cent of people in the U.S. take alcohol, but always in moderation. But from 5 to 10 per cent of them take such large quantities of brain-affective drugs that many become ruined; they are unable to work, and many become public charges.

Dr. Dale C. Cameron, also writing in the JAMA, tells of much study of drug taking in several parts of the Orient. He notes that 80 per cent of the persons now entering Hong Kong jails are dependent on narcotics. Similarly, I have read that a high percentage of men and women jailed in New York City have been addicts.

I read that in 1967, Dr. S. Pearlman questioned 2,270 seniors in a college, and found only 78, or 6.3 per cent, who said that during their college days they had tried taking drugs. One-third had tried only one stick of marijuana. Only one student was using heroin. What is encouraging is that 7 out of 10 said that they soon gave up whatever drug they had tried. Dr. Pearlman's impression was that most of the students wanted to "try" drugs, but did not want to become addicts.

Some men who have studied the use of drugs have gained the impression that the youngsters most likely to get badly hooked are the ones who came of disturbed and often low-income families in which there is an inborn tendency to neurosis.

Riel Was Hanged But Dumont Pardoned

By BOB BOWMAN

Louis Riel and Gabriel Dumont were the leaders of the Northwest Rebellion in 1885. Riel was the political leader while Dumont directed the fighting.

Bowman

Of the two, Dumont was far more warlike and wanted to incite the Indians to kill every white person on the prairies, but Riel wouldn't let him go that far.

In fact on one occasion, when Dumont might have taken a heavy toll of a North West Mounted Police patrol, Riel rushed into the fray holding a crucifix and shouted "Let there be no more bloodshed."

Yet Riel was hanged and Dumont was pardoned. There is a memorial to him at Batoche where he died, an honored old man whom former Prime Minister Diefenbaker once saw give an exhibition of pistol shooting.

Riel was hanged more for the shooting of Thomas Scott in the Red River uprising of 1870 than for his part in the Northwest Rebellion of 1885. Dumont was generally admired for his clever and courageous leadership of his Metis who fought a trained army from the east until they had no more ammunition and were firing nails and even stones from their guns.

Dumont had been one of the greatest buffalo hunters on the prairies and used buffalo hunting tactics to fight against the army led by General Middleton.

He hid his men in the banks of creeks so they would be able to see the soldiers silhouetted against the sky. He also knew how to use smoke screens by lighting grass fires, and then having his men charge through the smoke. These tactics held up Middleton's advance for two weeks although there were only 400 Metis opposing 2,000 soldiers.

Gabriel Dumont was one of the most colorful figures in Canadian history. When he was only 10 years old he could put a bullet through the head of a duck 100 yards away. He knew how to call buffalo as a hunter calls a moose. He tamed his own wild horses and there was no better rider on the plains.

He was pardoned Feb. 19, 1889, four years after Louis Riel was hanged.

Other events Feb. 19:

1631—First Lutheran baptism in Canada took place at Quebec.

1732—Religious houses were forbidden to shelter fugitives.

1860—Ship Hungarian was lost off Cape Sable, N.S., with 205 lives.

1869 — U.S. Senate received report on plan to annex Canada.

1897—Mrs. Adelaide Hunter Hoodless of Stoney Creek, Ont., organized first Women's Institute.

ASK ANDY

Is there something you want to know? Do you want to win a set of valuable books or other instructive prizes? Then ask Andy.

Andy will answer questions submitted by child readers and those who submit the questions he selects to answer will receive worthwhile prizes.

The youngster who asks the first question answered each day receives a 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia and of the second question a World Book Atlas.

Andy sends a 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia to Julie Klindt, age 13, of Fremont, California, for her question:

What do they mean by virus diseases?

Polio and flu, mumps and measles are caused by virus germs that attack the living cells of our bodies. These feverish attacks are called virus diseases because they differ from the multitude of diseases caused by bacteria. Each type of virus is a specialist and the results of its destructive attack follow a set pattern. The mumps virus specializes in swollen lumps, the measles virus in fiery rashes. Since the very living cells are attacked, naturally the body goes all out to defend itself. Some of its defence mechanisms result in uncomfortable symptoms. A virus attack produces fever, and some researchers suspect that in some mysterious way this uncomfortable rise in temperature may be one of the body's own defence mechanisms.

Viruses themselves are mysterious, and at one time researchers were not certain whether to classify them as living or non-living bodies. This is understandable because the wretched germs are so small. Perhaps you have seen the porcelain dishes used in medical laboratories. They are waterproof, and you would think that nothing could seep through their sides. But most viruses are small enough to filter their way through the pores of a porcelain dish. This is why they are called the filterable viruses.

Attack Cells

Studying these minuscule objects is a challenge. But powerful electron microscopes can reveal their shapes and all sorts of clever chemical experiments can be used to reveal their characters. As researchers learn more about various viruses, they can plan suitable tactics to defeat them. We have special vaccines to combat smallpox and polio, Hong Kong flu and measles. Most experts suspect that common colds are caused by assorted viruses. Someday they too will be conquered, but at present we need more and still more teams of trained experts to investigate our virus enemies.

A virus has some, but not all, the features of living cells. Actually it is no more than a tiny core of nucleic acid encased in a coat of protein material. Normally, the miraculous cell nucleus directs the vital activities of a whole living cell. A virus attacks the nucleus of a normal cell and changes its blueprint. It is forced to change its normal, healthy instructions and order the cell to reproduce copies of the enemy virus. The victimized cell is forced to injure and perhaps destroy itself to produce more enemy viruses that attack other cells. The injured cells, plus the body's defence activities, produce the uncomfortable, feverish symptoms of a virus disease.

Virus diseases tend to be highly infectious and contagious. Once inside living tissue, they multiply in astronomical numbers and spread from one victim to another. Sensible folk get protective vaccine shots when possible. When attacked by a virus disease, they obey the doctor's instructions to the letter and do everything they can to make it easier for their bodies to cope with the enemy invasion.

Andy sends a World Book Atlas to Brad Henry, age 10, of Allentown, Pennsylvania, for his question:

Why is the platypus classed as a mammal?

We tend to think of mammals as furry animals that give birth to live babies. But these are not the deciding features used to classify an animal as a mammal. An animal is a mammal if he is nurtured on mother's milk during his infancy. Most non-mammals lay eggs. A few reptiles give birth to live babies, but the mothers do not bother to feed them. Fish strew swarms of eggs to hatch and fend for themselves in the hungry sea. Birds are smarter than fish. They lay fewer eggs, tenderly hatch them in cosy nests, cherish their helpless chicks and hunt far and wide for food to fill their hungry mouths.

The duckbill platypus of Australia has a maternity system all its own. This animal has the furry coat of a mammal, the webbed feet of a frog and a snout somewhat like the bill of a duck. And Mrs. Platypus lays soft, round reptile-type eggs. However, she tends her offspring with loving mammal devotion. Sealed in her secret burrow, she hatches her eggs with the warmth of her body. Then she feeds her newborn babes on mother's milk. This is the deciding feature that qualifies the platypus as a mammal—without question.

Best Hovercraft Terminals Picked

The best terminal for hovercraft on southern Vancouver Island would be the Inner Harbor and the second would be the north end of Saanich Peninsula.

This was the opinion given to the Capital Region Planning Board Tuesday afternoon by its director, Tony Roberts.

In a report on hovercraft operations and terminal locations, he suggested that these two places be the two terminal points for the region.

The report will be forwarded to the seven member municipalities of the Capitol Region Planning Board where the final decisions will rest.

RESERVE HARBOR

Mr. Roberts noted that in 1965 the board said it was desirable to keep the Inner Harbor for hovercraft and hydrofoil service.

The board agreed at a meeting in 1967 that an Inner Harbor terminal was preferable to residential areas, for three reasons;

1—The approach to the Inner Harbor is between land primarily zoned for industry;

2—As a transportation terminal supports land use, so proximity to downtown and the Inner Harbor tourist area will tend to encourage the continuity and extension of these uses in this area;

3—The harbor provides the sheltered approaches required for operation.

Mr. Roberts said in days of rough weather in Juan de Fuca Strait, the service would terminate at the north end of the peninsula.

AVOID BUS CHANGES

Proposals for terminals in Oak Bay or Cordova Bay would involve, as would the north end terminal, a change to bus or car for passengers to continue to their destinations.

An Inner Harbor location would avoid this change of transportation for a proportion of passengers, particularly in summer tourist months.

Oak Bay or Cordova Bay would be faster to downtown, but only by 10 or 15 minutes over the north end terminal.

Mr. Roberts also said that in recommending terminals at both ends of the peninsula, it has not been possible to assess the effect on the economics of hovercraft operation. This would require extensive study.

"If an intermediate terminal between Sidney and Victoria is unavoidable, detailed investigation on the east and west sides of the peninsula could be made," he said.

"The opinion is held, however, that the hovercraft holds an important place in the future transportation picture for the capital region and that every effort should be made to accommodate the operation in accordance with the stated public objectives."

Planning Board Study Will Broaden Program

A review of regional planning will be undertaken this year by the Capital Region Planning Baord.

This was agreed to Tuesday afternoon at the monthly meeting of the board.

Board chairman, Victoria Ald. Ian Stewart, said a program of regional study outlined by director Tony Roberts, plus a committee of the board will lead to intelligent discussions of goals for the region.

Mr. Roberts mapped out eight meetings starting in March which would discuss such subjects as employment, leisure time, land use, social characteristics, housing, transportation and choices available for regional development policy.

POWERS LIMITED

The board itself has power only to make recommendations. Power to act rests with the individual municipalities, and with the municipal affairs department for the unorganized (non-municipal) areas west of Victoria.

Mr. Roberts said the program would be a forum for discussion of regional problems and policy choice and it was hoped that when it is completed the definition of regional issues and their relative importance will be much clearer.

He also suggested four public meetings be held on evenings in November, on the peninsula, in Saanich, in Victoria and in Langford-Colwood.

In other business, the board referred to the seven municipal councils a report on street naming problems, with different streets sometimes having the same name, or similar-sounding names, and streets even changing names in mid-stream.

The report made a number of recommendations, including:

- Using the Victoria Post Office as a clearing house for all new street names in the region from Sidney to Port Renfrew, including Victoria;
- All municipalities and the highways department to check with the post office before issuing new names;
- Local authorities should attempt to reach agreement on renaming streets where there is existing duplication;
- Local authorities should attempt to avoid two or more names for one street.

$1.3 Billion Suit Filed In California

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. (AP) — California is suing four oil firms and the federal government for $1,300,000,000 on charges that negligence caused the giant ocean oil slick that damaged beaches and killed sea life.

A $500,000,000 claim against the interior department was filed Tuesday by Charles A. O'Brien, chief deputy attorney-general of California.

O'Brien said an $800,000,000 damage suit would be filed today against Union Oil Co., operator of the ruptured offshore well, and Texaco, Inc., Mobile Oil Co., and Gulf Oil Corp., Union's partners in the federal drilling lease.

O'Brien said the claim and the suit ask payment for damage to fish and wildlife and beach cleanup plus general damages including damage to tourist potential.

The oil spill reached 800 square miles in size before the well was capped Feb. 7. Now crews are working to relieve pressures that have spewed a new slick into the polluted channel.

Campbell Stakes Job on Challenge

By JOHN SLINGER

Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell Tuesday staked his job on his statement that B.C. municipalities receive better financial assistance from the province than municipalities anywhere else in Canada.

If the municipalities in B.C. are having troubles, he suggested, they have themselves to blame.

He held up the Greater Victoria area as examples of municipalieies that have never looked at their services from either the points of view of the "economies of scale" or geography.

The villain in the area was the "political structure" which led to a great disparity in costs between the four cities.

The minister said "it is my firm belief that municipalities all over B.C. should be putting their own houses in order. They should be examining their political structures and they should be answering a few questions."

In a message to municipal taxpayers, he said if services have not been increasing with the general mill rate, they should be asking why.

POLITICAL BINGE

Of regional planning and conservation, Mr. Campbell said the chief problem in dealing with the problems of pollution and conservation is that opponents appear to be on either "a political binge or an emotional binge or a little bit of both."

He suggested planning should not be approached as "environmental management" and added that his Comox riding, the northern end of Vancouver Island, was a perfect "laboratory" for this approach.

It is an area where planned towns are going up amid full use of natural resources where "we can find methods of resolving the resource-use conflicts that are going to be a problem in the future."

Tolerance Plea Made By Mayor

Mayor Hugh Stephen Tuesday repeated his plea for tolerance between provincial and municipal governments.

But at the same time he told the Victoria Kiwanis Club that municipal officials "do not relish being lectured like schoolboys by those in whom we may recognize neither intellectual ascendance nor administrative superiority."

Three weeks ago Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell told the same service club that municipal officials were doing "a snow job" when they blamed the provincial government for increased taxes.

Mayor Stephen said friction between the two levels of government was expected when it came to money matters but he appealed for a marriage of convenience in which each partner would become more tolerant of the other.

School Charge 'Lie' Minister Replies

An angry Welfare Minister Dan Campbell Tuesday said the description of punishment at Brannan Lake School for Boys given by a Liberal member in the legislature was "a lie."

"To counter this sort of "misrepresentation," Mr. Campbell said from now on the staff of the welfare department is free to speak and defend its professional reputation.

David Brousson (L—North Vancouver-Capilano) Monday said a boy at Brannan Lake who is difficult to handle is put in a six-by-six security cell for 30 days, less 20 minutes a day for exercise.

Mr. Campbell said Mr. Brousson has never been to Brannan Lake.

And while he could not protect the youngsters from these statements from "half-baked politicians," Mr. Campbell said he is not going to hear the staff's "professional reputations torn to shreds by any two-bit politicians."

NEW POSITION

The department's new position will be to keep confidential information about any of its classes. However, information about "the true nature of a relationship may be given but only so far as may be necessary to correct a wrong impression."

"As far as the kids at Brannan Lake are concerned—the policy of this government is very simple: we will hold them in our arms."

By the same token, said the minister, if criticism is felt to be justified, the situation will be corrected.

Later he told reporters that if Mr. Brousson's charge was true, the director of Brannan Lake School would have been fired.

The minister reserved particular venom for radio hotline callers.

"When some caller over a hotline says that the women looking after the girls at Willingdon School are lesbians—I don't take that from anybody."

He read an anonymous letter from a staff member at Brannan Lake who said the school is expected to help boys after the home, church, school and community have thrown up their hands and given up.

Mr. Campbell said the schools are no longer considered jails. Rather they are "treatment centres" and he said an increase in the federal grant for their operation indicated this was the national view as well.

Service Station Slavery Exposed

EDMONTON (CP) — The Alberta government should place controls on the province's oil marketing industry and eliminate industry price-fixing made possible by "economic slavery" of retail operators, the legislature was told Monday.

A 744-page report tabled by A. R. Patrick, minister of industry and development, culminated four years of research by a government-appointed gasoline marketing enquiry committee.

"Oil companies advocate freedom of enterprise for oil companies and practise economic slavery for operators," said the report prepared by Edmonton lawyer Kenneth A. McKenzie, Edmonton professional engineer Arthur Fitzpatrick and a Calgary Better Business Bureau manager, Allan N. Rose.

"This leads us to recommend a measure of government control which would primarily affect four gigantic companies, in substitution for the oppressive contractual controls that these companies now apply to thousands of Alberta gasoline retailers."

The committee said the oil companies, by virtue of contractual strangleholds on service station operators, were able to force them to sell almost anything the oil companies dictate.

DOMINATE THE MARKET

In 1965, the four companies sold 86.5 per cent of the gasoline used in Alberta—222,756,000 gallons through 2,761 of the 3,139 retail stations. They also "tied" 87.9 per cent of all service stations in Alberta to their brand names.

Standard Oil Co. (New Jersey), Gulf Oil Corp., and Texaco, Inc., the three United States-based companies, have a total of 73 subsidiaries operating in Alberta. The Royal Dutch Shell Group, jointly owned by British and Dutch interests, has 17 subsidiaries.

The report said these companies "squeeze" retailers to get all they can from them in any way they can. And, through carefully-worded contracts, have "for all practical purposes" stringent control over the price of gasoline to consumers.

It said this "wasteful and costly" system could be rectified "if the ties were severed." Then the operators would be free to operate their businesses economically "and any reductions in price . . . would directly benefit the motorist."

SUGGEST RIGHTS BILL

The committee recommended that oil companies provide essential information to prospective lessees, that an operators' bill of rights be established and that a five-year lease not terminable, except in designated circumstances, be provided.

It also suggested the government prohibit company practices that tie down operators or eliminate comptition and that credit be the companies' responsibility, not the operators'.

Persons, primarily farmers, who purchase gasoline exempt from tax should be given a special permit, thus helping solve problems of enforcing the Fuel Oil Tax Act.

And, as a step toward improving accuracy of government records, the committee recommended records be kept under company, not industry, indexes and that service station operators, wholesalers and bulk outlets and refiners be licensed annually.

It also recommended a continuing organization to conduct economic research and to assemble information on energy resources and other matters affecting the Alberta economy.

Red Chinese Cancel Talks In Warsaw

By STANLEY KARNOW
The Washington Post

HONG KONG — Peking has cancelled the Sino-American talks due to open Thursday in Warsaw on the grounds that Washington incited a senior Chinese diplomat in The Netherlands to "betray his country" and defect to the United States.

A Chinese foreign ministry statement, transmitted here this morning by the official New China News Agency, blamed the U.S. government for having "solely" created the "current anti-China atmosphere" that made it "obviously most unsuitable" to hold the meeting as scheduled.

The statement did not propose an alternative date for resumption of the "ambassadorial talks," which were supposed to reopen Thursday after a break of 13 months.

A Peking protest issued two weeks ago demanded that Liao Ho-shu, the Chinese charge d'affaires in The Hague who fled his post on Jan. 24, be handed back to the Communist authorities or else the U.S. and Dutch governments "must be held responsible for the consequences arising therefrom."

Referring to that complaint, today's statement assailed the U.S. for "ignoring" Peking's "strong protest" and rebuffing its "just demand" as well as continuing to "slander China and make shameless denials."

The statement charged, moreover, that Washington is "plotting" to send Liao to Taiwan, the island redoubt of the Chinese Nationalists, "with a view to creating further anti-China incidents."

It added: "All this once again enables the people of China and the rest of the world to see clearly the vicious features of the Nixon administration . . . which has inherited the mantle of the preceding U.S. government in flagrantly making itself the enemy of 700 million Chinese people."

U.S. 'Engineered' Defection

Repeating allegations contained in Peking's earlier protest, the statement accused the United States of having "deliberately engineered" Liao's defection and charged that he was "carried off" to Washington on Feb. 4 by the Central Intelligence Agency.

"This undeniable crime against China committed by the U.S. government," the statement went on, "has aroused the boundless indignation of the entire Chinese people."

Specialists here were surprised by Peking's sudden decision to cancel the Warsaw meeting, since the Chinese had refrained from publicizing the Liao case in both their domestic and foreign propaganda since their initial protest Feb. 6.

The cancellation of the talks was also surprising, in the estimation of these specialists, as it came amid increasing hints that the Communists have been seeking to adopt a flexible approach to world affairs.

Signs of this potential flexibility have been seen in Chinese commentaries underlining the value of negotiations and, among other indications, in a more ambiguous Peking position on the Taiwan question, the main issue dividing the United States and the Communists.

In part, it is believed, the Chinese originally complained against an alleged U.S. role in Liao's defection as a way of reacting to a state department announcement that the former diplomat's request for political asylum in the United States was "under consideration."

That was the first time since the Korean war armistice talks, when they argued for the return of their prisoners of war, that the Chinese had issued a public protest against the defection of one of their officials.

More Than Sensitivities at Stake

In recent years, Washington has avoided giving immediate prominence to Chinese defectors who have chosen asylum in the United States and Peking has accordingly kept silent rather than risk "losing face."

Their decision today to cancel the Warsaw session as a result of the Liao defection suggests, however, that more than official Chinese sensitivities are at stake.

One line of conjecture is that Peking is emphasizing the case strongly in order to impress its own diplomatic corps. According to recent reports, the Chinese ambassadors brought back to China for indoctrination during Mao Tse-tung's cultural revolution have been preparing to return to their posts abroad.

Another possible reason for Peking's cancellations of the talks is that a dogmatic faction within the Chinese leadership group has managed to use the Liao incident as a pretext to impose its opposition to the Sino-American meeting.

Still other speculation holds that the Chinese are striving, in their fashion, to test U.S. interest and willingness to come to terms with them. For underlying Peking's attitude towards the United States are nearly two decades of doubt, mistrust and deep hostility.

The Warsaw meeting scheduled to be held Thursday was the 135th session since the talks began on Aug. 1, 1955. During the first two years of the talks, Chinese attempts at conciliation were rejected by the late secretary of state John Foster Dulles.

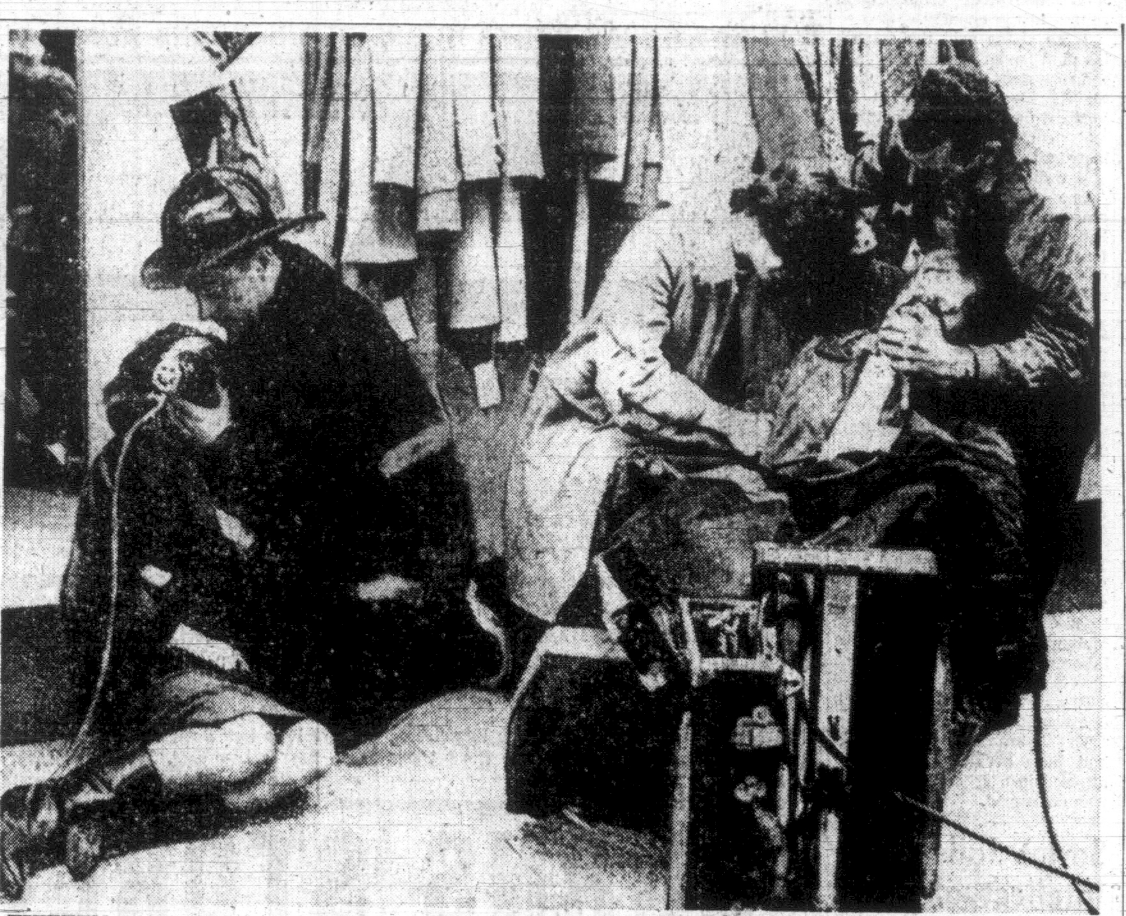
In the years since then, Peking has consistently rebuffed American overtures, arguing that no settlement with the United States was possible until the Taiwan issue was resolved.

In contrast to reports describing him as a high-ranking Chinese intelligence operative in Europe, the 46-year-old Liao was a middle-grade diplomat who had spent four years in The Hague without returning home.

As a consequence, it is doubted that he can provide his CIA interrogators with much inside information on events that have been taking place in China.

Since 1962, only four Chinese officials have defected to the west. In addition to Liao, they were Chao Fu, a security officer at the Chinese embassy in Stockholm who fled in 1962; Tung Chih-ping, cultural attache in Burundi, who defected in 1964: and Miao Chen-pai, head of the Chinese commercial mission in Damascus, who rejected the Communists in 1966.

Israel Threatens Reprisals Against Airliner Attacks



FIFTEEN women were unconscious and 20 others were sent choking into the street Tuesday when carbon monoxide seeped into a downtown Toronto computer centre. Firemen and policemen administered oxygen in a makeshift "hospital" set up in a nearby dress shop. An inspector said the gas seeped into the second-storey offices through an air conditioning system. A dry cleaning plant is located on the main floor. Most of the employees returned to work today. (CP Wirephoto)

Moral Right To End Terror

TEL AVIV (AP)—Israel warned Arab nations and airlines today they must "take immediate measures to prevent further attacks on Israel's air routes." It claimed the moral right and ability to break up guerrilla raids at any place.

Transport Minister Moshe Carmel outlined the government's position before the Knesset, Israel's Parliament, in Jerusalem in the wake of the Arab attack on an El Al jetliner in Switzerland Tuesday.

He called on the United Nations to act swiftly and effectively to halt escalation in the disruption of international air routes.

"It is the duty of the United Nations to act swiftly and effectively, without bias," he said.

He complained of what he said was the light manner in which world public opinion took earlier attacks by Arab terrorists on Israeli airliners.

The UN Security Council had failed to condemn in a single word the December attack at Athens Airport on an El Al airliner but censured Israel for its retaliatory raid on Beirut Airport.

That raid had been intended as a warning against further attacks on civilian aircraft.

Warns of Chaos Among Airways

"Israel's air routes are of the highest security priority," he said. "Israel has the full moral right and operational ability to take all necessary defensive measures at any place to break up the ring of terrorism on the airways and assure that Israel has completely free air traffic."

He singled out neighboring Lebanon and declared the government in Beirut had the duty to "uproot any nest of piracy from its territory."

Carmel said the hijack of an El Al plane to Algeria last July and the attacks in Athens and Zurich all originated in Israel's view, from Labanon. He pointed out the Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine took full credit for the Swiss incident in a statement published in Beirut Tuesday.

"The responsibility for such acts is not only with the perpetrators, but with the Arab states in which these acts are being planned and where the terrorists are being equipped," Carmel said.

He warned of "complete chaos among the airways of the Middle East unless" the attacks are halted and added:

"Safeguarding air safety is important not only to Israel but the Arabs and all the Arab airlines who want to keep their routes open. They should take immediate action."

Carmel had hinted earlier that there might be retaliation for the machine-gunning of El Al's Boeing 720 at Zurich's airport. Six persons aboard the plane were wounded. Of the four raiders, one was shot dead and the others, including a woman, were arrested.

The transport minister told the Tel Aviv newspaper Maariv: "The Arab governments who are concerned with preserving the international airlinks of their countries would do well to holdback the sabateurs, and thus avoid the deterioration destruction of the airways of the Middle East."

The U.S. state department and UN Secretary-General U Thant condemned the Arab attack in Zurich, and Thant expressed hope there would be no reprisal. But leading Israeli newspapers promised retaliation.

Sabotage Cannot Be One-Sided

The semi-official newspaper Lemerhav declared: "The sabotage of airways cannot be one-sided. The Israeli security authorities must reach the proper conclusions with regard to this extension of Arab terror."

Hayom, published by the right-wing Gahal party, said Israel "must react because her neighbors understand no other language."

The guerrillas, three men and a woman, opened up on the El Al Boeing 720 from behind a snowbank Tuesday night as it taxied down a runway at Zurich's Kloten airport to take off for Tel Aviv. Six of the 27 persons aboard, most of them Israelis, were wounded.

Zurich police said an Israeli security agent jumped from the plane through an emergency hatch after the first bursts of fire and killed one of the attackers with a shot through the head from his automatic pistol.

Swiss firemen raced to the scene and arrested the other three Arabs. They said they had to overpower the Israeli agent "otherwise he would have killed the others as well."

The Israeli and the three Arabs were in custody today and were to appear before an examing magistrate. It was assumed the Israeli agent would plead self-defence.

Sources at Bern, where the Swiss cabinet met to discuss the incident, said Israel was expected to file an early request for the extradition of the three Arabs. But legal experts there said Switzerland is virtually

Berlin Tension Mounts With New Road Blocks

BERLIN (UPI) — East Germany disrupted traffic on West Berlin's main highway to the west for the second consecutive day today, and it said the flight here Thursday of West German President Heinrich Luebke aboard a U.S. Air Force transport would be a "provocation."

An official statement by the East German foreign ministry said the U.S. Air Force flight would be "misuse of the air routes of the East German Democratic Republic."

U.S., British and French planes have air corridors to Berlin under the war time occupation agreements. West German planes are not allowed to use the 20-mile-wide air corridor and the East Germans have threatened to halt German officials' road trips to the city.

Another disturbing note in the growing Berlin crisis came from Moscow where Soviet Marshal Kirill Moskalenko, deputy defence expert and missile warfare expert, said Russia was strengthening its armed forces because of the "very tense" international situation brought by events in Vietnam, the Middle East and Berlin.

The delay of the highway to West Berlin occurred at the western end of the 110-mile road today.

Border officials said the delay, supposedly to check identification papers, began at midnight and ended about 2 a.m. It backed up traffic, mostly trucks, more than two miles.

In a second incident that illustrated East Germany's ability to tie up West Berlin's access routes, West Berlin police today delayed all outbound traffic over the main departure highway for 15 minutes in the belief that East German engineers were doing demolition blasting along the road.

Bonn Deals Blow To British Hopes

By HAROLD MORRISON

LONDON (CP) — In a quick reversal of its position, West Germany has delivered what British officials suggest may be a blow to their hopes of using the seven-country Western European Union as a stepping-stone towards European unity.

After rejecting the French argument that a Feb. 14 WEU council meeting here on the Middle East was illegal, the German government issued a fresh statement in Bonn late Tuesday saying the meeting, which France boycotted, was an exception and that the future special council meetings can be held only with the approval of all seven countries.

The WEU is made up of Britain and the six Common Market partners — France, Germany, Italy, The Netherlands, Belgium and Luxembourg. France has accused Britain of trying to use the WEU in a back-door attempt to get into the Common Market despite President de Gaulle's veto.

A spokesman for the West German embassy here, asked to explain the sudden change in the German position, said he interpreted the latest Bonn statement as indicating West Germany will join her WEU associates in routine council meetings, such as the one held here Tuesday and another to be held here Feb. 26, but will stay away from any special meetings called, say, by Britain, if France refuses to attend.

WATCH BATTLE FIRST

The spokesman also said that while the situation may be confusing, German policy would become evident as the future of the WEU unfolds. While he did not say so, what apparently Chancellor Kurt Georg Kiesinger intends to do is watch how the battle between Britain and France develops and then take a decision in the light of West Germany's best interests.

Students Granted Bail

MONTREAL (CP) — Municipal Judge Emmett McManamy began hearing bail applications today for 90 persons charged in connectin with $2,000,000 worth of damage caused last week to Sir George Williams Universty.

Before doing so he postponed until Thursday the continuation at the preliminary hearing for Kennedy J. Fredericks, 29, of Grenada, West Indies.

By the lunch-time adjournment the judge had granted bail to three accused. In addition bail was granted by order of Quebec Superior Court to five more accused. A girl accused earlier this week was granted bail by Superior Court order.

The 60 men and 30 women facing charges in municipal court include 41 Negroes. Of seven juveniles — all under 18 — due for preliminary hearing in social welfare court today one is a Negro.

Judge McManamy's decision to postpone the Fredericks hearing took the prosecution by surprise and 40 witnesses waiting to testify had to be told to go home and return Thursday.

WARNS PRESS

Before today's hearing started the judge advised members of the press to be "factual" in their reporting and not to indulge in editorial comment in accounts of the proceedings.

This came after he read a report of Tuesday's proceedings carried by a French-language daily newsppaper.

Commonwealth Trust Blow-Up If Shares Not Impounded—MLA

By JOHN MIKA
Legislative Reporter

The B.C. government was warned Tuesday it is sitting on "the edge of a volcano" which could blow up the Commonwealth Trust situation "into the worst mess since the Atlantic Acceptance scandal."

Gordon Dowding (NDP—Burnaby-Edmonds) said the only solution is an immedaite "special act of legislature to impound for all time the controlling shares" in the key company of the group, Commonwealth Investors' Syndicate.

He said this was the only method by which some other financial company can be induced to make a takeover bid which could "save this vast (Commonwealth group) empire."

Mr. Dowding said Commonwealth Trust's government-appointed receiver A. D. Stanley already has said that it is vital "to look around for some group to take over the Commonwealth empire before it falls in tatters.

"If that is not done, the government will have to face the wrath of thousands of shareholders and investors and complete breakdown of confidence on the part of the investing public."

Mr. Dowding said Vancouver lawyer A. Duncan Crux, now living in Seattle, held 49 per cent of the voting stock in CIS which in turn controlled all the other companies in the group.

He said the rest of the voting stock was held by the Grantie Establishment, a company registered in Liechtenstein.

TRANSFERS STOCK

Mr. Dowding said Mr. Crux already had transferred part of his voting stock to Seattle lawyer Robert Lee Ager of Seattle and if he (Crux) "has his way everything will be out of the country."

So long as this controlling interest is maintained by Mr. Crux and his associates, no outside firms will try to salvage the Commonwealth Trust group's companies, some of which are in receivership and others have assets frozen by court orders.

Mr. Dowding also called for a legislative committee investigation to determine whether the government's watchdog machinery had broken down.

He said documents were on file in the court registry for two years showing improper transactions among the group's companies but none of the government's officials apparently checked them and neither did Commonwealth Trust's auditors, the chartered accountants' firm headed by former Social Credit finance minister Einar Gunderson.

"The documents on file prove the same directors (of various

Peking Decision Seen As Last-Minute Move

WASHINGTON (WP) — Secretary of State William Rogers expressed "regret" Tuesday over Communist China's cancellation of its first diplomatic meeting on Thursday with the Nixon administration.

The administration said it stands ready "to meet with the Chinese Communists at any time," despite the door that suddenly closed in tis face. U.S. sources said the available evidence indicates Peking's move was a last-minute decision.

Rogers said the United States had planned "constructive suggestions" in Warsaw. The interval since the last encounter—13 months— already has been the longest since these talks began in 1955 to give the two nations a limited meeting ground in the absence of diplomatic relations.

At the intended Warsaw meeting, said Rogers, the United States' representative was instructed to suggest "consideration of an agreement on peaceful coexistence, consistent with our treaty obligations in the area . . ."

In addition, said Rogers, the U.S. envoy, who would have been the American ambassador to Poland, Walter J. Stoessel Jr., was to have proposed "the subjects of exchange of reporters, scholars, scientists and scientific information, and the regularization of postal and telecommunications problems."

Peking's sidestepping of the meeting, on grounds it would be "most unsuitable" because of "the current anti-China atmosphere" in the United States, was the first major international surprise experienced by the Nixon administration.

CHINESE CALL NIXON 'CLUMSY BRAGGART'

HONG KONG (Reuters) — China today continued its almost daily verbal attack on the United States with a personal tirade against President Nixon—only hours after it called off scheduled Sino-American talks in Warsaw.

An article in the People's Daily was reported by the New China news agency as describing Nixon as a clumsy braggart and hyprocrite.

Revenue Properties picked up ¼ to 19. The company has acquired a majority interest in Setak Computer Services Ltd. of Toronto from Joseph Kates, founder and owner.

Among western oils and mines, Reserve Oil lost 1⅛ to 16¾, Denison 1 to 69 and Central-Del Rio ½ to 14¼.

AT NEW YORK DuPont held up under selling to post a gain of better than a point—it had been up more than three—following news it had developed a new method of freezing foods.

Sinclair, the second most-active issue near the close, gained five points at 99¼. It had been off more than 17 Tuesday after a United States federal court had granted a preliminary injunction barring its proposed merger with Atlantic Richfield.

Twentieth Century Fox, an active issue all week, led the 20 most-active list with a gain of 1¾. Loew's Theatres, Control Data and Jim Walters added fractions.

AT MONTREAL the market continued to recover some of its previous losses during moderately-active mid-afternoon trading.

AT LONDON prices were divided almost equally between gains and losses. The market was bolstered by light buying of industrial stocks but British funds met renewed selling and dollar stocks were lower in sections.

Cadburys, up 3s 6d and Schweppes, up three pence, made ground on government clearance for their merger. Rowntrees rose 1s 3d for the same reason.

Among oils, BP recovered 4s 3d of their large fall Tuesday following the Sinclair-Atlantic injunction.

The investment dollar premium added about 15 shillings to provide relief for some stocks.

Canadian Pacific fell 2 points. Losses in other Canadian issues ranged to 2 points or so.

Ontario Wants More Of Everything

TORONTO (CP) —It's not good enough that Ontario now produces 53 per cent of Canada's manufactured goods and 80 per cent of its fully manufactured exports, says Stanley J. Randall, its minister of trade and development.

Since manufacturing means investment and jobs, he wants more.

The latest project in his department's push for more opened Tuesday. It's a three-day manufacturing opportunities show, designed to point out to Ontario producers assorted parts they can make to replace those now being bought in other provinces or countries.

More than 200 exhibitors have rented 40,000 square feet of space in Toronto's Queen Elizabeth building for the show.

Mr. Randall says four previous shows — the last held in 1963 — resulted in orders worth $26,000,000 for Ontario manufacturers.

Buyers also are being given a chance to look at a selection of new Ontario products. As a result, the show has attracted representatives from the United States, Britain, Germany and Italy.

By itself, the show isn't expected to result in a sudden surge of new manufacturing for Ontario. Instead, it's part of a continuing drive for new and additional business that traces back to the start of the Ontario Trade Crusade in 1962.

Mr. Randall says the crusade which has included such methods as foreign sales missions, participation in foreign trade fairs and industry-promoting efforts in several countires, has resulted in 60,000 extra jobs a year in Ontario.

Now his department hopes to raise that total to 100,000 a year.

'Roads Raise Aim at Grain

OTTAWA (CP) — Both Canadian Pacific and Canadian National railways have agreed to aim for increased targets to move grain into export position at Vancouver, Trade Minister Jean-Luc Pepin told the Commons Tuesday.

He said the CNR had exceeded its new target but "the CPR is doing as well."

Stanley Korchinski (PC—Mackenzie) suggested that the railways try to borrow diesel engines from U.S. lines to increase grain movement.

He said the engines are needed in view of reports that the tie-up of ships waiting to load grain may continue into later April or May.

Mr. Mackenzie also said he has reports of some community elevators in western Canada which have had no grain deliveries since last fall.

Mr. Pepin said he, too, has had representations along this line. He had brought them to the attention of the railways.

Inflation Here Rest of Year

VANCOUVER (CP) — Inflation will continue through 1969, but Canada and the U.S. are applying corrective measures which should become effective in the last three months of the year, said the general manager of the Mercantile Bank of Canada.

Here from Montreal for the opening of the bank's new offices, Paul Austin said the money market in the U.S. "is the tightest I have seen in the postwar period."

Traders Group

Traders Group Ltd. had net earnings of $4.9 million or $1.11 a share for 1968 compared with $4 million or 91 cents a share the previous year.

In a preliminary report the company said its policy of involving the return in various divisions before attempting a major growth in assets has given good results. Last year's earnings improvement was accomplished with a relatively small increase in total assets, the company said.

Money costs for Traders rose about $1.5 million or 7 per cent last year, but other expenses were reduced by about 1 per cent.

Cascade Gas

Cascade Natural Gas Corp. reports net income for 1968 of $1.88 million, up 17.5 per cent from the previous year.

The Seattle - based utility, which serves 70 communities in Washington and Oregon, also said a profit of $196,462 was realized on the sale of property—making total earnings for the year $2 million.

Net income from operations was listed at $1.10 a share, and including the gain on the property sales at $1.23 a share.

GRAIN PRICES

WINNIPEG (CP) — Trading in all commodities slowed near the close of action on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange today.

Rapeseed declined as a result of hedge selling and good exporter buying on the scale down. Flax declined fractionally on local and commission house trade limited to commercial buying.

Oats and barley attracted a light domestic trade. Rye featured inter-market and inter-month spreading.

Japan bought 140,000 bushels of rapeseed overnight.

Tolay trading volume Tuesday: Flax 401,000 bushels, rapeseed 412,000 bushels and rye 199,000 bushels.

CHICAGO (AP) — A late rally, attributed by some trade sources to the tense situation in the Middle East and in central Europe, tended to influence buying of grain futures on the board of trade.

As a result, early losses of nearly 2 cents were trimmed. Soybeans prices, however. held generally firm, especially in the new crop months.

Early liquidation in the wheat pit was based on expectations that this year's exports could decline and that the longshoremen's strike at east coast and Gulf coasts ports other than New York might continue through this coming weekend.

VICTORIA, B.C., WEDNESDAY, FEB. 19, 1969 —PAGE 11

Arthur Mayse

Once I obliged the hard-pressed leader of a Wolf Cub pack by agreeing to put some of her charges through a badge test.

"All you have to do," this wolf-lady told me, "is make sure they can identify a few trees and plants."

Since my own knowledge of nature's works is limited, I did some preliminary boning up, and even went so far as to memorize a name or two in botanist's Latin.

Test afternoon came, and the badge-seeking wolflets turned up. They were a bright and frisky bunch, but what most of them did to nature's works was sheer murder.

I pointed to an arbutus tree (Arbutus Menziesii, if anybody cares), and asked the first candidate on my list to name it.

"You mean that one with the funny bark?" he said. Then, brightly, "Is it a maple?"

The next boy up observed a maple—Canada's tree in its broad-leafed western version—and pronounced it an oak.

So it went, until with three Cubs tested, out stepped a boy who named a selection of native flora with casual ease.

At this point, we adjourned for an identification prowl among the trees. The boy who had learned from his father helped, and even corrected me on one I mis-labeled.

★

What matters here is not that the Cubs earned their badges, or that three of them walked as virtual strangers in a segment of the world about them. The thing that signifies is that one parent spared the time to enlarge his son's background for living.

Some fathers and mothers do just that, and by so doing, they help their children more than they may ever realize.

I do not suggest that the parent must take on the role of busy instructor. Most of us, outside our own fields of special interest, are incapable of doing so.

But I think it is tremendously important that the child be exposed to the world in which he is growing up.

Many school teachers go far beyond the line of duty in attempting this necessary task. There are few weeks for instance, when a file of students accompanied by guide and teacher don't trek through this plant to learn at first hand something of how a daily paper is produced.

But the expedition of discovery made with one parent or both has its own unique value in the education of the child.

It can also be rewarding to the parent, since a child is likely to see and note what an adult may miss.

★

We took our son to an art gallery before he could read—not with any idea of force-feeding culture into him, but merely so that he would know by seeing that there are places where anybody can go to look at pictures.

He looked at a swirl of color and told us, "Three blue fish on a blue plate." I peered at the artist's title, which happened to be "Fish on a Plate," and decided that modern art might, after all, have something to commend it.

There are no laws under which any child must visit an art gallery, or a library, or learn the shape of his city from a hilltop, or the look of a deep-sea ship close up.

By this much, however, the parent who will take a weekend hour or two can advance his child's awareness and further his knowledge. It follows that such trips must be free from nagging or bull-headed determination to instruct. All those tactics are likely to accomplish is a state of boredom.

One warning here. The years in which the parent can contribute effectively to the shaping of the child's outlook and attitudes are all too few.

They are confined to childhood, and sad though the fact may be, there really isn't much point in attempting to establish a neglected relationship once childhood has advanced far into adolescence.

As a parent, you catch 'em young—and if you don't, there's no point in mourning the lost chance that will never return.

FIRST VISIT to Victoria brought exclamations of pleasure today from pianist James Dick as he viewed the green grass and basked in warm sunshine. The 27-year-old American artist will give a recital tonight at 8:30 at McPherson Playhouse and will appear with Victoria Symphony Orchestra at the weekend, playing the Chopin E minor Concerto. Almost exactly a year ago he was soloist with the Vancouver Symphony but "Victoria seems far different' he says. A native of Kansas, Mr. Dick has distinguished himself as winner of three top international awards, including the Tchaikowsky Competition in Moscow two seasons ago. He was a Fulbright Scholar in London in 1964 and says that London is the one big city in the world where he would most like to live.

Jubilee Tops In Performing Quickie Surgery

By PETE LOUDON

Royal Jubilee Hospital here is leading the province in the field of one-day in-and-out minor surgery.

The program started in earnest just a year ago, now is handling 13 to 16 cases daily or about 300 a month.

Vancouver General Hospital offers day-care surgery to about 200 patients each month. Royal Columbian in New Westminster does about 175. Lion's Gate in North Vancouver does about three a day.

St. Joseph's Hospital here does 20 to 30 a month despite being hampered by a shortage of space. St. Paul's in Vancouver has a similar problem but hopes to get a one-day surgery started soon.

The people who are benefitting from out-patient surgery today would have spent two or three days in hospital under the previous way of doing things, a Jubilee official stated.

Two factors made the new system possible—the development in recent years of anaesthetics and sedatives which are fast-working and fast to wear off—and additional financial aid to out-patient programs by B.C. Hospital Insurance Service.

BCHIS once paid $2 for each out-patient treatment. Now it will pay $23 per day. The patient pays $2.

Usual routine is for the patient to check in at 8 a.m. and go home before 6 p.m. He will use one of eight beds in a special ward (Two East) at Jubilee.

The surgery undertaken often includes a breast biopsy—removal of tissue for examination, minor plastic surgery, obsterical curettage and removal of skin lesions or growths.

Many investigate procedures — where instruments permitting a doctor to look at human organs are inserted into the body, are also on the in-and-out list now. So often, are simple fractures.

Dr. A. C. Pickles, hospital executive director, says the program has taken more than 200 persons from the waiting list for beds for elective surgery. Overall waiting list at the hospital is still in excess of 1,500.

The program requires that the patient's doctor be certain that conditions at his home are suitable to his recovery. And a patient is only released from day-care when a friend or relative is available to drive him home.

YOUNGSTERS GETTING THE MESSAGE IN PRINT

By JIM HUME

If the medium is the message Greater Victoria youngsters have settled on the printed word.

In 1967 the children's department at the Greater Victoria Public Library distributed 172,575 books to youngsters. Last year the same department jumped its circulation to 203,069, close to 50 per cent of book-borrowings in the adult section where 567,941 books crossed the check-out counter.

Add to the youngster's reading list 48,251 books loaned via the young people's section — as compared with 33,564 — plus the youngsters borrowing books via the Town and Country branch, Brentwood Station and the Bookmobile section and the total number of young readers in the area is greater than at any time since 1964.

PUZZLER

Chief librarian Jack Lort still shakes his head, as do other librarians across North America, at the strange happenings in the library world in the three years spanning 1965-6-7.

In 1964 book borrowing was at a peak across the country with 579,037 books moving out of the general circulation department in Victoria and 235,272 books in circulation via the children's department.

In 1965 adult borrowing dropped by 30,000 books, children stopped reading to the tune of 20,000 books. The following year was worse with adult book-borrowing dropping another 9,000 and children's borrowing dropping by a thumping 50,527 books during 1966.

Softening that blow a little was the opening of the young people's section which saw 20,182 books loaned in its first year of operation — but still leaving a staggering 30,000 book borrowing reduction.

In 1967 the picture improved slightly with 535,494 books in circulation via the general department and 172,575 in circulation via the children's department. An increase, but still far short of the 1964 peak.

"We don't know what happened in those two or three years," says Mr. Lort. "It wasn't just Victoria. All across the continent book borrowings just took a staggering tumble. Every expert in the country had a different explanation but I don't think anyone really came up with an answer."

Whatever brought the 1965-67 doldrums it appears to have vanished.

HIGHEST YET

Total borrowings for last year, including all book sections of the library service, totalled 1,186,732, the highest on record.

Leading the reading parade is Saanich where residents, with 7,000 less registered members than Victoria, out-read their city cousins by 29,986 books in 1968.

The 21,426 registered borrowers in Saanich took 463,761 books from the library shelves (as compared with 413,647 in 1967) while 28,246 borrowers in Victoria mustered the time to read 433,775 books.

Saanich has been out-reading Victoria since 1966 when 388,132 books went there and only 356,177 to city dwellers.

Reading habits are improving in all sections of the Greater Victoria area with the following totals registered in 1968. The 1967 borrowings are in brackets.

Central Saanich, 56,052 (44,272); Esquimalt, 53,055 (45,240); Oak Bay, 171,130 (156,435) and View Royal, 7,602 (5,968).

Book borrowings were not the only library services to show an increase.

The reference department answered 39,943 questions compared with 29,761 in 1967. Films borrowed jumped to 2,989 as compared with 2,367 the year previous.

Paintings in circulations totalled 3,246 compared with 2,660 in 1967 and records on loan jumped to 25,346 over the 19,780 borrowed in 1967.

Regional Move Opposed

A four-member Greater Victoria Library committee has recommended against library services becoming a Regional Board function at present.

Chairman Brian Tobin and members Aldermen Lily Wilson, Victoria; Frances Elford, Oak Bay and Alan Newberry, Saanich, state however the Regional Board could one day become the library's governing body.

In a two-page report to the library board the committee notes there would be no major difficulties in transferring the administration of library services to the regional group.

But it adds that owing to the limited period of the existing inter-municipal administration, and the limited changes a switch in authority would bring "there would be little purpose in seeking a change at the present time."

The report concludes by saying the door should be left open for future negotiations.

"It is recognized that possible new revenue sources, the growth of the population and other factors, may change the situation in the future. The question of reorganization under the regional district authority therefore remains open in principle and invites further investigation."

For the past three years the once Victoria Public Library has been administered by the four core municipalities of Oak Bay, Esquimalt, Saanich and Victoria with Central Saanich represented on the board by a non-voting member.

The bulk of the revenues required to operate the library come from the municipal governments involved via the Inter-municipal Committee.

One Reduction In Oak Bay On Assessment

Five Conduct Losing Fight

Only one of six appeals heard this morning by the assessment court of revision in Oak Bay was successful.

The reduction was for $220 for a property on Transit Road.

As the appeals neared their completion 34 have been unsuccessful and four successful.

Several times during the morning court chairman Alan Bigelow said the appeals boiled down to the true market value of the property. The court was not concerned with percentage increases or the amount of taxes paid.

The appellants had to show their property was worth less than the assessor said.

Protection Request 'Routine'

Oak Bay police today discounted a Vancouver news report which tended to add more mystery to the case of missing city businessman William Osland.

The story said Mr. Osland's business partner David Hummel had asked for police protection for his family before he left on a business trip to Mexico on Feb. 8.

Oak Bay Police Chief John Green said Mr. Hummel, a city lawyer, had merely asked police to keep an eye on his house and family during his absence.

Chief Green said the same request is made by many husbands when they go out of town — "we just drive by, we don't even stop."

He said there was no request for police officers to be stationed at the Hummel home and no reason why such a request should be made.

Police are frank, however, in their assumption that foul play is involved in the disappearance of Mr. Osland Feb. 3. His mother is convinced he has been murdered.

He disappeared after saying he was going to see the ship R. M. Emery, of which he was part owner, before it was towed to San Francisco for remodelling as a marine attraction.

REWARDS

Mr. Oslund, 35-year-old father of two, vanished. His car was found in a parking lot with his keys and his briefcase inside. Rewards have been offered.

Last week Mr. Osland's family posted a $1,000 reward for information leading to his location and his firm Diversified Management and Development said it would post a similar reward last Monday if he was still missing.

An employee of the firm today could not confirm whether the second reward has yet been offered. He said all the firm's directors are out of town.

Review Planned On Parking Fee

POTHOLE PROSE reaches classical heights in Greater Victoria these days. Residents say we've got potholes big as bathtubs, potholes big as moon craters, potholes with tenders out for bridges, potholes they're measuring for ferries. Now the camera proves it can lie as delightfully as a typewriter. There's a pothole, above, where the owner of those lily-white hands obvious has gone down for the third time.

Complaints Considered By Hospital

Royal Jubilee Hospital board will review its scale of charges for car parking following a spate of complaints.

Board chairman J. Courtney Haddock said, "We're doing our best to get a proper system. We can't provide free parking."

In recent years the hospital's 450-car parking lot has been controlled by a toll gate which provided unlimited parking when a dime was inserted in a slot.

But since Jan. 1 rates have been set at 15 cents for the first half hour or portion thereof and 10 cents for each succeeding half hour. Persons parking more than four hours pay a flat 75 cents. During the night, between 10 p.m. and 6 a.m. the toll gates are back in use for unlimited parking for 25 cents.

$3,000 WEEKLY

Potential revenue during visiting hours alone, if the lot is fully used for the five-hour period, is at least 20 cents an hour. This means an earning power of more than $3,000 a week, more than $150,000 a year.

Such a revenue, invested by the hospital development society, could produce a healthy fund for provision of special furnishings and technical equipment and could be a sizeable relief to property taxpayers.

ABUSED BY PUBLIC

Mr. Haddock said parking earnings already have provided curbs, blacktop and lighting for the hospital grounds. Extra protections for the doctors' parking area has reduced vandalism and theft.

Previous parking arrangements were subject to some abuses by the public. Employees have been restricted from using the main lot but the growth of apartments in the area has contributed some problems.

POOR POOL?

There have been cases where persons going downtown from outlying areas would park there and proceed in one car on a pool basis. Some concern is also felt as to whether the new Eric Martin Institute, which is adjacent, has sufficient parking.

Overflows could create new problems for Jubilee.

Doctors attending the hospital pay a flat fee for parking on a monthly basis.

CHURCH-SPONSORED

New Service to Aid People in Distress

A counselling service for people in trouble will be set up by Greater Victoria Council of Churches.

The idea is to set up a panel of experts — lawyers, doctors, psychiatrists, clergy and businessmen — who will be available to people in distress.

"You could call it a poor man's counselling service," Rev. Dr. Samuel Parsons, executive secretary of the Council of Churches, said today.

"Broadly speaking, men or women applying to the council for help will be referred to the expert most qualified to help them."

STEERING GROUP

At its annual meeting Tuesday, the council set up a steering committee, under the chairmanship of Rev. Albert E. King, to decide how the counselling service should be organized.

It will be modelled on the Pastoral Institute of Calgary and will probably be called the Pastoral Institute of Victoria.

Canon Grahame Baker, rector of St. John's Anglican Church, was re-elected president of the council, with Dr. Parsons as vice-president and executive secretary and Wilfred Spearman, treasurer.

Rev. John Watson of First Baptist Church was re-elected vice-president. Chairmen of committees are Rev. H. B. Ilsey, fellowship; Monsignor Michael O'Connell, inter-faith; Canon Hilary Butler, education; Rev. Bruce, Molloy, social action; Rev. Leighton Streight, worship and witness; Bishop Denys Rankilor, public relations.

LEAVING Victoria Saturday is Brigadier Cecil Bonar, superintendent of the Salvation Army men's social and rehabilitation centre at 521 Johnson Street, since 1966. A native of North Sidney, N.S., he has been appointed administator of the Army's Men's Hostel at Sherbourne Street, Toronto—the largest in Canada. "It's a promotion," says Brigadier Bonar, "but I hate leaving so many good friends in Victoria."

CHILDREN'S THEME SET FOR PARADE

The Victoria Day Celebrations Association today announced the theme of this year's parade will be children's fantasy.

Mother Goose, Mickey Mouse and dozens of other children's favorites will make their appearance in the May 17 parade.

Application forms for float entries may be obtained from the association office at 202-1029 Douglas St., or by telephoning 382-3912.

Ask The Times

Q. I know the history of Guisseppe Garibaldi, and that at one time he lived in the United States, but no mention is made of his having had any connections with Canada. Who is responsible for having named a mountain in B.C. "Garibaldi"? Was it an Italian? M.M.J.

A. Official records show that the mountain was named by Capt. George Henry Richards about 1860 in honor of the Italian patriot who was at the height of his victories at that time. Capt. Richards had been commissioned by the British Admiralty to chart the West Coast area.

Anyone wishing a question answered is invited to send the question along to the Times, addressed to "Ask the Times" Editor. Questions and answers will be published daily.

All questions should deal with matters of fact and be of general interest. The Times does not undertake to solve conundrums or legal problems. Nor will it attempt to put a value on old coins, stamps or antiques. These should be submitted to a dealer.

Girl Pages Fine But No Mini-Skirts Please!

By PAT DUFOUR

Well, why not girl pages in the B.C. legislature?

Dr. Carron Jameson, chairman of the Greater Victoria school board, and Fred Willway, his Sooke counterpart, think the girls should have a chance.

Peter Bunn, a former chairman of the city board, goes along—provided the girls don't turn up in miniskirts.

Only Mrs. Rubymay Parrott, chairman of the rural Saanich school board, dissented.

They were asked to comment on a charge by Mrs. Eileen Dailly, NDP member for Vancouver, that the government is discriminating against girls by only using boys as pages.

Dr. Jameson said girls "might add a little charm to the house.

"It might help them develop into interesting parliamentarians, or help make them constructive businesswomen."

Mr. Willway said both sexes should have a chance at being pages.

"I don't think there should be any discrimination. The girls do a darned good job on the safety patrols. They're as good, and sometimes better than the boys."

Trustee Bunn said the girls would be as much credit to the district as the boys are.

They'd be a "delightful addition" but they'd have to be the right kind of girls.

"We couldn't have any flamboyant minis . . . or any show like Mrs. Jordan's (Pat Jordan, minister without portfolio) red underwear."

Describing herself as a traditionalist, Mrs. Parrott said, "I think boys look better in uniform and page duties are more in keeping with a boy's personality."

Economically, she sees no injustice in the male monopoly.

"Girls of that age find it much easier to make extra money by baby-sitting and other means."

Ald. Frances Elford of Oak Bay cited the exclusive use of boys as "just another of the little discriminations."

She sees the use of girls as a means of encouraging more women to enter the field of politics.

"The pages have to be good students, just the type of people we want to lead us."

Ald. Elford said if current regulations forbid the use of girls as pages these should be changed, and soon.

From a strictly practical point of view, it may be uniforms, not regulations that finally resolve the issue.

Colin Glover, vice-principal of Reynolds secondary school which provided this year's crop of pages said:

"We were sent the uniforms and had to choose the boys they would fit. Boys are getting bigger these days and we had to disappoint some of the older ones."

You can always lengthen a skirt but everyone knows it's more difficult—and costly—to let out the seams of a tightly-fitting pair of pants.

COOKING CAN BE FUN

By MARY MOORE

Several Vegetables Combine In Flavorful Lenten Dish

The Lenten season gives an extra impetus to our vegetable cooking.

A vegetable plate can be a beautiful picture and a flavorful meal. I am not an advocate of vegetarianism but regardless of the slogan "meat makes the meal" without vegetables that meal would lack lustre.

Moore

Today I have a recipe using rice as its basic ingredient but enhanced with three or four or five vegetables that give it its name. Cheese adds the protein.

RICE FLAMENCO
(Serves Six)

Six tablespoons cooking oil, divided; ½ cup chopped onion (or ¼ cup bottled flakes), 1 cup celery; ¾ cup carrots; ½ cup green pepper (optional); one 10-oz. can tomato sauce; one 10-oz. can mushroom stems and pieces (see note); 4 cups hot water, divided 1½ cups raw long grain rice; 2 chicken oxo cubes; 1½ teaspoons salt; about ¾ to 1 cup grated old Cheddar cheese.

In 4 tablespoons of the oil in a frypan gently saute the onions, celery, carrots and green pepper (if used) for five minutes. (NOTE: If you use bottled onion flakes be sure you do not burn them for they burn easily if neglected. Of course you may use fresh mushrooms—as much as one pound. If you do, gently saute them along with the other vegetables.) Add the tomato sauce, rinse out can and add one cup of the hot water. Simmer covered until tender—about 15 minutes.

Meanwhile parch the rice in remaining oil in large frypan stirring until it is opaque and pale gold. Add remaining 3 cups hot water, chicken oxo cubes and salt, stir well to dissolve cubes and cook covered 20 minutes until all liquid is absorbed. Turn into attractive shallow preheated serving dish, pour cooked vegetable mixture over evenly, sprinkle top generously with grated cheese, and serve.

NOTE: If this has to be held for a little while use a good-looking baking dish for it and cover with lid or foil and keep warm in oven at 200 deg. Cheese melts a little and is very attractive. Serve with a colorful vegetable and a rib-sticking protein dessert such as custard pie.

DEAR ABBY . . .

A Real Woman Will Find the Right Man

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I am 53 and have been a widow for three years. I keep my hand in business to keep occupied, but I have no money worries.

I dress fashionably, am well-groomed, I wear glasses and my figure is "so-so." I'm no beauty, and I look my age.

I would like to get married again, but I don't like old men, and young men don't like me. Don't tell me to travel. I've traveled plenty and all I meet is other women looking for men. Don't tell me to develop my personality. I have more "personality" than most men I know. Don't suggest contact lenses. I've tried them and can't wear them. And don't tell me to tint my hair. I already do. What can you do for me?

LOOKING

DEAR LOOKING: Nothing. No man wants a woman who anticipates all the questions and knows all the answers. If you really want a man, you'll have to come across more like a woman.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I are expecting our first baby in about a month. We've arranged to have a woman come in (afternoons) to help with the cooking and cleaning the first two weeks.

The problem is my mother has informed us that she is coming as soon as the baby is born so she can "help" me. Abby, I wrote her some time ago, telling her that I wanted her to wait until the baby is a month old, but she apparently ignored my suggestion.

My mother is extremely critical and I am her favorite target. She makes me nervous. The last time she visited us, my husband threatened to send her packing if she didn't lay off me.

How can I tell my mother to please stay home that first month without causing a major rift?

UPSET MOTHER-TO-BE

DEAR UPSET: Tell your mother again, just as you have told me, that you will welcome her when the baby is one month old—but not before. If it causes a major rift, be prepared to accept it. Otherwise prepare to be criticized, and upset.

CONFIDENTIAL TO WORRIED PARENTS IN PITTSBURGH: No. We don't need a "new" code of morals. What we need is the courage and wisdom to live up to the old ones.

Hate to write letters? Send $1 to Abby, box 69700, Los Angeles, Calif., 90069, for Abby's booklet, "How to Write Letters for All Occasions."

SHOPPING GUIDE

Plain Room Given Individual Touch

By PENNY SAVER

It's amazing what two different people can do with the same materials. I have two sets of friends living in the same apartment building. Their suites are identical with boxy rooms and cream-colored walls. But the two apartments give me two entirely different "feelings." One has been conventionally furnished in one of the "traditional" styles. It is comfortable—but rather reminds me of a department store show-room. The other apartment is overflowing with character. The occupants couldn't afford to buy new tables and chairs, nor do I think they would if they could. Instead they have refinished some old, but not remarkable, chairs and made a couch and shelves of bricks and wood. Bright colors have been used to advantage in drapes, home-made wall-hangings and cushions. The effect is clean and cosy, but not in the "Miss Marple" tradition of overstuffed chairs and Victorian lampshades. Incidental ornaments are all chosen to blend in perfectly and add to the effect. Needless to say my friends "blend in" just as comfortably.

The wonderful thing about people who decorate this way is that they will wait to buy just the right thing instead of committing themselves to an easily-available substitute. I noticed this especially the day I discovered the tobacco-tin that had served as an ashtray replaced by a magnificent pottery ashtray. This ashtray is designed for the heavy smoker (or the housewife who doesn't like to empty ashtrays often). It is about five inches in diameter and the walls are close to two inches deep. Three cigarette rests have been provided. The color is a dull liony yellow and the outside has been decorated with a relief pattern of daisy-like flowers. I later learned that this jumbo ashtray costs $3.60.

Made in Germany

Glancing around I noticed that there were several other new pieces of pottery about so I asked my friend where she had found them, then slipped down to the store she mentioned to look for myself.

This line of pottery, which is made in Germany, includes vases ranging from $1.35 for a bud vase (either pitcher-shaped with a handle or plain) to $8.60 for a large vase for tall flowers and trailing greenery. For $5.75 there is a dish so shallow that it is almost a plate that would be ideal for fresh fruit. A large bowl that would be perfect for salads is $14.75. This bowl has deep sides that are almost straight until they reach the base.

The colors available are a deep, shiny "electric" blue, a dull blue with greenish-yellow showing through and a shiny red with green showing through. Most of the pieces are available in one of the blues and red, though the red pieces are all slightly more expensive. There are smaller ashtrays than the one I first saw ranging in price from $1.65 to $2.60.

The last item in this line has no relation to the others. It is a candle-holder finished in a shiny yellow. This ceramic holder it at least four inches tall and is shaped rather like an antique hookah with a curved handle set between the two "rings." The top flairs out into a flat area with a standard sized depression to hold the candle. These candle-holders are $2.90 each.

If you would like to know where to find these items, please call 382-3131 between 8 a.m. and 4:30 p.m.

Accuracy Not Her Goal

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto art buyers like Christiane Pflug's work. They must — they pay up to $4,000 for one of her paintings.

One middle-aged couple said they like it because it is precise and accurate and real.

Mrs. Pflug, 32, abhors this reaction.

"Those people grieve me," she says. "They like the paintings because they think they are realistic, but I don't paint for accuracy."

He most famous painting, The Kitchen Door with Esther, uses distorted perspective to compress space and draw the viewer into the scene.

The two paintings she produces each year also distort time. Because they are usually painted during a nine-month period, the seasons change from first stroke to finished painting and the changes are left in.

She says she is neither a symbolic nor formal painter; she paints what she wants to paint.

For her, realism is "the tool I use to make my vision visible."

If You're a HEP Girl— Where's Your Wig?

Do you wear a bra? Or foundation? Use cosmetics? Do you believe in labor saving? Washer, vacuum, disposer, electricity? Then where's your wig?

Use instant coffee? Frozen foods? A frostless refrigerator? Wigs save time, too—lots of time.

Think of it! A perfect coif in a minute. From wig stand to your head! Ready to go. Flawless! faultlessly coiffed!

If you're modern, be modern. If your time is worth saving in many other ways, it's worth saving in your boudoir and bathroom.

We believe in wigs because we hear what owners say. Votes for women were nothing compared with wigs. Kleenex was a faltering step compared with wigs. Deodorants? Dandy. But wigs are more handy.

Wigs aren't to fool people. They're to "cool" people—their owners. Wigs make it possible to be calm in the hectic rush from being one person at 10, and another at 12, or leading one life at 5 and another at 7. Save time on your hair and you'll have time for your face.

Come in and get the low-down on a high-style wig that you'll love us for showing you. No obligation. Come, explore.

Incidentally, we are now giving a discount on all Wigs and Falls. Phone or drop in and have a chat with Carole, our Wig Specialist.

Terms can be arranged to suit your budget.

Ontario Wants More Of Everything

TORONTO (CP) —It's not good enough that Ontario now produces 53 per cent of Canada's manufactured goods and 80 per cent of its fully manufactured exports, says Stanley J. Randall, its minister of trade and development.

Since manufacturing means investment and jobs, he wants more.

The latest project in his department's push for more opened Tuesday. It's a three-day manufacturing opportunities show, designed to point out to Ontario producers assorted parts they can make to replace those now being bought in other provinces or countries.

More than 200 exhibitors have rented 40,000 square feet of space in Toronto's Queen Elizabeth building for the show.

Mr. Randall says four previous shows — the last held in 1963 — resulted in orders worth $26,000,000 for Ontario manufacturers.

Buyers also are being given a chance to look at a selection of new Ontario products. As a result, the show has attracted representatives from the United States, Britain, Germany and Italy.

By itself, the show isn't expected to result in a sudden surge of new manufacturing for Ontario. Instead, it's part of a continuing drive for new and additional business that traces back to the start of the Ontario Trade Crusade in 1962.

Mr. Randall says the crusade which has included such methods as foreign sales missions, participation in foreign trade fairs and industry-promoting efforts in several countries, has resulted in 60,000 extra jobs a year in Ontario.

Now his department hopes to raise that total to 100,000 a year.

Cascade Gas

Cascade Natural Gas Corp. reports net income for 1968 of $1.88 million, up 17.5 per cent from the previous year.

The Seattle-based utility, which serves 70 communities in Washington and Oregon, also said a profit of $196,462 was realized on the sale of property—making total earnings for the year $2 million.

Net income from operations was listed at $1.10 a share, and including the gain on the property sales at $1.23 a share.

GRAIN

WINNIPEG (CP) — Trading in all commodities slowed near the close of action on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange today.

Rapeseed declined as a result of hedge selling and good exporter buying on the scale down. Flax declined fractionally on local and commission house trade limited to commercial buying.

Oats and barley attracted a light domestic trade. Rye featured inter-market and inter-month spreading.

Japan bought 140,000 bushels of rapeseed overnight.

Tolay trading volume Tuesday: Flax 401,000 bushels, rapeseed 412,000 bushels and rye 199,000 bushels.

CHICAGO (AP) — A late rally, attributed by some trade sources to the tense situation in the Middle East and in central Europe, tended to influence buying of grain futures on the board of trade.

As a result, early losses of nearly 2 cents were trimmed. Soybeans prices, however, held generally firm, especially in the new crop months.

'Roads Raise Aim at Grain

OTTAWA (CP) — Both Canadian Pacific and Canadian National railways have agreed to aim for increased targets to move grain into export position at Vancouver, Trade Minister Jean-Luc Pepin told the Commons Tuesday.

He said the CNR had exceeded its new target but "the CPR is doing as well."

Stanley Korchinski (PC—Mackenzie) suggested that the railways try to borrow diesel engines from U.S. lines to increase grain movement.

He said the engines are needed in view of reports that the tie-up of ships waiting to load grain may continue into later April or May.

Mr. Mackenzie also said he has reports of some community elevators in western Canada which have had no grain deliveries since last fall.

Mr. Pepin said he, too, has had representations along this line. He had brought them to the attention of the railways.
